CAUCUS ON TRUSTEE HUNT

Court Fight Unlikely Over Site for Clinic

The Northwest Cooperative Mental Health Association will probably not go to court in its search for a suitable clinic site in Arlington Heights.

Association housing chairman William Radtke told the Herald Tuesday, "We are definitely going to work with the village board."

He said that he had discussed the matter with the association's attorneys from the law firm of Ancel, Stonesifer and Riley. On the attorney's advice, the association hopes to find some possible clinic sites in the village and present these to the village board, Radtke said.

THE VILLAGE board had offered to help the association find a new site after a special use permit for clinic construction on the association's 1.25 acre site next to the Juliette Low School in Surrey Ridge subdivision had been denied.

The association's board of directors discussed the possibility of litigation at its regular December meeting, the night after the village board's decision. The matter had not been discussed with association attorneys at that time.

The attorneys advised Radtke that the case might cost as much as $7,000 to $8,000.

Association officials had been leery of hunting for another site because most available sites that they had found had either been unimproved or far too expensive, according to board member Mrs. Robert Wood, Mount Prospect. The association first began its search for a site over 2½ years ago. The Surrey Ridge site was purchased from Elementary School District 59 in 1965.

Current architects' drawings of the proposed clinic call for a ranch-style building with a central court yard. Architect Ron Dirsmith has told Arlington Heights officials and homeowners that he designed the building so that it would blend with a residential area.

School Candidate Search Under Way

The nominating committee for candidates for Arlington Heights Elementary District 25's Board of Education will hold the first of three meetings tonight (Thursday).

The committee, commonly known as the School Caucus, will slate candidates for four board positions expiring this spring.

The terms of Charles Bennett, Robert Bukowski, and Howard Sjogren expire in April. The appointment of Victor Myer, who is filling the unexpired term of the late Mrs. Marian Malcolmson, was made only until the spring elections.

BENNETT has served two three-year terms, the maximum under Caucus rules, and will not run again.

Bukowski and Sjogren, who are both eligible to seek Caucus endorsement, have not decided whether to seek re-election.

The nominating committee is composed of two delegates from each participating local organization. These are civic or educational in interest and have no religious or political affiliation.

At tonight's meeting duties of a school board member will be explained to the delegates. A screening committee of eight members will be chosen from the large body.

THE SCREENING group must then interview all candidates for the four vacancies and make recommendations for a slate upon which the entire nominating committee will vote. The nominating committee is not bound by its screening committee recommendations.

The caucus has successfully nominated candidates in the district's elections since it was created in 1954. Its candidates generally run unopposed.

Liquor Board Will Review Revocation

The Illinois Liquor Control Commission Monday took under advisement an appeal made by Arlington Heights bowling proprietor, Thomas Kouros.

Arlington Heights Acting Liquor Control Commissioner, Frank Palmatier, revoked Kouros's license Oct. 20 for violations against a local ordinance and a state statute.

Kouros appealed his case on the basis that the commissioner "was capricious, arbitrary and unjust and predetermined."

His establishment, the Arlington Heights Bowling Lanes, Inc., 8 N. Vail Ave., remained open on the basis of the appeal.

Kouros was charged with serving alcoholic liquor to a minor and serving alcohol after hours.

On Dec. 12, Kouros was acquitted of charges of contributing to the sexual delinquency of a minor by a Circuit Court judge.

PTA Association To Study Apathy

Highlighting the meeting of the Arlington Heights Council of Parent-Teacher Associations Wednesday afternoon will be a panel discussion entitled "Combating Moral, Spiritual and Civic Apathy."

Guest panelists will be Ralph E. Clabaugh, superintendent of District 25 schools; John Woods, village president, and the Rev. Leonard Martin, minister of education at St. Peter Lutheran School.

The public is invited to attend the discussion at 1:30 p.m. at Park School, 306 W. Park St.

A question-and-answer period will follow the discussion. Refreshments will be served at the end of the meeting by the Park School PTA.

A brief business meeting will precede the program. At that time members are to be selected to the council's nominating committee, headed by Mrs. John Gross. The committee will draw up a slate of officers for the 1967-68 year.

Second Ski Trip Sessions Start

The Arlington Heights Park District's second session of ski trips will begin next Thursday and continue for four consecutive Thursdays.

Skiers (minimum age is eight) will leave Pioneer Park by bus at 4 p.m. each of the Thursdays. Lessons will be given at Fox Trails Sports Area, and skiers will return to Pioneer Park at about 9:30 p.m.

The $25 fee for the four trips includes two hour lessons each trip, tow fees and transportation to and from the ski area. Rental equipment is available for an additional $2 at the ski lodge.

Spades Is Lucky

"Our little 'Spades' is back with us. Police picked him up and took him to the animal hospital. When they saw our ad in the paper they called me."

Thus spoke Mrs. K. VanAernum of Palatine.

Walsh Seeks Re-Election

Trustee John J. Walsh said this week he plans to seek Caucus endorsement for re-election.

As such, he becomes the sixth Arlington Heights resident — and the second incumbent trustee — to say "Yes" to a bid to appear before the Caucus interviewing committee.

The other is Trustee Thomas H. Hanlon, elected in 1965 for a short term.

Trustee Carl Mees, whose term on the village board will also expire in April, announced last week that he will not run again.

WALSH AND Hanlon have not been given interview dates yet by Scott Ball, chairman of the Caucus recommendations committee that interviews potential candidates.

Ball, however, has booked interviews with four other Arlington Heights residents willing to appear and seek endorsement from the Caucus recommendations committee.

He has sent out letters to 3 other village residents whose names were suggested as being qualified to fill the trustee posts.

"And I'm looking for more names now," Ball emphasized Tuesday in discussing the candidate search with Paddock Publications.

"We want to interview every village resident who's willing to come before us," he declared.

INTERVIEWING by the committee will begin Saturday, Jan. 14. Assuming enough candidates appear to fill the dates — and Ball predicted Tuesday that other candidate applications will soon start flowing in — the recommendations committee will also question potential candidates on Jan. 15, 21, 22, and 28.

Friday, Feb. 10 has been tentatively set as the date on which the recommendations committee — representing every area of the village — will select six possible trustee candidates for final winnowing at a public meeting on Feb. 20.

VILLAGE CAUCUS bylaws require the recommendations committee to select at least six candidates — two for each of the three trustee seats open in the April municipal elections.

JOHN J. WALSH

Citizens attending the Feb. 20 public meeting of the Caucus will ballot to select final Caucus nominees, who will then organize their own Caucus Party to file as a ticket in the April election race.

What It Is

Staff writer Mary Schlott interviews Trustee Frank Palmatier, first chairman of the Arlington Heights Caucus, for a report on what the Caucus is, and how it came to be. Her story is inside section one of this week's Herald.

Experts Scheduled For Police Academy

A slate of top-flight instructors has been recruited for the Northwest Police Academy, Director Lt. Jack Aldrich told the Herald Tuesday.

The school, which will be held at Arlington Heights' Municipal Hall, begins Monday morning.

Teachers for the 160-hour training course include Richard Braithwaite, retired captain of the Evanston police force; Fred Inbau, Northwestern University professor and author of the book — "Criminal Investigation and Confessions"; Dr. Jacob Novick of Forest Hospital in Des Plaines; Sgt. Frank Baron of the Illinois State Highway patrol; John Strong, psychiatric social worker at Arlington High School; and Warren Petersen, Arlington Heights prosecuting attorney.

ALDRICH SAID several men from the Chicago Federal Bureau of Investigation will teach some of the courses.

Aldrich, who faces opening day with "anticipation and trepidation," will teach the orientation classes Monday.

Thirty-five recruits from local police departments are enrolled in the class.

Official announcement of the academy's accreditation came Dec. 28 from Mervin O'Melia, executive director of the Illinois Local Governmental Law Enforcement Officers Training Board.

Zoners Set 2 Hearings

The Arlington Heights Zoning Board of Appeals will hold two hearings Monday beginning at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Hall.

Representatives of Fidelity Builders of Chicago will seek a variation for sideyard requirements for one home in Arlington Terrace subdivision. The home is presently under construction. Located at 1818 N. Dale Ave., it has a sideyard of six feet. Zoning ordinances require a nine-foot sideyard.

At a second hearing Fred Goble will request a variation to permit continuation of a nonconforming two-family use in a single family district. His home is located at 306 N. Fremont Ave.

Clerk Is Taking Scarsdale Bids

The Arlington Heights Village Clerk will accept bids for the installation of sanitary sewers in Scarsdale Estates until 11 a.m., Tuesday, Jan. 17.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said the village reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to make the award it deems most advantageous to the village.

Code Changes Recommended

Planners to Weigh Tighter Home Building Standards

Tighter building standards for village housing developments will be considered Wednesday by the Arlington Heights Plan Commission.

At the same time the commission may loosen stringent parking requirements for the highrise buildings in the downtown area.

CHANGES IN the code were recommended by the zoning committee of the commission and a special downtown parking committee. Suggested changes for the single-family districts are:

—Increasing sideyard requirements. With the change a builder would have to provide a side yard of 10 feet or 10 per cent of the lot width — whichever is larger. Now a builder has to provide only the 10 per cent requirement.

—Increasing minimum R-3 widths from 70 to 75 feet. Tracts of ten lots or more must average 10,000 square feet per lot.

Builders have indicated to the zoning committee that such changes would work a hardship on them.

Their best-selling home is 56 feet — the maximum allowed after 14 feet are taken out for two side yards.

If the side yard requirement is increased to 10 feet, builders have to reduce the size of a house to 50 feet. The zoning committte has suggested the problem could be solved by increasing R-3 lots to 75 foot widths.

Other drawbacks of the proposed changes include a deflationary impact on other village homeowners and a reduction in tax levies (70 per cent of which goes to area schools).)

THE PLAN commission will consider some of the following changes in the two-family (R-4A) classification:

—Increasing the minimum lot size from 8,750 square feet to 14,000 square feet.

—Increasing side yard requirements from 10 per cent to 20 per cent with a minimum frontage of 125 feet.

—Make one garage and a paved driveway for each unit mandatory for all construction.

According to the zoning committee, headed by Norval Stephens, these changes would bring the duplex standards up to other residential standards.

Currently R-4A standards are about one half of those for R-3 homes. Each duplex unit requires 4,375 square feet as compared with 8,750 square feet for an R-3 unit.

The zoning committee indicated that the R-4A category is the "worst tax eater" in the village. Though the recommendadations will not remedy the situation, hopes are that they will hold the impact of R-4A to slightly more than R-3.

Because most homes in the village have garages, the zoning committee has recommended a garage stipulation for R-4A homes. Currently, builders are required to provide only off-street parking for duplexes.

AS STANDARDS are tightened up for home builders, they are being loosened for downtown developers.

The plan commission will consider changes in parking requirements for office, retail, and bank facilities in the central business district. The changes recommended by a combined group of village trustees, plan commissioners, and members of the zoning board of appeals, are:

—Relax parking requirements

Caucus Marks Its 10th Year Of Local Political Dominance

by MARY SCHLOTT
Staff Writer

Ten years of dominance in local politics will be marked this month by the village Caucus.

More of a structure than a party — designed to let every village voter have a say on selecting candidates — the Caucus was 10 years old Tuesday.

Frank Palmatier, currently a village trustee and thus a product of the Caucus system, was chosen as first chairman at the Jan. 3, 1967, meeting.

He became the Caucus's first chairman by default, Palmatier will tell you with a grin.

"I was the second choice. Bob Calvin, who now lives in Barrington Hills, was to have been nominated as chairman. But he had been planning a January vacation in Mexico and his wife wouldn't hear of the plans being changed."

FRANK PALMATIER

THE CAUCUS was a reform movement, organized to defeat an incumbent village administration whose leader was Al Goedke. Its founders were many of the same persons that spearheaded a successful village manager referendum not long before.

Despite regular opposition at village elections, Caucus-nominated candidates have managed to sweep every village election since the organization was formed.

Palmatier thinks the reason for the Caucus' success is simple: It is democracy in action, he declares.

"It is basically set up so the village's active majority is going to control, but openly," says Palmatier.

HE AND others in the Caucus organizing group — a group that included Victor Beisler, Harold Klingner, Lester Ploetz and Jerry Chapman, plus others that have since moved from town — set up the Caucus as a "strictly open group, with all decisions made at a public meeting open to every village voter."

That policy was approved at the 1957 January caucus meetings and has been adhered to since.

Palmatier says that though the school Caucus, (formally known as the District 25 Nominating Committee) had been organized earlier, the new village Caucus had few of its features. Some aspects were adapted from those used by the Winnetka caucus.

But Palmatier believes the Arlington Heights Caucus' precinct-by-precinct election of recommendations committee members is unique.

Bylaws preventing the recommendations committee from dominating — and thus susceptible to being "packed" by someone's supporters — are also wise provisions, Palmatier asserts.

Rules make it possible for a hopeful candidate failing to get the nod from the recommendations committee to be nominated from the floor.

William J. Moore used this route to win Caucus nomination for village trustee in 1961.

Another important measure says Palmatier, was the decision to select just one slate at the Caucus endorsement meeting—and then go out and see that it's elected.

"If we hadn't done that the first time we wouldn't have how successful," Palmatier notes.

More important, however, in Palmatier's estimation is the encouragement that promised support gives to potential candidates.

"BEING AN elected official takes up a lot of time. It's hard to get a good man to run when he faces the distinct possibility of losing," Palmatier points out.

Palmatier's active role in founding the organization did not make him a shoo-in when he sought office himself. He went before the Caucus recommendations committee three times before being elected truste. The first time the recommendations committee passed him over, the second time he was recommended—but lost out to George C. (Bud) Beacham at the public Caucus nominating meeting by just 10 votes.

Of the two top Caucus posts—chairman and recommendations committee chairman — Palmatier views the latter as more important.

"The Caucus chairman is basically an arbiter. His function is to see that the organization is conducted in accordance with the by-laws," he explains. "As far as continuity of the organization goes, he's the key."

"BUT AS FAR as selection of candidates goes, the recommendations chairman is probably more politically important," Palmatier adds.

Palmatier doesn't think the recommendations committee can be rigged enough to the favor of a candidate. "But five or six members can get together to blackball a candidate," he adds.

Palmatier thinks this has happened at least once. He says it's his opinion the first Caucus recommendations committee was stacked against Robert B. Bishop, an incumbent village trustee.

Bishop was interviewed by the committee and then withdrew his name, later was nominated by his friends from the floor at the Caucus final meeting that year, but withdrew again.

"I presume he withdrew his name from recommendations committee consideration because he didn't think he'd be selected," Palmatier says. (A

Pass Resolution Against Nike Base Navy Housing

The Arlington Heights Village Board jumped on the somewhat slow-moving bandwagon in opposition to development of the Arlington Heights Air Defense Site for Naval housing.

Passing a resolution Tuesday night which was essentially the same as one passed by the park board last month, the village board became the second local governmental body to oppose the Defense Department move.

Commenting on the village board resolution, Park Board Pres. Charles B. Cronin said that he was "very happy to see this type of cooperation."

"I think that if the whole town gets behind this project we'll be able to do something about it." he added.

PRESENT PLANS, announced this fall, call for development of 24 acres of the 140-acre site in low cost housing for Naval families employed at the Glenview Naval Air Station.

Both the village board and the park board resolutions maintain that there is an urgent need for open space land in the park district "to assure a decent living environment, to provide for adequate parks and recreation areas and the growing leisure time of the residents of the park district, and to curb suburban sprawl and prevent the spread of urban blight and deterioration."

Both resolutions also allege that the proposed use of the Nike Base "will destroy one of the few remaining natural resources in the community, will cause congestion and overcrowding, is diametrically opposed to the United States government's own open space land programs and defeats the development of the area for recreational purposes."

Copies of both group's resolutions will be sent to United States governmental agencies concerned with the open space program as well as elected federal officials from this area and Defense Department officials. (A

Stonegate Lighting Dispute Burns Out

The Stonegate lighting issue was laid to rest Monday night after a 10-month-long fight by residents of the subdivision to keep modern-style street lights out of their neighborhood.

The subdivision's homeowners association had tried without success to obtain Motor Fuel Tax funds to install lamps that would have been more in character with the style of the area.

THE VILLAGE backed the homeowners and even fired off a petition requesting that municipalities be given greater control over use of MFT funds. It was all to no avail.

Trustee John Walsh read a letter from the MFT officials stating that funds from that division could only be used to install lighting that meets the standards set up by the state: In this case, 25-foot-high mercury vapor lamps.

After Walsh had complimented the efforts of the Stonegate lighting committee, the board voted unanimously to direct the village manager to undertake an engineering study preliminary to installation of the modern fixtures. (A

LWV To Review Housing Laws Of Other States

Fair housing laws of other states will be reviewed by League of Women Voters members at an open committee meeting next Tuesday.

Hostess for the 9:30 a.m. meeting will be Mrs. Stephen Caruso, 206 N. Elm, Prospect Heights.

THE MEETING is planned to help the League's equal housing opportunities committee —and other interested LWV members—prepare for meetings later this month.

At Jan. 16, 17 and 18 meetings, area Leaguers will be asked to take a stand on whether the Illinois LWV should support fair housing legislation—and if so, what kind.

Mrs. Stephen Caruso of Prospect Heights is in charge of the equal housing opportunities study. (ACME

Annual Meeting Set for Savers

The Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Assn. will hold its annual meeting at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 18.

At that time four directors will be elected for three-year terms, and two directors will be chosen for two-year terms.

The officers' annual report of the association's financial condition and progress in the past year will be given. The program for the coming year will be outlined. (A

New Boards, Commissions Secretary

Arlington Heights boards and commissions will have a new secretary starting Monday.

Mrs. Charles Fyfe, 1016 E. Rockwell St., will replace Mrs. Vera Deehring, 502 S. Patton Ave., as boards and commissions secretary.

Resident Hurt Following Crash

A three-car accident at Arlington Heights Road and Thomas Street last Thursday resulted in one injury and one arrest.

Alex H. Engelking, 59, 218 S. Highland Ave., was injured when a car driven by Roger K. Baer, 907 E. Marion St., pulled in front of his car, police said. Baer's car slid and hit a third car driven by Ralph J. Fehrenbacher, 804 W. Thomas St., according to police.

Engelking was treated and released from Northwest Community Hospital, and Baer was charged with failure to yield the right of way. (A

Sidewalks Loom Big In BOLI's '67 Agenda

A sorry subject at this time of year—sidewalks—are scheduled to be a big item on Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements (BOLI) agendas in 1967.

BOLI, working to make sidewalk installations conform to a village policy passed last March, has already made its recommendations for the northwest quadrant of the village. The other three quadrants remain to be surveyed and discussed.

When the village board passed the policy, Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson estimated that it would take BOLI about two years to implement it. Commenting on the policy at that time, Hanson said that it would be impossible to develop a policy that would apply to every given situation.

VILLAGE ATTY. Jack Siegel said that passage of the policy did not necessarily mean that sidewalk installation would be required on both sides of the designated streets. This matter would be left to the board's discretion, Siegel said.

Areas which may be considered for sidewalk installation in the coming year include those that fall within the eight provisions of the adopted village sidewalk policy.

This policy provides that sidewalks be installed on all major and through streets as set forth on a map which was part of the Public Safety Committee's report, and that sidewalks be required within one half mile of any park, elementary or high school and on streets leading to major and through streets "when in the judgment of the board of trustees or Board of Local Improvements, said streets require sidewalks to insure the safety of pedestrian traffic."

The policy also stipulates that sidewalks be installed abutting all commercial and multiple zoned property and on any side of a street where 50 per cent or more of the lineal frontage shall have been improved with existing sidewalks.

THE POLICY, however, specifies in Section Six that "not withstanding the provisions of this resolution no sidewalks should be required on streets subject to the village board policy on 'waiver of sidewalk deposits.'"

According to the municipal code as adopted May 3, 1965, sidewalks are not required where:

"(1) Eight per cent of all lots, any part of which lies within a distance of 600 feet from the nearest boundary of the premises in question, are improved with buildings or other structures; and (2) the general pattern of development in the area does not include sidewalks along the street frontage."

The terms of the village policy stress that the policy itself is not to be construed to limit the statutory power of BOLI to initiate special assessment proceedings. The policy also leaves property owners the prerogative of putting in their sidewalks by private contract. (A

Woods Lists 20 Projects For Trustees' Attention

"Keeping pace with our extremely rapid growth while holding taxes level and maintaining our basic single family character," is the greatest problem facing Arlington Heights in 1967 according to Village Pres. John G. Woods.

In a year-opening memorandum Tuesday to the board of trustees, Woods recommended that the board devote its efforts in 1967 to 20 major projects.

HE GAVE high priority to the revitalization of the downtown area. To implement this program, Woods suggested that obsolete structures be removed, several major projects be begun, specific plans for additional downtown parking for shoppers and commuters be adopted and traffic control be improved.

He also recommended that applicable ordinances be reviewed to determine if further legislative action is necessary or desirable, meetings with downtown property owners be continued, and the advisability of a public building commission be studied.

In addition to downtown improvements, Woods urged that the trustees continue efforts to develop research enterprises, offices and light industry in the village. He asked that the board conduct a "major campaign" to secure an entrance and exit to the toll road at Arlington Heights Road.

OTHER recommendations in Woods statement indicated his interest in a continued effort to develop an alternate source of water from Lake Michigan, a review of single family and multiple zoning requirements with the plan commission, securing maximum benefit for each tax dollar, increasing postal and fire facilities and working toward beautification of the downtown area.

The board was further asked to study the purchase of sanitary land fill north of Dundee Road and west of Arlington Heights Road, determine the health needs of the community, support the safety commission, and aid the youth council's effort to decentralize the juvenile court.

Woods said he favored legislation granting Home Rule for municipalities. In line with this reasoning he also pushed for reforming the motor fuel tax system, regulating solicitors, and giving municipalities the power to zone within 1.5 miles of their corporate limits.

Also listed on the 1967 agenda were updating the capital improvement budget, supporting the Youth Council and Junior Women's Club efforts to help youth, adopting a Weller Creek Drainage Improvement Program in cooperation with Mount Prospect and formulating plans for a cultural center in cooperation with the park board.

Parent Groups To Lead Meeting Of Patton PTA

Parent Groups 1-18 Italic. . . .

Parents from the Patton PTA will participate in the program "Inspecting Our Foundation" Tuesday night.

Discussion groups will define key words in terms of what they mean to parents as individuals and as family members. A panel will discuss these definitions at the February meeting.

Before the program nominations for the nominating committee will be taken. All persons nominated must have given prior consent.

Girl Scout Cadette Troop No. 380 will present the colors, and the second grades will provide the refreshments. (A

Church to Explain Mission Programs

The Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) of Arlington Heights has scheduled its School of World Outreach sessions for Jan. 15, 22 and 29.

The School of World Outreach is aimed at informing church members of the missionary and benevolent programs ranging from those at the local church to the farthest missions.

Dr. Robert Nelson, executive secretary for Africa and Jamaica in the Christian Church's Division of World Mission, will headline the first program. He will speak about his experience in the mission field.

THE SECOND program will feature a presentation by the Rev. Gene Ott, administrator of the St. Louis Christian Home, a home devoted mainly to children.

The motion picture "Decision" will be shown at the third and final session. This film dramatizes the problems of a congregation whose educational facility has been destroyed by fire.

Families participating in the program will meet at the church at 333 W. Thomas St., at 5 p.m. on each of the three Sundays for a potluck supper. Film strips on the how and why of the world outreach program will be shown as the group gathers before dinner. (A

Three Builders Launch Their 1967 Projects

Three builders who brought their plans before the Arlington Heights Village Board in 1966 swung into action Monday night to ensure that 1967 would be another boom year in housing development in the village.

The board gave its approval to a preliminary plat of Miller Builders 136-acre parcel on the south end of town adjacent to the Nike Base.

As currently planned, the subdivision will contain 327 lots on mostly curvalinear streets. The plan calls for separation of commercial and single-family housing areas with a buffer of multiple family units.

The brothers Morris and Henry Green, who have done extensive building in the village, came before the trustees with a formal request for annexation and zoning of 40 acres of property on the southwest corner of Buffalo Grove Road and Hintz Road.

They plan a $5-million dollar subdivision on this north-end property, including approximately 550 single-family units and 250 multiple-family units. The multiple-family housing will be located in five 48-unit structures on the west side of the property bordering on Buffalo Grove Road.

The trustees decided to meet as a committee of the whole next Monday night to consider the Green Brothers request. Action on the property had been tied to disposition of the Chesterfield property just north of the Green property on Hintz Road.

The Chesterfield subdivision was given final approval by the trustees Monday. Preliminary agreement had already been reached in December after the builder had agreed to do away with all duplex housing on the acreage, as well as bowing to other stipulations made by the board.

Arthur Zaltzman, president of Chesterfield was given a formal welcome by the trustees with whom he has been arguing for more than a year.

He told the Herald that he would begin work on the massive 345-acre subdivision within the next three months. He said that the first work might be done on the once-controversial corridor of land which projects from the main portion of his property west to Arlington Heights Road.

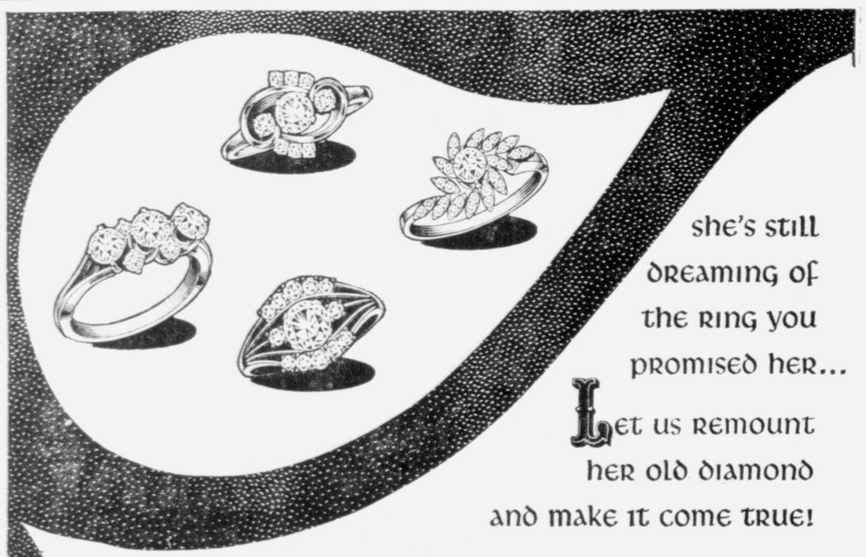

That land was slated — and may still be — for a boulevard-style entrance into the development. Zaltman estimated the total worth of his undertaking at $45 million. (A

Board Postpones Action On Downtown Properties

Action on three properties in the central business district was postponed Monday night by the Arlington Heights Village Board in order that Building Comr. Harold Best could be present to explain to property owners why their buildings must be removed, remodeled or destroyed.

An owner of one of the non-conforming-use buildings, Mr. R. G. Wolf of Des Plaines, told the board that he did not intend to remove or destroy the cement block structure he owns at 13 E. Davis St. The building currently houses the Arlington Produce Co.

The present village code stipulates that removal, destruction or remodeling are the only paths open to owners of buildings in the central business district which have been assessed at less than $5,000 value or which fail to conform to construction standards.

WOLF COMPLAINED that he had not been informed of the village action contemplated by the village until last week.

He was heatedly told by Trustee John Walsh that such action had been contemplated by the village for several years and that such action had been well publicized in the press.

The board clearly had little sympathy with Wolf when he pleaded that he had not heard any hint in Des Plaines of Arlington Heights' plans for the central business district.

WALSH TABBED the east Davis Street structure an "eyesore" and suggested that Wolf come up with some constructive alternatives on what action should be taken.

The board voted to defer action on the matter until its next regular meeting Jan. 16. Another property owner, Nicholas Lattof, who has two wood frame houses on S. Arlington Heights Road said that he was in agreement with such deferral and indicated to the Herald that he would comply with village regulations.

The board also directed the village attorney to file a lawsuit in Circuit Court to ensure the removal of a condemned house at 813 S. Roosevelt, which has been declared a fire hazard.

Realtors See Booming Year

Even if effective crystal balls are at a premium, optimistic comments on home purchases in Arlington Heights for 1967 are not.

"My honest feeling is that 1967 will be the best year we've ever seen since I've been in the business—which has been about seven years," Realtor Barton Stull commented.

Stull said 1967 being a year befor a presidential election year might mean that money will be a little looser.

ANOTHER Realtor, Carl M. Behrens predicted a "tremendous year" that will be "as good as last year." Behrens said that money is available now, and that although the interest rate is high, people don't seem to mind paying 6½ per cent.

Guy Anderson, vice president of the Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Association also was optimistic.

"I think compared with the last several months an upswing is inevitable. By this I don't mean that the price of money is going to be less, but we do see a good year in Arlington Heights in building and purchasing of homes.

"SUPPLY OF money is improving considerably and this is the most rapidly growing suburban tract in the Chicago area—especially in the area to the north. We are a two county town," Anderson said.

Anderson also speculated that mortgage rates might drop slightly — but not immediately because the price of labor and building materials continue to climb.

"You're better off building now at 6½ per cent than waiting," he said.

Anderson sid that money is coming back to the East and Midwest from the West Coast, where much of it had been invested in speculative home building. This will eliminate the marginal operators both in the savings and loan business and in the building business in California, he explained.

"It's going to be a very good year," Anderson stressed. (A Cost of the 10-week session is $5. Classes will be held at 9, 10 and 11 a.m. each Saturday.

Tuesday two programs will get off the ground.

CHESTER RUMPF, life master bridge player, will instruct beginning bridge players at Pioneer Park Tuesday evenings. The cost of the 10-week program is $10. The two-hour sessions will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

District 25 To Start Budget Work

The lengthy process of budget shaping begins Wednesday at Arlington Heights Elementary District 25's School Board meeting.

The board is expected to review preliminary estimates of receipts and expenditures for the educational and building funds.

SUPT. RALPH Clabaugh said revenue for the 1967-68 school year may be slightly higher than this year's revenue. He cited more state aid and higher assessed valuation as reasons.

Also on the agenda are building and enrollment projections for the next five years. A detailed study was submitted to the board in December but action was withheld until a special citizen's committee makes its recommendations.

The citizens' group, headed by Norval Stephens, is doing independent research on building needs and enrollment projections for the district. (A

Board OKs Change In Cedar Glen Units

The Arlington Heights Board of Trustees gave its approval to a request by the developer of Cedar Glen Apartments to substitute one 40-unit building for four 10-unit building which originally had been agreed to in the planned development layout.

THE APARTMENTS are located on Shady Way west of Cedar Glen just south of Forest View High School.

Builder E. L. Trendel told the board that his new plan would permit him to offer more open-yard space in his apartment complex. It would also save him money by allowing him to concentrate the remaining units under a single roof. The new building will be on the west side of the apartment development.

Auto Hits Truck; Two Injured

Two Evanston women were injured Tuesday evening when their auto struck a truck parked on Euclid Street near Wilke Road in Arlington Heights.

The auto, driven by Helen L. Cline, 58, struck the truck and knocked an 800-pound generator from it. Police said the force of the collision caused the truck to cross the parkway and strike a parked car, owned by Nellie M. Parvlak, 1617 W. Euclid St.

THE TRUCK driver, Melvin J. Wille, 1517 N. Chicago Ave., Arlington Heights, told police he had stopped to help Mrs. Parvlak start her car. He said he had left his parking lights on.

Mrs. Cline and a passenger, Carol C. Wilson, 70, were taken to Northwest Community Hospital where they were treated and released.

Police charged Mrs. Cline with reckless driving. (A

Your Prescription Pharmacist

YOU DON'T NEED 1,000 EYES HERE.

"A buyer needs 1,000 eyes, the seller not one." Most people thought that the "Buyer beware" style of selling had changed since past times. But the many confusing advertisements of firms who depend on price alone to get customers is often misleading and confusing.

HOW DO DISCOUNTERS OPERATE?

When selling drug lines, almost all of them select about 30 of the best advertised products and sell them at a lower price than their cost plus overhead expenses. If you bought nothing else than these advertised specials, every one of these firms would soon go broke.

MOST DISCOUNTERS DISCOUNT SERVICE.

They avoid deliveries or charge accounts and have as few employees as possible. You often spend more time getting what you want than any savings are worth. Of the thousands of products they do not feature, you usually pay regular prices. On their controlled brands, which are not known to you for price comparison, market investigators have proved that many of them are overpriced to make up their losses on specials.

DON'T YOU ALWAYS FEEL SAFER HERE?

Our policy is to price everything at exactly the fair profit we need to operate a good pharmacy. A child can shop here as wisely as the smartest buyer. When manufacturers offer temporary specials, we also have them at these lower prices. Since we make a fair profit on everything we sell, we do not have to over-charge you on anything. And we never will discount our service.

THE ACCEPTED INFLUENCE IN THE NORTHWEST SUBURBAN AREA

Area News Roundup

PALATINE—Chicago & North Western Railway officials decline proposals by the village for operation of railway-owned lots that were municipally maintained under a canceled parking pact.

ELK GROVE VILLAGE—A solution has been presented to salve feelings of dissatisfied parents in Elk Grove Consolidated School District 59. The Parents Advisory Committee, formerly a passive organization, will be revised to provide a communication link between school administration and public feeling.

WHEELING—Officials in Wheeling and District 21 give their projections of what will be experiences in 1967. It can be summed up in one word, another year of "growth." Supt. Kenneth F. Gill says more schools will be needed to accommodate the burgeoning student population in the district. And Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon hopes village trustees will call for a referendum for a new municipal building to meet the demands of the growing community.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS—Village board had no more given formal annexation and zoning approval to a 345-acre parcel on the north side of town than it was petitioned to annex and zone a $5 million 40-acre development proposed by the Green Brothers. The new subdivision will be located immediately to the south of the 345 acre Chesterfield development.

MOUNT PROSPECT—School district 57 board members tentatively agreed Tuesday night to try again to get a recently defeated $975,000 bond referendum okayed at another referendum later this year. The question of raising the limit on taxes will also be on the ballet.

ROLLING MEADOWS—A city manager ordinance will be debated by the city council next Tuesday evening. Relative merits of creating the post by ordinance or referendum will probably be discussed, and question is to be raised of why the city needs a full time clerk plus a full time manager.

SCHAUMBURG SCHOOL DISTRICT—The board announced that it has invited representatives of various school districts in northern Illinois to meet in Hoffman Estates Jan. 12 to discuss past problems and future solutions of dealing with the Illinois School Building Commission. This group allocates interest-free funds to build schools. Restrictions imposed, however, have made this assistance a frustrating experience to District 54.

ADDISON—Members of Addison's library board will meet next week, hopefully to make final plans and suggest a date for a second referendum for a new library. The $400,000 building was voted down in November.

ITASCA—Officials from Itasca and Elk Grove Village have approved a boundary agreement establishing Devon Avenue as the dividing line between the two villages. Neither village may cross the line without permission of the other.

DuPAGE COUNTY—All villages in North DuPage County are planning to increase police department salaries and personnel in 1967, according to a survey just released by the DuPage County Police Chiefs Association.

BENSENVILLE—The village president's salary was boosted by trustees last week from $3,000 to $4,500. The new salary includes compensation for the president's job of liquor control commissioner, while the old salary designated $950 for village duties and $2,050 for liquor control.

WOOD DALE—A petition was filed last Friday in DuPage County Circuit Court asking that a date be set for a referendum seeking a change to council-manager form of government for the village. An effort to obtain a manager by ordinance did not materialize in Wood Dale during 1966.

ROSELLE—The St. Walter's Catholic Church parish is seeking village, township and county cooperation on street and storm sewer portions of a $107,000 project that includes blacktopping a parking lot and playground and improving sections of street that border on the church property. The county and township are involved because land to the north, south and west of the church is unincorporated.

Invite Public to School Dedication

The public is invited Sunday to the dedication of School District 59's newest school, Juliette Low, 1530 Highland Rd., Arlington Heights.

Open house will begin at 2 p.m. and the dedication ceremony will be at 3 p.m.

Raymond Orput, president of the designing architectural firm of Orput and Orput, Rockford, will be a principal speaker. The school's "open area" concept won it a national award last year from the American Assoc. of School Administrators.

OTHER SPEAKERS will be Douglas Burns, president of the District 59 Board of Education; Dr. Donald Thomas, district superintendent effective Feb. 1; Dr. C. F. Liu, president of the Juliette Low Parent Teacher Club; and Mrs. Jean Griffith, principal.

Mrs. June Kuehl, community chairman of Elk Grove Village Girl Scouts, will present a plaque to the school named after the Girl Scouts founder. Girl Scouts and Brownie Scouts will present a flag and sing songs.

Teachers will conduct tours through the school before and after the ceremony. Refreshments will be served. (E on a sliding scale.

—Require all parking spaces to be provided within 300 feet of the building, and within the central business district or on contiguous property.

—Raise the contribution in lieu of land from $1,200 to $1,600 per parking space.

—Provide for payment of contributions in lieu of land over ten years in equal annual installments.

—Permit the leasing of parking spaces from the village to satisfy requirements.

The recommendations came about after several prospective developers in the downtown area indicated they could not go ahead with their plans because of the stringent parking requirements.

Eye on Arlington

Too Little, Too Late

By DAVID HOYT
News Editor

What kind of youth would the Youth Council counsel, if the Youth Council could counsel youth?

Forsooth, you experts on youth, the young people of Arlington Heights are running amok. Or so it would seem in the opinion of their elders. From Halloween through Neaw Year's, juvenile pranksters have wrought havoc with pumpkins and Christmas decorations.

What counsel do you have for these hardened toughs? The delinquency has been of a high order. Certainly it merits some consideration by those who are concerned.

Can you visualize the plotting behind the crime? "Hey, Harry! Let's go down and swipe the kid in the Nativity scene. What a blast! And we can maybe smash a few lighting displays. It's a gas to hear those bulbs popping!"

What sort of advice do you give the petty offender in our juvenile society? The ones from well-to-do homes? You could meet sometime and kick it around. Maybe you could come up with a resolution.

You could maybe recognize youth. There's been a lot of talk about giving youth more recognition as a method of dealing with the problems that seemingly spring eternal from the bosom of youth.

Or perhaps the parents of Arlington Heights could realize that the Youth Council is too little too late. That it is not a problem of giving youth more to do or giving youth more recognition. That it is not a matter of getting youth to collect papers, gather ecumenically, or dance at sterile and safe community-sponsored sock hops.

The youth that participate in these activities are not the ones who tear up lighting displays or Nativity scenes.

The youths that do the malicious damage are beyond the benevolent offices of the youth councils of this nation.

Youth councils cannot twist the ears or redden the bottoms of these lawbreakers. This is something that should have been taken care of by their parents many years ago.

Internalization. Don't run away from this five dollar word. It is another word for conscience. It describes the acceptance of certain standards of behavior by children. It results from discipline administered by parents.

The disciplined child comes to adopt society's values as his own, only if his parents have disciplined him to respect these values. The miracle happens around age six.

If he is flaunting society's standards 10 years later, there is nothing any youth council can do, precious little that parents can do, and very little that trained workers in mental health can do.

The need for police in our high schools is due precisely to the lack of police work by parents who turned in their badges without a battle when their offspring were still manageable.

Today's hope lies with tomorrow's youth. If their parents master them, instead of the other way round, then perhaps there will be an end to thoughtless delinquency. Perhaps there will be no need for muddled, well-intentional youth councils or police in the classroom.

Good luck.

Arts Council Brings Culture to Children

Sooner or later a person's life is influenced by culture and the School District 59 Parent Arts Council believes it might as well be sooner as later.

The Parent Arts Council is dedicated to bringing live arts to children for the two-fold purpose of educating and entertaining them.

"We have to balance the push of technical education," Parent Arts Council President Mrs. Marge Martin said.

"We're now realizing science and mathematics are not taking care of the whole person. The cultural side has to be given exposure and outlet for expression, too."

THE PARENT Arts Council provides two kinds of programs geared to children: in-school performances funded by school parent-teacher groups and public performances supported by ticket sales.

It is very gratifying to see children watching live performances, Mrs. Martin said. An auditorium provides an atmosphere for appreciation no television set ever could, she believes. The children identify with the performer and with programs geared to their level and they learn while they are entertained, she said.

"We are preparing the young to be the audiences of tomorrow," Mrs. Martin said. "It is much more exciting to see programs live."

The Parent Arts Council is composed of representatives from parent-teacher organizations in each of District 59's 16 schools and Queen of the Rosary Grade School.

The 38-member council, meeting once a month, tries to provide at least one program a month in each school. Each parent-teacher organization sets its own budget for programs in a school.

PROGRAMS are considered an educational aid and an extension of the curriculum. A good yearly program would include a performance in each of the arts for every age group, Mrs. Martin said.

The council has scheduled drama groups, puppeteers, dance demonstrations, story tellers, films, music ensembles, art exhibits and demonstrations in arts and crafts.

A new performance suggested at a council meeting may be given a kind of screening. The entertainer may be tried out in one school and if good, recommended for other engagements.

Occasionally a children's program comes along too expensive for in-school use so the council makes a community program of it. The special programs are sponsored through 50-cent ticket sales and are held Sundays in Elk Grove High School.

THOUGH geared for children, parents turn out for these, too.

This fall the council sponsored the Ginny Tiu Revue as a special performance. The Chinese Tiu family are all talented performers, appearing on television and in movies.

A spring series of special performances will be held in March, April and May. Engagements indebting the council $3,000 are the Illinois Ballet, the Tale Tellers and the Bobby Clark life-size marionettes.

"Children rarely get to see live ballet, mainly because most ballet is for adult audiences," Mrs. Martin said. "This will be geared for children."

THE TALE Tellers, an adult drama group, also does children's plays. The council was able to contract the marionette troop between tours of Europe, the council president said.

Any other performers that come to the Chicago area might also be contracted for a special program.

"We get excited about offering children something they could not normally see," Mrs. Martin said. "These are professional performers for only 50 cents."

The council now will be starting the sale of the $1.50 tickets for the concert series.

THE PARENT Arts Council started as a cultural arts committee three years ago in Ridge School.

The council was chartered in 1965 as a non-profit organization, the only arts council in the country incorporated exclusively for children.

This is the first year all schools have become members. (A(M

Presbyterians Open Communication Course

Laymen from three area Presbyterian churches will meet this Sunday to begin a six-hour course in group communication.

The course, taught by Parker Calahan, 4 W. Suffield, Arlington Heights, is aimed at training an adult discussion staff for a 13-part televised education series that the three churches will sponsor beginning next month.

"We're making an all-out effort to train the staff," Curt Kenyon of the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights explained.

The other churches participating in the program are Southminster United Presbyterian Church, Arlington Heights, and the Presbyterian Church of Palatine.

THE ADULT education series which these laymen are being trained to guide features 13 filmed presentations by Dr. Edward W. Bauman, a member of the faculty of the American

DR. EDWARD W. BAUMAN

University and Wesley Theological Seminary of Washington, D. C.

Each of the programs is divided into two parts: the first Dr. Bauman's presentation and the second a group discussion.

The series was originally presented over WMAL-TV, Washington, D.C. Each program treats only one subject.

The programs will begin on Feb. 5 and will be presented at each of the three churches more than once a week. A definite program schedule will be announced at a later date, according to Kenyon.

The schedule of programs for the series is: The Transfiguration of Jesus; The Lord's Prayer; The Rich Young Ruler; Jesus on Love and Marriage; The Last Supper; The Problem of Judas.

The Crisis in Gethsemane; The Crucifixion of Jesus; The Meaning of the Crucifixion; The Resurrection: Road to Emmaus; The Resurrection: In Galilee; The Gift of the Holy Spirit, and The Gift of Eternal Life. (P(A

Hersey School Bidding Encourages Officials

Continued interest in the Hersey High School construction project may give High School District 214 a favorable price on the job.

School officials will open bids on the Hersey project, designed to give District 214 its sixth school, at 2 p.m. Tuesday at Prospect High School.

Bids probably will be awarded at a 7:30 p.m. board meeting that evening in Slichenmyer Administration Center.

ORIGINAL COST of Hersey, a comprehensive high school for 2,750 students, was estimated 14 months ago at $6.5 million—with the base construction bid set at $5.3 million.

Architects told Paddock Publications this week they still expect bids next Tuesday to be above the $5.3 base estimate.

But Wayne Fritch of Berger Kelley Unteed and Associates, architects for the project, said that he had seldom seen such interest in a job.

Plans have been taken out by eleven of the "better general contractors," he said, including A. L. Jackson Co. whose firm usually specializes in Loop projects running in the $25 million category.

There has been equal interest among plumbing, electrical and heating contractors, Fritch says, and most of those firms have also reported great interest among possible subcontractors.

"With this kind of good substantial competition, you get the lowest dollar bid," Fritch said.

ABOUT TWO weeks ago Berger Kelley Unteed and Associates began discouraging contractors inquiring about the job. They did this, Fritch explained, because they felt a contractor starting this late would not have enough time for accurate estimates. Despite that, inquiries were received from contractors as late as last Wednesday.

Fritch would not estimate what he thought next Tuesday's low bid would be.

Since Berger Kelley Unteed and Associates made estimates on the Hersey project, construction costs have spiralled 15 to 40 per cent, he pointed out.

"There is no reason to think that this trend has changed," he declared.

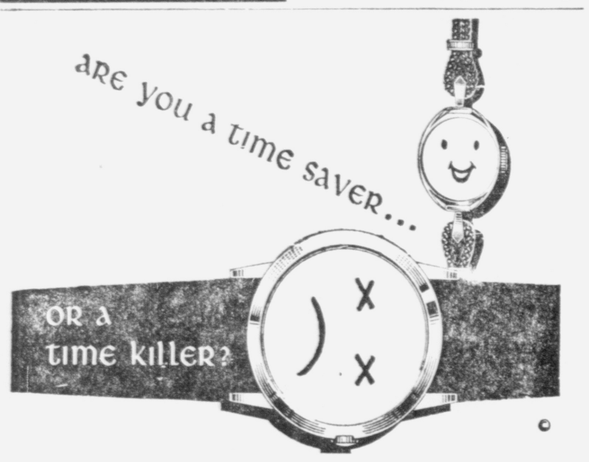

Private estimates among the trade, however, are that the Hersey project will come in at $500,000 to $1 million over the $5.3 figure.

To give the school board an option if bids go too high, bid alternates make it possible to postpone construction of a fieldhouse and outdoor sports areas.

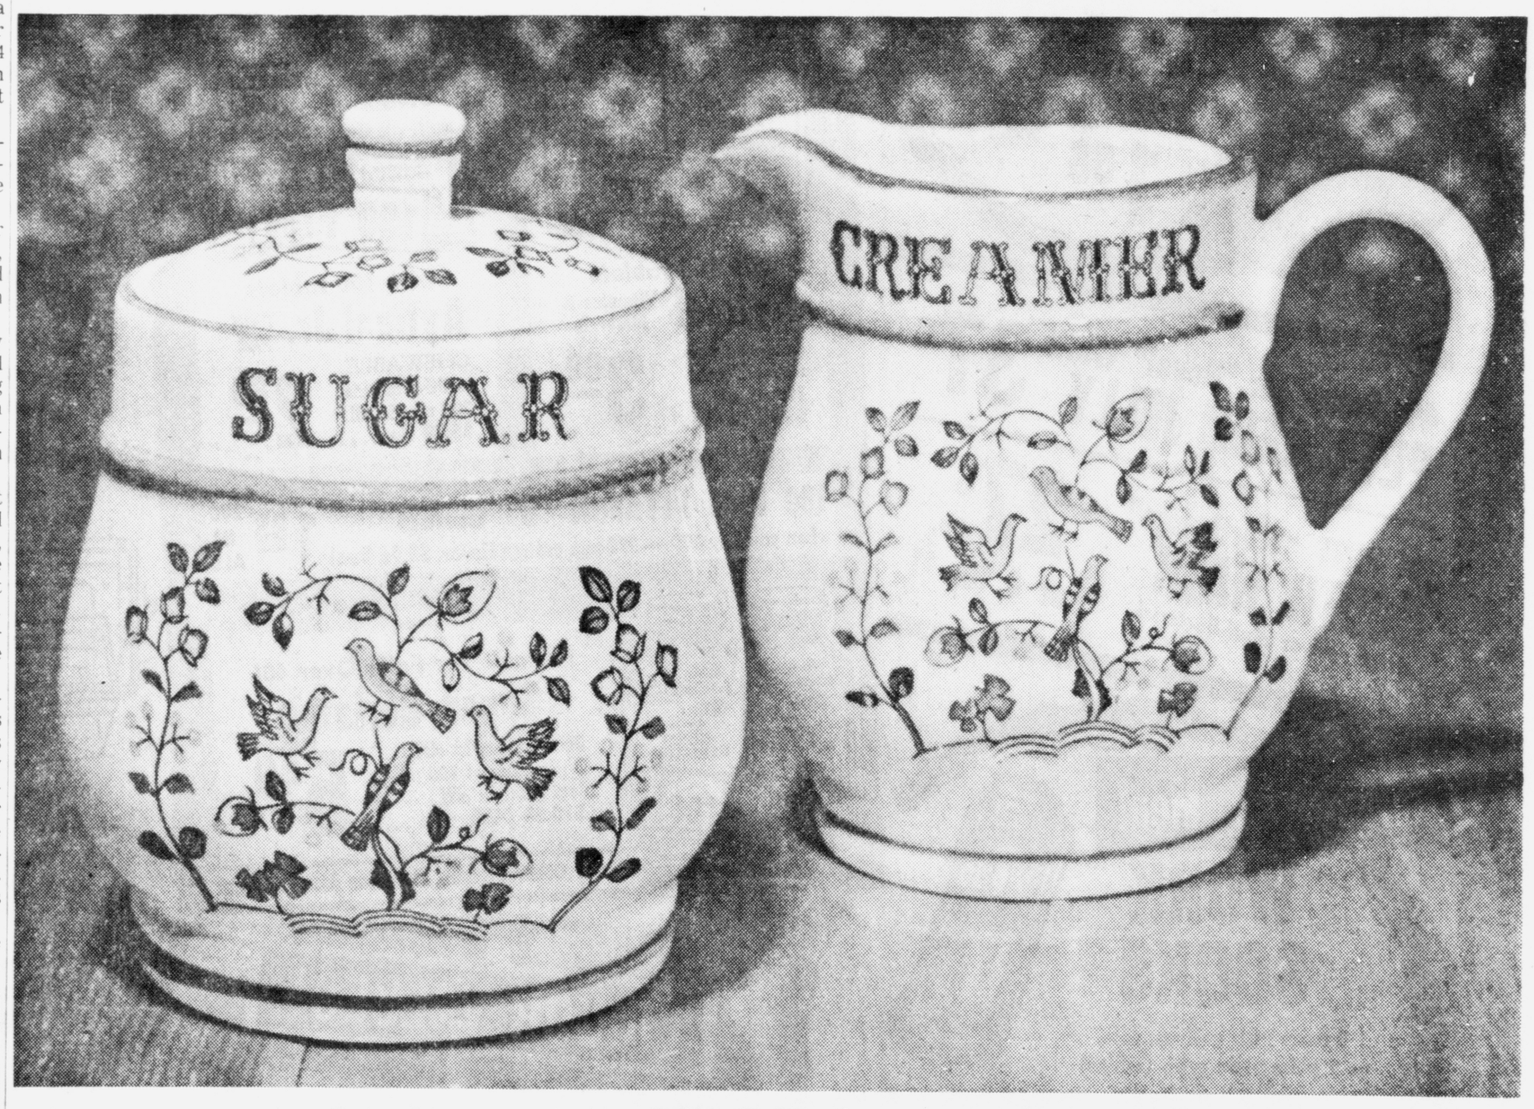

A cushion could be provided by interest now being drawn by the Hersey construction bonds. These bonds have been sold and the funds invested. (ACME

VIRGINIA TERRACE

Florida was the holiday vacation spot selected by Carl and Joan Casperson and son, Stephen, 1405 N. Illinois. The Caspersons left for Largo, Florida, Dec. 17 and returned home Dec. 30. They enjoyed a two-week visit with Joan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Putnam.

Colleen and Michael Coleman, daughter and son of the Jim Colemans, 1411 Clarendon, spent part of their school vacation visiting their aunt in Columbus, Ohio. The two left for Columbus shortly after Christmas and returned home Jan. 2. The now-seasoned travelers enjoyed visiting Mrs. J. Thompson, their mother's sister.

The holiday season is a time to celebrate, and Jack and Catherine Hannis, 1206 N. Race, felt that they had a reason to as Catherine's sons, Rick and Gene Hudson, were home for the holidays. Gene is a student at Northern Illinois University, and Rick is in the Navy. On Monday, Dec. 26, the Hannises hosted a party for the boys. Among those present were Steve and John Vulasek of Des Plaines. Steve was home from Viet Nam and John on leave from the Air Force. Home from the Army was Don Ross of Itasca; Janice Micek of Chicago attended with him. Mike and Cindy Zeitner of Rolling Meadows and Jerry Greene of Chicago were also guests. With Rick and Gene were Melrose Park friends Joanna Jones and Mercedes.

Wayne and Janet Manthei and children, Becky and Jeff, 1321 N. Wilke, visited Wayne's parents, the Albert Mantheis of Joliet, over the weekend. They enjoyed meeting with many friends at a New Year's Eve gathering.

THE TERRACE welcomes Tom and Lilymae Marsh, who moved to 1201 N. Race from Carpentersville Dec. 17. The Marshes have a son, Alan, 6, and a daughter, Natalie, 4. Tom works for Smithco in Schiller Park. Among his hobbies music ranks high; he enjoys playing the guitar.

Al and Deanna Herda, 1245 N. Illinois, hosted a New Year's party in their home Saturday night for twenty guests. Terrace neighbors who attended were the Jack Gleesons and the Dick Leforts.

FOR THE FAMILY MANAGER

ITEM: Interested in looking slender? Soft fabrics, such as crepe, sheer woolens, wool and silk blends, won't give that bulky feeling that you get with heavy textured fabrics. And fabrics in medium shades of color will flatter your skin and hair as well as your figure.

ITEM: Make mending before laundering a household rule. A sewing basket in the laundry area is an excellent reminder and handy for quick repairs.

ITEM: The large fern family is versatile. Attractive with any decorative style, they're also fine for hanging baskets. These popular house plants should be kept in porous clay pots to guard their roots against too much moisture. They do well at moderate temperature — not over 75 degrees — and grow nicely in semi-sunny or shaded areas.

ITEM: When you shop for colored sheets and pillowcases, look for a label that states "colorfast" or "vat-dyed." These terms mean that fabrics will hold their color and can be laundered with other white household items.

GARDENING TIPS

Your Garden . . . Day by Day

FROM THE ARLINGTON HEIGHTS GARDEN CLUB

by MARY B. GOOD

January 5

If you're "celebrating the New Year on a budget," ask the Arlington Heights Garden Clubbers how to do it. They just won a blue ribbon from the Garden Club of Illinois' "Holiday Splendor" for an entry in a class by that name.

January 6

With proper care holiday plants like cyclamen, azalea and Christmas begonia can be coaxed to bloom again next year. Write to us at Box 362, Arlington Heights, for details.

January 7

A Gardening Tip worth repeating: Remove snow from shrubs promptly. A blanket of snow does no harm to hardy plants, unless it is a heavy, wet snow or turns icy. Then its weight can snap overloaded branches or split entire plants at a branch crotch, sometimes ruining beautiful specimens permanently.

January 8

Broaden your houseplant horizons. The aphelandra is a beautiful and exotic plant. The brilliant yellow spikes and "zebra striped" leaves make it a standout.

January 9

Better to use sand or cinders to remove ice and snow from walks. Salt has a detrimental effect on grass, plants and even Fido, the trusty canine.

January 10

No snowblower? Then get out the paraffin and melt a little wax on your snow shovel. Voila! Snow won't stick to it!

January 11

New catalogues make for good reading these cold winter nights. Remember that the new varieties sell out first.

Study Merger of Harper Maine School Districts

The board of William Rainey Harper College has been asked to consider the addition of the Maine Township High School District to Harper College District.

Dr. Robert Lahti, college president, has presented an analysis to board members of the educational and administrative feasibility of such a merger and the possiblity of development of a second campus to serve the 32 square miles of the Maine Township District.

Harper College District 512 serves the townships of Palatine, Wheeling, Elk Grove and Schaumburg. A petition by Barrington Township for annexation to the Harper District is expected to be approved this month by the state junior college board.

The addition of Maine Township District, which serves Des Plaines, Park Ridge, Glenview, Harwood Heights, Morton Grove, Niles, Norridge and unincorporated areas in the township would, according to the growing population trends of the township, necessitate an accelerated building program and the possibility of a second campus.

IN A COMPARISON of the Harper and Maine districts, Dr. Lahti pointed out that the ratio and type of industrial development of the two districts is similar as are the social and economic characteristics and the levels of education. The percentages of high school seniors attending two- and four-year higher educational institutions also are comparable.

He further reported that both areas "will be predominantly residential when fully developed although the population density per square mile of Maine Township is more advanced than most of the Harper College District."

Comparative projected enrollment figures for Junior College District 512 (which includes high school Districts 214 and 211), Barrington High School District 224, and Maine Township District 207 are as follows:

The 1966-67 total high school enrollment of District 214 is 10,784 and of District 211, it is 4,201, for a combined total of 14,985. The projected enrollment in 10 years is 20,539 for District 214 and 10,187 for District 211, a total of 30,726 — or more than double the present enrollment.

Projected enrollment for the Barrington high school district for 1966-67 is 1,834, and for 1974-75, 2,264.

Maine Township District has a 1966-67 enrollment of 9,253 and a projected enrollment in a decade of 13,773.

THE PROJECTED enrollment growth for all four high school districts is the reason why the report suggests the need for a second campus, to adequately service an estimated 29 per cent of 46,763 students, or over 13,560 high school graduates expected to enroll in the local junior college within 10 years.

According to Dr. Lahti the most significant questions raised in considering the annexations are: 1. Do the majority of residents in the Maine Township district want a two-year college? 2. The degree of unity that would develop if the districts were to be joined; 3. The willingness of a substantial majority of voters of each district to recognize the need for and to support a first-rate, two-year college; 4. Do the voters of each district desire and wil' they support a one- or a two-campus program?

The report recommended that if the citizens of each district "become more serious about annexation, their representatives should explore the proposal in greater detail and reach agreement on questions posed in the report to prevent misunderstandings at a later date" should the merger take place.

Cite Improvements As Good Investment

In an inflationary period, a top investment for the family is home improvement. You put in relatively low-value dollars and, due to inflation, they grow with the years.

Money is available for home improvements, too, suggests John Concord, consultant to Masonite Corp., who offered these suggestions:

1. Invest some savings in your home.

2. Save from income to buy materials which you can put up yourself at no cost for labor. This way you pay no interest for borrowed money and you add "sweat equity."

3. Borrow necessary funds from your insurance company, bank or savings and loan association. Repay the loan from income. (O

Illinois Income Is High by Comparison

Although government costs are steadily rising, Illinois is maintaining its reputation as a low tax, high income state, Michael J. Howlett, state auditor of public accounts, said Tuesday.

Howlett said Illinoisans have a higher personal income than most other Americans but spend less of their income dollar for state government services.

"The Survey of Current Business released by the U.S. Dept. of Commerce last August found the per capita personal income of the people of Illinois in the calendar year 1965 was $3,280," said Howlett.

"Per capita personal income was higher in only three other states — $3,401 in Connecticut, $3,392 in Delaware and $3,311 in Nevada. We were in fourth place among the 50 states.

"BUT THE commerce department's late summary 'State Tax Collections in 1966' showed Illinois in the lowest fifth among the states in state tax revenue, figured on a per capita basis.

"State tax revenue per capita in Illinois in fiscal 1966 was $127.33. In only nine other states was it lower — Mississippi, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Ohio, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia. In 40 states the per capita state tax revenue was higher than in Illinois.

"We do not have a state income tax, although every state which touches our borders has one. No other state has a lower gasoline tax than we do, and only five others are as low as we."

Howlett said local government in Illinois is more than four times as large as state government, but is not as tightly audited. He advocates a public money accounting code for Illinois, under which auditing of local governments at every level by professional accountants would be mandatory. (A15

Cut Down Heating And Cooling Bills

If you find that winter fuel bills take a big bite out of your household budget, and that air-conditioning drives your electricity bills sky high in the summer, give a thought to the money you could save on heating and cooling, with storm windows and doors.

According to scientists, air always moves from warm to cold. For example, in the winter, the warm air in your house tends to escape into the outdoors, while in the summer, just the opposite happens.

Storm doors and windows, installed on the outside over your regular doors and windows, provide insulating by forming a partial vacuum. This vacuum keeps the warm or cool air in your house from escaping so rapidly, thus reducing the cost of keeping your home at a comfortable temperature year round.

Storm windows also help prevent condensation from forming on the glass—a common wintertime problem when only one window is used.

A thinner, stronger safety glass, tempered by a new air cushion manufacturing process can now provide completely safe storm doors for the home.

A new super-strong glass, only one-eighth-inch thick, is said to be the flattest tempered safety glass and to have the best optical properties of any product available by mass production methods.

Used in aluminum storm doors, this safety glass not only provides adequate insulation, but also protection against serious injury.

Safety glass is many times stronger under impact than ordinary glass of the same thickness. It resists breaking under normal impact, long term loads and thermal stress. Should it break under heavy impact, it crumbles into small granular fragments without rough edges, rather than large, jagged pieces.

Storm doors of aluminum and safety glass will be giving an added measure of safety and comfort to an increasing number of homes in the future. (O

The Organized Potpourri— That's Our Illinois House

By EUGENE F. SCHLICKMAN
State Representative
3rd House District

There are many kinds of state legislators.

Their interests, activities and aims are about as varied as their backgrounds.

During the last session, one-third of the 177 House members were lawyers. Insurance and real estate brokers constituted the second largest occupational group. After them came farmers, business executives, city and county employes, educators, housewives, and so on, including even an art dealer.

A LEGISLATOR'S occupational background will certainly play a major role in determining how he will vote on certain issues. For example, it's difficult to imagine an attorney voting for a bill to allow real estate brokers to handle even the routine legal aspects of a real estate transaction. Nor would a real estate broker be expected to vote for a bill that would regulate the sale of homes to minority groups.

But on the vast majority of bills introduced into the legislature the individual legislator has no specialized knowledge, and he is guided by his own natural intelligence, attitudes and intuition.

Certainly, he will be influenced by allegiances and antogonisms he has developed within the legislature.

FINALLY, HE will be susceptible to lobbying by special interest groups.

Aside from occupational backgrounds, legislators can be classified in many ways.

Some legislators are issue-oriented. Political philosophy is their bread and butter. In the main, they are from the suburbs.

And then there are the legislators who are most concerned with local improvements and material gains for their constituency. Some downstate legislators epitomize this group. They are more likely to be found operating a license plate service than visiting with voters about the merits of branch banking.

CHICAGO legislators defy generalizations. Some of them are entrenched liberals and others are everlasting conservatives. Some of them would make of their city an independent state; others would prefer to see it subjugated to serfdom. Some of them adhere fanatically to party discipline; others are known to have sold out their party. Between these extremes will be found varying shades of belief, loyalty and performance.

There are bad legislators, and there are good legislators. Some would rather give their money away to avoid the slightest hint of suspicion; others have been quite adept at improving their financial situations.

SOME LEGISLATORS look upon the legislative process as a way for bringing about a better State. They see the system as a means to an end.

Others look upon the legislature as an end in itself. They revel in the politics of it. A committee chairmanship is more important to them than the sponsorship of legislation.

Some legislators go to Springfield to work, and they don't find the conditions conducive to putting in a solid day's work. Their offices are the desks in the House chambers. They must open their own mail — running into thousands of pieces — or let it go unanswered. (A few legislators will take it back home and rely upon volunteer help.)

Attempting to read, digest and analyze every bill soon becomes a frustrating task to the conscientious lawmaker, and some may abandon the practice completely, relying on others for their guidance.

Eventually, they may find the sessions a bore, but look forward to the evening entertainment and gaiety.

Nationally, the Illinois House is subject to ridicule. Charges of corrupt legislators have been made and publicized — but, alas, no convictions. And who does not recall the picture of the dunce holding the clock's arm back to prevent adjournment of the legislature?

BUT DESPITE its shortcomings, the Illinois House has produced some giants — from the Abraham Lincolns and Stephen Douglases of the 19th Century to the Richard J. Daleys and W. Russell Arringtons of this era.

To tell the truth, Illinois legislators are no better and no worse than we, their constituency.

Modern Etiquette

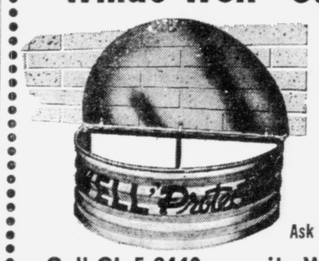

Q. Do you think a person is always obligated to give a specific excuse when he is compelled to turn down an invitation?

A. Although not exactly an obligation, still a good, logical excuse does have a way of softening a refusal of this kind.

Q. When women already seated at a luncheon table are introduced to one another, do they shake hands seated, when it is convenient to do so?

A. No; they should merely bow. It is much too awkward to reach across a table or across someone else to shake hands.

Mary O'Leary

The holiday season has kept local residents hopping the past two weeks. Merry Christmases gave way to Happy New Years and this week finds Sidelighters in the throes of their first attempts to keep their New Year's resolutions.

Before I forget, I'd like to take this opportunity to wish all a 1967 that will be the best year ever.

Home to celebrate the holidays with his family was Jim Jedd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Jedd, 108 S. Brighton. Jim is currently attending the school of medicine at the University of St. Louis. Also visiting the Jedds were Mrs. Jedd's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. Zale.

MR. AND MRS. Alfred Wilcox, 210 Brighton, had an old-fashioned Christmas dinner and get-together for a group of "friendly Brightoners." Included in the celebration were the Sidney Rosenfeld, Gordon Zwissler and the Fay Hamilton families, and Mr. and Mrs. George Schillinger, former Stonegate residents who were in for the holidays from Ridgewood, N.J.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Everhart, 537 Pine, spent the holidays pretty much at home, with their college son and daughter home with them. Larry came in from Cornell College in Iowa and Ellen arrived from the College of Wooster. Also visiting for the holidays was Mrs. Everhart's father, H. W. Lindeman from Columbus, Ohio.

New Year's Eve called for family celebrations for the Everhart family. They greeted the new year with the P. O. Sandik family in Glenview. Part of the family festivities included a play put on by the younger children of the two families.

Cocktails were served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Peak, 1104 W. Sigwalt, to six couples before the group set out for Itasac Country Club, where they welcomed the new year. Included among their guests were the Kurt Gentrys, Ted Mendls, Jerry Jedds, Max Brines, Bill Wheelers and the Gerry Carrolls.

CHRISTMAS guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Glorch were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Loppacker, and aunt, Mrs. I. Plog, all from New Jersey.

Sharon, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Perry, 504 Beverly, and her husband, Larry Deem, came from Neenah, Wis. to spend Christmas at the Perry home and then proceeded to Ohio to spend New Year's with Larry's family.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Brandenberg, 615 S. Lincoln Lane, celebrated the new year with a party at their home for 20 guests.

Also welcoming the new year with a party were Mr. and Mrs. Mickey McGuire, 745 S. Beverly Lane. Their open house was also attended by 20 guests. (A

THE ACCEPTED INFLUENCE IN THE NORTHWEST SUBURBS

More Suburban Youth Commissions Needed?

More, not fewer, youth groups are needed in the northwest suburbs, said Joe Giunta of the Community Services Division of the Illinois Youth Commission (IYC).

Giunta, whose offices are in Rolling Meadows was asked what he thought of possible consolidation of youth groups along township lies. Such consolidation is now being discussed in Palatine Township.

Each of the existing commissions in the township now has its own function, he said. One of the township commission's functions should be to coordinate work done by village commissions.

"WE NEED every youth commission we can get," Giunta said. He added that he did not think consolidation would aid the local work done by IYC. He said he does not worry about duplication of services.

"Both (village and township levels) are doing a good job. Both should be encouraged to continue working in their own way," he said.

Palatine Township, like others, needs more youth groups, Giunta said. "Every organization should have a juvenile committee," he said.

Palatine village's commission is doing a good job, he said, but they need township help.

"I WOULD not encourage it (consolidation)," Giunta concluded.

Paul Jung, principal of Jane Adams school and chairman of the Palatine Township youth commission, said the primary reason he and others are discussing consolidation is to avoid duplication of services.

A committee of three members from each existing commission is studying the proposed change.

Jung said existing groups might be concerned about some of their functions being dropped if there is consolidation.

"It must be mutual if a merger is to work," he said.

The Rev. Glenn G. Gumm, head of the Palatine village youth commission, said that township and village groups are working together now, but he added that consolidation might bring about more preventative measures throughout the township.

HE IS EAGER to see consolidation because of its "great advantages," he said.

"There's absolutely no proposal yet (for consolidation)," he said. "We don't even know if there's going to be a merger. We are just having conversations on it."

The Rev. Mr. Gumm said there is now "the best rapport between the groups."

Gilbert To Urge Delay In Arlington Renewal

Indefinite sidetracking of a $2.5 million Arlington High School remodeling project will be recommended at the school board's 7:30 p.m. meeting Monday by Supt. Edward H. Gilbert.

Dr. Gilbert told a board committee meeting Tuesday that he thinks only Arlington's most pressing need—improved girls' physical education facilities—should be added now.

DR. GILBERT also said he plans Monday to repeat his recommendation that no changes be made in the south Arlington High attendance boundaries when the sixth high school opens.

The firmness on the boundary recommendations should be welcome to residents between Central Road and Fairview—an area considered likely to be assigned to Forest View High School if the south Arlington High boundaries were changed.

School board president Hal Armstrong suggested taking a look at the south Arlington boundaries at a December board meeting at which district-wide boundaries for 1968-69—the year that Hersey High School opens—were presented.

The administration-approved plan would leave Arlington High at better than 2,500—about 300 students above capacity—for several years.

Wheeling High School also will be crowded under the proposed boundary arrangement. In 1967-68 its student population will be 3,157. But opening of Hersey, the district's sixth high school, in 1968 will drop Wheeling's student count to 2,136.

The staff also has tried out a number of boundary plans—figuring the effect on Arlington and Forest View, and on the transferred students if the south Arlington High boundary were pegged on Rockwell Street or Fairview, or gerrymandered north or south from there.

DR. GILBERT told the board Tuesday, that he will still stay with the original boundary recommendation. Changes would have eased the load at Arlington High, he agreed, but added he felt the changes would be to the educational disadvantage of the transferred students.

The District 214 superintendent told the school board that adding the physical education stations to Arlington High will correct only the most pressing of some 14 substandard features of that building.

But the gym additions—estimated at $400,000—van be financed through next year's regular building fund.

The full $2.5 million remodeling could be financed only through a referendum. Gilbert told the school board Tuesday that with a seventh high school needed by 1971, he felt it unwise to try for approval of the Arlington project now.

An addition to the Slichenmyer Administration Center, also will be sought during the coming year, the board was told.

THE PROJECT, estimated to cost between $150,000 and $200,000, also can be financed through the regular building fund, according to Director of Business Services Francis Coleman.

Another start—only planning District 214's seventh high school—also will take place this year, the superintendent said.

If the school district decides it needs to open the seventh school in 1970-71—a decision not yet made—a bond referendum will have to be presented to the voters in January or February of 1968.

Growth, Curriculum to Be Among Schools' Challenges

High School District 214 Supt. Edward H. Gilbert sees 1967 as a year of challenge.

In the coming year the school district will put its okay on new attendance boundaries, see construction started on its sixth high school and decide when it needs a seventh 2,500-pupil building.

The district must also weigh the need of improving current buildings, deciding whether to remodel Arlington High School now or after the pupil population spiral eases. Upgrading other classrooms as curriculum needs require will also be planned.

Decisions on growth problems are no new thing to District 214. Dr. Gilbert points out that it will probably be 1974 or 1976 before the district — and its taxpayers — will feel things ease.

AN EQUAL NEED, in Dr. Gilbert's eyes, is for continued curriculum improvement.

"The basic challenge this district faces is to continue the quality of our educational program and effect improvement in it to the extent our capabilities will permit," he told Paddock Publications Friday.

These improvements primarily should fall in two categories:

—In providing an "equal opportunity" for all high school students, particularly in areas of special education needs.

—Putting more emphasis on acquiring vocational skills.

"I would like to see our curriculum make it possible for every youngster who finishes school to have a marketable skill," the new superintendent says.

THE HIGH school should not provide full career training — but should provide entry-level job training, he believes. He classes the academic skills that qualify a graduate for college as such entry-level training.

"Realistically what I would see in the future is an increasing number of students whose backgrounds will include industrial arts, business education and the like," the superintendent adds.

Broadening the program so that more students can take vocational courses does not necessarily mean that all skills classes must be taught at every high school, in Gilbert's opinion.

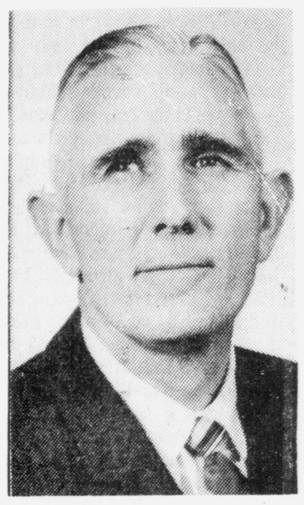

He thinks the school district—as a matter of economics—will have to permit vocational specialization in some high schools and allow interested youngsters to transfer there.

Lengthening the school day may also be necessary, if college-bound students are to work vocational courses in, he says.

STAFFING A broader program will be a challenge too, the superintendent says.

"We face a continuing problem of retaining and securing teachers," Dr. Gilbert says. It is a problem, he adds, that is intensified by the development of junior college programs in Illinois and by the growing specialization of education.

Reading experts, social workers, psychologists, electronics teachers and a host of help-the-handicapped specialties are common personnel needs in school systems now, he pointed out. (ACME

Late Hospital Bills Stir Township Board

Unpaid hospital bills became a hot subject at Tuesday's meeting of the Wheeling Township Board of Auditors.

The bills — totaling nearly $6,000 — were received by Township Supervisor Albert C. Peters from Northwest Community Hospital in November.

Peters plans to draft a policy concerning township payment of medical bills incurred by indigent persons. The policy will then be submitted to the auditors and hospital officials for review.

AT THE MEETING Peters told the auditors that the bills he had received were "fairly old obligations — six weeks or older."

He said, "It has been our policy that if an organization such as a hospital took patients in — and they couldn't pay — the hospital should make an application for aid within five days of their admittance."

THIS procedure, Peters asserted, was used by all other hospitals.

"The township has to have an application on file before paying bills," he explained.

None of the bills sent by Northwest Community were for persons recorded at the township's welfare office, Peters said.

Hospital Administrator Alan Campbell declared it was the community's obligation to pay the bills.

"THERE HAS been some feeling in past years that the township has tried to find ways of not paying these bills."

Campbell continued, "The fact is that the hospital has no outside source of funds — its only revenue is from patients. If some patients from Wheeling township don't pay, other hospital users will have to cover the expenses."

He said often the hospital didn't know until a week after a patient was dismissed that he was unable to pay his bill.

Other patients were referred to the township office to make application for aid — but apparently never made it, Campbell said.

"WE CAN'T force people to sign the application for assistance," he added, "yet they're our problem."

When asked if the hospital could be supplied with application forms, Peters answered, "It's not advisable. Applications should be completed by the applicant and not a hospital employe." He added that applicants should be interviewed by the township personnel to make sure forms are filled properly.

State statute permits townships to provide medical assistance to residents who cannot otherwise afford the care. In emergencies, township aid also can be extended to persons who have not yet lived in the state a year and in the township 60 days.

AS SUPERVISOR of general assistance, Peters has full authority to decide whether the bills should be paid.

The township budget had allocated about $4,000 for medical aid in 1966. Campbell estimated that Northwest Community could incur from $8,000 to $10,000 worth of care to medically indigent persons in 1967.

Tax-Sharing Proposal Gaining Support

by BOB SETLIK
Staff Writer

In Congress and the statehouses, the sap has started to run in the petrified forest of political ideology.

Nothing more dramatically illustrates this than an idea that has been quietly discussed for years, but first commanded considerable attention when espoused at Harvard University last March by Walter Heller, former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers.

Heller's lectures, just published in a book titled "New Dimensions of Political Economy," put the prestige of the country's most influential economist behind a concept called "tax-sharing."

The time has come for the federal government to give back to the states a proportion of federal tax revenue to use as they see fit, suggested Heller.

HERETOFORE, the federal government has restricted itself largely to offering grants for specific purposes. In 1965-66, 15 per cent of state revenues came from federal aids, tied to specific guidelines and programs.

Few complained during the decade's opening years, when political observers made it a byword that rural-dominated, archaically administered state legislatures could be trusted only with limited responsibility.

Then, the Supreme Court's reapportionment decision opened the way for modernization of state legislatures. The hopes tied to that, coupled with a progressive disillusionment over many Great Society programs, has started the pendulum back.

Heller points out that the federal government, through an efficient tax collection service, and the usurpation of the best revenue sources, has the potential to accumulate a tremendous surplus.

IF DEFENSE spending were to return to the level originally budgeted before full-scale American involvement in Viet Nam, Heller estimates a potential surplus of some $12 billion would occur by fiscal 1969, and nearly $20 billion by fiscal 1970.

"Prosperity gives the national government the affluence and the local governments the effluents," he writes, for it "generates demands for better schools, roads, and parks, for new and better services."

"The growth that confers such a bountiful harvest of revenues on the federal government leaves the states and their subdivisions a bitter harvest of air and water pollution, disappearing green space, and urban rot."

Heller calls for the federal government to distribute two per cent of the income tax base back to the states on a per capita basis, with no strings attached, but hopefully for use in attacking such problems.

He hopes unrestricted aid will spur creativity on the local level, in the form of new ideas and approaches to problems that single-minded federal approaches have failed to effectively engage.

THE STATES have not been as moribund as critics claim, maintains Heller, but have exercised considerable ingenuity in attempting to find revenue.

They have come up against insurmountable barriers. In Illinois, for example, a state income tax has been resisted, and governing bodies have been forced to jack real estate taxes to sky-high levels, or rely on inefficient and often unenforceable personal property taxes.

Citing revenue difficulties on the state level, Republican Donald Rumsfeld, third-term congressman from the northwest suburban 13th district, enthusiastically supports tax-sharing.

SCHLICKMAN

Rumsfeld said he has been speaking in favor of tax-sharing for four years now, since his first term in Congress. Its proponents did not stir much interest until Heller "forced attention" to the proposal, he added.

Rumsfeld believes that solutions to urban-social problems will come "not where the money is, but at which level is best equipped to handle the problem."

"THE FACT IS the funds are available at the federal level . . . but the problems aren't federal. They involve people in a specific place, at a specific time."

The alternative to tax-sharing, he said, is to return to the states revenue sources now claimed by the federal government. Rumsfeld considers it "unrealistic," to hope that the federal government will abdicate its tax rights.

He said the enemies of tax-sharing either will be those who support such a hope or "those who instinctively favor a federal solution to every problem."

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman (R-Arlington Heights) is less enthusiastic about tax-sharing.

"IT'S UNFORTUNATE that the federal government should become a tax collector for the states," said Schlickman. "I would much rather have the federal government reduce its taxes, and have the state governments secure their own."

"If we get into a tax-sharing program in Illinois, it will put off tax reform for a longer period — it will take away the pressure for reform, and also make the states increasingly dependent on the federal government."

"The whole problem is that the federal government has a lot more flexibility than the states," he said. "I think the first objective should be to reform state tax structures so tax sharing won't be necessary."

IN ILLINOIS, the defeat of the revenue article amendment to the state constitution at the polls in November delayed major structural reform for at least four years, since the constitution prohibits a new amendment attempt for that period.

Schlickman believes the current General Assembly will undertake reforms that do not require constitutional amendments.

He looks for the General Assembly to broaden the retailer occupational tax (commonly called the sales tax) so that it applies to some service functions, such as doctors and lawyers. Illinois loses millions in revenue because its retailer occupational tax excludes businesses that deal mainly in services.

Also, he believes the General Assembly will attempt to eliminate earmarking of funds, freeing revenue for use where it is most needed. A surplus in the motor fuel tax fund thus could be used for aiding education or other general corporate purposes.

OTHER glaring loopholes only can be closed through constitutional amendment. A major loophole is the constitutional prohibition on the classification of non-tangible property for taxation purposes.

Assessors rarely tax stocks, bonds, and other non-tangibles, because applying existing property tax rates would almost be confiscatory, so the state loses an immense revenue source for lack of authority to establish a separate classification for these sources of wealth.

RUMSFELD

The question remains whether the pace of reform on the state level is quick enough to meet the increasing demands for revenues. Most of the nation's governors already have decided not to wait, for the Republican governors' conference recently endorsed tax-sharing.

Tax-sharing looks to be a banner part of the Republican program in the coming session of Congress. Party leader Melvin Lair (R-Wisconsin) has stated he foresees a series of votes, as various federal aid programs come up for renewal, to substitute outright grants to the states for federal matching funds.

REP. CHARLES E. Goodell (R-N. Y.) has drafted the tax-sharing proposal that calls for three per cent of the federal income tax receipts to be returned to state and local governments to use as they see fit.

Based on estimated income tax payments for 1967, $1.8 billion would be available for distribution. Poorer states would be eligible to receive a greater proportion of money per capital than richer states.

The Goodell plan calls for distributing 50 per cent of the funds for state purposes, 45 per cent for local use, and five per cent to strengthen state governments.

A DEMOCRATIC proposal prepared by Rep. Henry S. Reuss (D-Wis.) calls for a more generous allotment of federally collected taxes to the states (25 billion over five years). But it is much more restrictive, requiring that states "modernize" their governments, not discriminate in the use of funds, or not ignore urban problems.

Heller, who served under Democrats, has said that the Republican proposal more closely fits his thinking, particularly because it attaches few strings to the outright grants.

Rumsfeld said "some good hearings" are needed to suggest answers to such questions as attaching strings to the grants. He points out, for example, that it may be futile to require state governments to give a certain percentage of the aid to urban areas, since they could cut back on existing state programs to circumvent the requirement.

If the questions are answered, the acceptance of tax-sharing would mark a major change from the course of thinking that has dominated American politics since the New Deal. President Johnson's Great Society perhaps is the most flamboyant example of the emphasis of New Deal-oriented politics on federal solutions to social-economic problems.

The times may be ripe for a change. A Gallup poll published Sunday registered 70 per cent acceptance for tax-sharing, with Democrats and independents being equally favorable as Republicans.

Rumsfeld said the chances of a tax-sharing proposal passing Congress appeared better than in the past, but added that it would have to gain acceptance from the Democratic majority for success. For the first time, Rumsfeld said, he has noticed a "healthy pressure" in favor of the proposal coming from people "who are beginning to notice the unresponsiveness of the federal government to local problems."

THE NEW YEAR BRINGS HOPE FOR THE SICK

Unfortunately there still are some ailments which are presently incurable. Many former killers have been conquered and it is only a matter of time until the rest will be overcome.

Research scientists and pharmaceutical chemists are devoting their lives to this purpose. Meanwhile, each year brings new drugs, that alleviate pain and distress, so that the patient can live as comfortably as possible. As soon as new medicines are released we stock them. Do not despair if any member of your family seems hopelessly sick. Any day, a new discovery may give the needed help.

YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a medicine. Pick up your prescription if shopping nearby, or we will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. May we compound and dispense yours?

Additional Manpower Eased Yule Mail Rush

The growth of Mount Prospect over the past year was dramatically emphasized by the more than five million pieces of mail processed by the village post office through the holiday season.

The latest census, taken in May of 1966, lists the population of Mount Prospect at 30,200, compared to 27,349 in 1964 and 22,945 in 1963.

According to Postmaster Theodore Geocaris, the holiday mail handled during the 1966 Christmas rush was 15 per cent more than last year. He said the greatest increase was in incoming mail with an estimated 180,000 more pieces than received during the 1965 Christmas season and 127,000 additional outgoing pieces.

DESPITE THE far heavier load this season, Geocaris described the local post office as having had "a very good Christmas with everything running smoothly and all pieces delivered by Dec. 24."

He explained that in anticipation of the increased load, 15 additional trained carriers and 15 additional clerks enabled the post office to keep current with each day's mail since it began to get "really heavy" on the 12th of December.

"We prepared for the increase with more distributors and this is why there was no backlog," Geocaris stated, "even though we handled about two million pieces of mail the last week before Christmas. The additional manpower allotted us during the holiday period is the reason all the mail was cleared up on time."

At present the Mount Prospect post office has six openings, due primarily to several employes who will enter the service. Available are positions for four mail carriers, one clerk and one full-time custodian.

MAIL CARRIERS earn $2.64 per hour to start, with periodic increases, 13 days paid vacation a year (with the possibility of earning up to 26 days paid vacation a year), 13 days paid annual sick leave, low cost life insurance, hospitalization, a pension plan, and annual and longevity pay increases. Also, letter carriers are eligible for car allowance and clothing allowance. Minimum age requirement is 18 years.

The full-time custodian position pays a salary of $4,552 per year with periodic increases, 13 days vacation a year, 13 days paid sick leave a year, low cost life insurance, hospitalization and pension plan. The maximum age for applicants is 70 years.

The clerk's position pays the same as the mail carriers and offers the same benefits with the exception of eligibility for car and clothing allowance.

Anyone interested in additional details or who wishes to apply for work can phone 392-2730. (M

Woman Injured In Crash

A Lake Villa woman was admitted to Holy Family Hospital Monday evening with injuries suffered in a three-car collision in Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Wilma Dyson, 33, was taken to the hospital by the Mount Prospect Fire Department ambulance. She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Thomas N. Dyson, 35, of 2103 Lakeview Court, Lake Villa.

THE DYSON vehicle was stopped for a red traffic light at Rand and Kensington roads, police said, when it was struck in the rear by an auto driven by Daniel O. Leaf, 17, of 302 Kenilworth Ave., Prospect Heights, pushing it into the rear of a car driven by Robert T. Hiodey, 20, of Crystal Lake.

Leaf was ticketed by Patrolman Ray Lessner for following too closely.

Mrs. R. G. Jahn, 36, of 420 S. Waterman St., Arlington Heights, suffered similar injuries when her car was struck from behind at Northwest Highway and Route 83 in Mount Prospect Friday afternoon while she was waiting for the traffic light to change.

Driver of the second vehicle was Donald Bachner, 100 MacArthur Road, Mount Prospect, according to a report turned in at police headquarters after the accident. Police were not called to the scene. (M

'Santa Clauses' Vandal Victims

Santa Claus isn't as well liked as some people think he is.

Two Mount Prospect residents told police last week that vandals broke plastic Santas displayed in front of their homes.

William N. Rader, 204 N. Elm St., and Esther Abplanalp, 522 N. Maple St., said the plastic replicas were five feet tall.

MRS. RUTH BROWN of 7 N. Main St., found someone with a pellet gun had shot holes in a window of her home Saturday. She estimated the would cost $30 to replace.

When Joseph R. Smith of Melrose Park stopped his pickup truck at Elmhurst Avenue and Lonnquist Boulevard Sunday afternoon at the urging of a boy standing in the street waving his arms, the vehicle was pelted with eggs and cans thrown by several other youths.

Smith, who reported the incident at the Mount Prospect police station, said the youths then fled in an older model black car. (M

Library Notes

Looking Back— And to the Future

January is traditionally a time of looking both backward and forward, as did the Roman two-faced god, Janus.

So we at the Mount Prospect Public Library remember 1966 as the year in which many things happened for us.

Gifts came to the library from John B. Brennan, Richard A. Biarnesen, William I. DeHuszar, Mrs. Norma Gundersen, C. A. Finch, L. E. Hodges, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Jozwiak, Ben Nerge, Mrs. Craig Olsen, Mrs. F. D. Patterson, Clarence O. Schlaver, Mrs. Irene Sebastian and David Warner.

FRIENDS OF THE Library, reactivated under the leadership of Mrs. Gil Liebenow, began sponsoring a series of book reviews. They also helped with the children's program, and with the summer book sale.

A new system of notifying patrons that the reserve books they'd signed up for had arrived went into effect. Now the library sends postcards, cutting down on days of endless telephoning.

We've added over 150 new college catalogs, and now have an excellent collection. "Young Aoults" shelves were stocked, and they've proven popular.

For the convenience of patrons who'd like to copy material from reference books, or use the copier for their own personal documents, a self-service Docustat was installed. Main advantage — you don't have to wait till a librarian is free.

IN THE children's room, under the leadership of Mrs. Gladys Ackley, book arrangements have been reorganized and upgraded. The Talent Project Development for Children presented a puppet show during Children's Book Week.

Both the regular story hour for pre-schoolers and the Summer Reading Club program showed an increase in children's participation. As a reward, those who completed summer requirements enjoyed a live theater production of "The Canterville Ghost."

Mount Prospect's Junior Women's Club put on the Halloween party and ran the story hour that day. Boy Scout Troop 51 presented the library with a new flag, one which had flown over the capitol in Washington.

Mount Prospect Art League members have loaned pictures to the library for display throughout the year, and the Garden Club of Mount Prospect brought fresh flowers and floral arrangements each month.

Brownies trimmed the Christmas tree in the Children's Room — a gift from all the Girl Scout troops in the village.

WE PARTICIPATED in many civic events — Library Week, with a well-attended open house, the State of Illinois exhibit at Randhurst, and Children's Book Week.

Exhibits shown at the library during 1966 included an American History theme by the Eli Skinner Chapter, D.A.R., a local history exhibit showing early years in Mount Prospect, Campfire Girls and Girl Scout Troop 401 projects, Indian Guide exhibit by father-son tribes taking part in the Northwest Suburban YMCA program, government information supplied by the League of Women Voters, and art exhibits and a dolls-round-the-world display by Mrs. Dolores Haugh.

WHAT'S AHEAD in 1967?

More books and more new friends, we know.

And more hours when we can be of service to you.

Since Jan. 3, the Mount Prospect Public Library has been opening at 9 a.m. each morning. It closes at 9 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, and is open Saturdays from 9 to 5.

This gives you roughly 300 hours more in 1967 to enjoy the library. Why not come in and see us at 14 E. Busse Ave.? It's a good way to start the New Year. (M

One Democrat on Local Slate Doesn't Mean It's 'Rigged'

One way to attract letters to the Fence Post is to have Mr. Weide continue to write local Palatine news.

He doesn't check with the persons he names, has no background or experience, and reports partisan press releases as fact.

For example, he reports that Howard Kutz was one of my "leading supporters" in the June Primary. I sincerely wish he had been, but Kutz did not work for me. (He is known to his friends as an ardent Republican.) Contrary to Weide's report, I did not lead the last United Citizens campaign. It was ably led by Orville Williams and George Nimmo. The U. C. campaign before that was led by Roger Bjorvik, prominent Township Republican leader. I was campaign manager in 1961 for the slate headed by Will Harris, and with Dave Yeats, Erik Skoglund, John Moodie, and Gray Sanborn. Perhaps if Weide would check the Paddock "morgue," he would get about half his facts straight.

UNITED CITIZENS' cardinal principle has been—and remains—that national political parties should not intrude into northwest suburban villages; certainly not in the Village of Palatine. U. C. slatemakers and the membership have never inquired as to the national political affiliation of prospective candidates. It is possible that a United Citizens slate could be made up entirely of Democrats or entirely of Republicans. Unless I am badly mistaken, no United Citizens Village Trustee candidate in the last three elections has been a Democrat!

Fortunately, Mr. Hesse does not speak for most Republicans on this issue. He is still upset because a few of my friends and neighbors, who are normally Republican voters, asked for a Democratic Party ballot in order to support me in a three-cornered race for Democratic Committeeman. He may be chagrined that he lost a few potential votes in his race for State Representative (he was also on the ballot, unopposed, for Republican Committeeman). He does me honor if he thinks that the cross-overs I received affected the outcome of the Assemblyman race. I understand his disappointment, but I don't think he should attempt to use the Republican Party machinery for reasons of personal pique.

MR. MOODIE did not object to my national party affiliation in 1961 when I managed his first successful race for Village Trustee. Nor did he again in 1965, or Mr. Hesse in 1963, object to hard-working United Citizens who voted Democratic in national elections. Through all of the fancy rhetoric, I believe that Mr. Hesse was saying in effect: "If United Citizens effect: "If United Citizens doesn't slate my pal, Moodie, I'll get my G.O.P. organization to support him." Otherwise stated, "The United Citizens is non-partisan so long as it never slates a Democrat." I believe that the vast majority of Palatinians prefers that United Citizens remain non-partisan, period!

Mr. Weide flatters me to suggest that I can control a 23-man Nominating Committee. I wonder what the other 22 would tell him if he should take the trouble to ask. In any event, he has publicized the Hesse-Moodie position that when United Citizens elected Hesse and Moodie (and consistently slated only Republicans in the past) that the Party was good, true and non-partisan. When, in its fourth village election it had the temerity to slate, for the first time, one, sole, hard-working United Citizen who is also a Democrat, they holler "rigged."

Parking Ticket Piques Shopper

To Chief of Police, Palatine Police Department:

If you happened to be one of the unfortunate tax-paying population who found it necessary to transact business in Palatine on December 31, 1966, you would have received one of these tickets for overparking issued by your "too eager beaver parking maids."

It would appear that on such a holiday weekend that an exception or moratorium could have been made, due to an unprecedented rush on the local merchants, who can only benefit by receipts from the population. If you were as alert about observing the mad rush as you were at issuing parking tickets, many people could have been spared this nuisance.

Needless to say, this is the last dollar which I or my family will ever spend in the Village of Palatine. Hope you and the Village Manager enjoy discouraging responsible citizens from spending their dollars in your village. We find ample parking facilities in various other areas close by.

Mrs. George H. Kuhlmann
Palatine, Ill.

Pollution Costs To Face Suburbs

Now that Chicago ranks second among the cities in the amount of air pollution, the suburbs are anxious to join the list.

Many groups in order to save a few dollars in taxes are encouraging the movement of industry to the suburbs.

I predict it won't be long before we all will be "paying through the nose."

Traffic Tangle Solution Costly

I read with interest the Fence Post letter criticizing traffic conditions in downtown Arlington Heights. The writer is absolutely correct in pointing out the problems that exist and will worsen.

As a driver and customer, I support the plea for corrective action, but as a taxpayer I wonder where the village is going to find millions of dollars to build underpasses, elevate or depress railway tracks, install new traffic control systems, and improve thoroughfares. It's easier to say something must be done than it is to find the tax money to get it accomplished.

One thing that puzzles me: traffic policemen used to be stationed at key intersections to help move traffic during evening commuter rush hour. Why were they discontinued?

Joy, Affirmation Keynote of Holiday

The traditional words of joy bombard us from all corners these days. This is a greeting of great significance if we know what we are saying. With a cheery greeting and a friendly hello we are the messengers of peace. Joy to the technological world; joy to the commuter world; joy to the rural world; joy to the industrial world; joy to the grief world; joy to the war-torn world; joy to the racially and ethnically segregated world; joy to our world. This is the world and now is the time in which the shout of joy is sounded.

What do we mean, joy? It is far more than an over-worked word. It is a word of engagement. It means the celebration of who we are, the celebration of our world and time. It means to say, "I think," or "I do," with confidence. It means the recognition and acceptance of self and society. This is the arena of life. Here is where we struggle, now. Here is the place where we are humans; here is the place in which we struggle for justice and now is the time. Joy at Christmas? It means God with us, God affirming us. Now we are called to affirm ourselves.

This is the keynote of Christmas. Persons are released from natural or religious superstitions to be persons. No longer do we depend upon magic to explain nature, we know what happens. No longer do we blame tragedy on fate, we struggle with evil to fi ndanswers. No longer do we depend on religious motions to get us through another week or year, we are self-sufficient. Our joy is an expression of worship already. In joy we lift up our lives and give thanks, celebrate. Sometimes we gather as a body to give common thanks for our humanness, to celebrate our freedom as finite creatures. Joy to the world.

Needy Families Received Gifts

Truly the Spirit of Christmas is in Schaumburg Township. Again this year, through the generous contributions of organizations and individuals, Christmas packages of food, toys and cash were distributed to 10 families in our area.

May everyone be assured that the thoughtfulness of their neighbors has made the Christmas season a brighter one for these families whose needs are so great. To the Community Council and the Schaumburg Junior Woman's Club who coordinated the project, to the Conant High students whose remarkable efforts made possible distribution of food beyond our towns, and to everyone whose participation added to the success, many thanks and a Happy New Year ahead.

Roselle Goals Offered for '67

As a citizen of the Roselle community, I would like to state that I appreciate the kind of progress recorded for this community during 1966 such as:

Business expansion, civic administration, school administration, and Roselle Road improvement.

Likewise, along with other citizens, I feel that consideration should be given in the following areas among others:

—Providing greater opportunities for cultural activities for young and older residents;

—Providing a Manual Arts program for junior high school students (undeniably a much needed program of greatest benefit in every community); and —Developing additional interest of businessmen and public in keeping the "Village of Roses" clean and beautiful.

Cite Assistance To Mental Group

At this blessed time of the year, when the air is filled with giving, we want to express our heartfelt appreciation to all you good people who have been giving all through the year. You gave your Betty Crocker coupons, you gave a bit of your time, but by far the most important, you gave your kindness and understanding.

Because of people like you, mental retardation has lost the stigma that was once attached to it.

May you all have a Blessed New Year.

Retarded Enjoy Brighter Yule

This year, 38 cartons of gifts were collected at my house. On Dec. 16, a newspaper truck left here full of toys and gifts. They were loaded up into a moving van and taken to one of the seven Illinois institute for the mentally retarded. On this date it was assured that every patient would receive $1 a month during the year to buy personal items as well as receive a gift at Christmas. This is the third consecutive year this has been possible.

To the many people who participated in this worthy project, the Brownies, Blue Birds and Scouts, I'd like to say thank you for making my part in this a huge success. I know the patients at the institutions had a happier Christmas. I think yours was, too, just knowing you were helpful.

Many many thanks to: St. Thomas of Villanova Women's Club; Hi-Pal Club; St. Paul United Church of Christ (Evening Women's Guild); Robert Frost School (Mt. Fifth Grader Writes to GI, Tells Support of War Effort

I am a fifth grade teacher at Pleasant Hill School, Palatine. My husband was assigned to a year's tour in Viet Nam, so he had to take a two-week jungle training course in the Panama Canal Zone. He had a three-day leave before going to Viet Nam, and he gave a talk to my class about the jungle.

After he had been assigned to the Fourth Infantry Division, I asked the children to write him a letter for an English assignment.

Following is a copy of one of the letters written by a 10-year-old fifth grader to my husband, Lt. James Slinkard, son of Mrs. Mildred E. Slinkard, 809 E Miner St., Arlington Heights:

"THERE HAS been lots of talk about the war in Viet Nam and especially the men over there fighting in it. If our men weren't there, the Communists would certainly get powerful. I'm sure that you know what you're fighting for and we certainly appreciate it. The war in Viet Nam is the center of all our newscasts at school and on television.

"I hope that it isn't too hard to live there in the jungles of Viet Nam. If you have any doubt as to what you are fighting for, I can tell you in one word — "FREEDOM." The freedom of the United States, or even the world lies in the jungles of Viet Nam. I think that Communism is a bad form of government and we, over here, do not want to live that kind of life, so we are depending on you men to keep our liberty. I am certain that you will not fail.

"Keep up the good spirits. The war will end soon.

"Your friend, Donald Ellis."

'Good Paper' Is Too Big: Reader

Since moving here from St. Louis several months ago, I have been reading the Herald and am pleased with your paper

My only criticism is that it is so large that at times I don't find time to read everything I would like to. Often it is difficult to locate particular articles.

I most enjoy the interesting articles in your women's section, which is always good, and the "Arlington Eye" article by David Hoyt, which I find amusing as well as provocative. You have a good local paper and the want ads are really fabulous. Thank you.

"Religion? How square!"

Some people do make religion seem as if it ought to be put in mothballs.

Does that mean you have to?

Sure you're full of social protest. New ideas. Feelings about integrity and justice and today's values.

So is religion.

And your church or synagogue can become—if you help—the place where the action is—in solving the important problems in the world, in your community, in your life.

Don't knock it. Join it.

Worship this week. And put your Faith to work.

Assign Priest To Guatemala

The Rev. Richard Todd, formerly of Palatine, has been assigned to a mission in Guatemala by his order, the Claretians.

Father Todd is the son of Mrs. Veronica Todd of Palatine. He was educated at St. John Berchmans Grammar School, St. Philip High School, both in Chicago; Loyola University, Los Angeles, and holds a divinity degree from the Catholic University of America.

He has been assigned to the Spanish-speaking apostolate in Chicago and, for the past six years, vocation recruiter for the eastern province of his order. (P

Chaplain Harold B. Selke, captain in the Army 45th Brigade, will speak before the Palatine Lions Club on the Viet Nam war at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Arlington Carousel in Arlington Heights. Library Use Shows 15 Per Cent Hike Book withdrawals are running 15 per cent ahead of a comparable period last year, according to Arthur Curley, Palatine library director.

At the Dec. 28 meeting of the Palatine library board Curley reported that the library collection now totaled 17,312 adult books, 8,373 juvenile books, and 653 records. During December, 176 new cards were issued to Palatine residents, plus two non-resident cards and four non-resident student cards.

THE LIBRARY'S cash balance at the end of December was $16,125.18. December expenditures were $6,348.58. Curley said that, at the rate of present library expenditure, by the end of the April fiscal period library costs should "run to the wire."

The library board approved the expenditure of an added $41 in insurance premiums to bring the coverage on the library building and contents to $282,410. Coverage is less depreciation and less 20 per cent, considering the fact that at least 20 per cent of the books are out of the library at all times.

The board felt that this addition to the coverage was necessary but recommended that other insurance companies be considered before the policy is renewed again in June. (P

Winston Party Line

To all of Winston Park a very prosperous and happy new year . . . and a "newsy" one! If you know about any gala goings-on, give your new reporter a call.

Perhaps the most unique party of the Christmas season was a musicale given by Dick and Hannelore Snyder, 1421 Gloria, and their sons, Hans, and Lonnie. Dick has been teaching the boys piano since each was six years old, and just last year started them on the violin and cello. The musicale, an annual event in the Snyder household, was attended by Mrs. Gladys Peterson, Mrs. Roy Ullrich, Mr. and Mrs. Hatch, Miss Shapin and Bob Hesse.

The paino selections included a prelude by Bach, played by Hans and "Elegy" by Massenet played by Lonnie. Betsy Jicha also played a piano piece and "Chacome" by Bach was performed by Dick on the violin. Then Dick and the boys performed as a trio on piano, cello and violin. Afterward, the guests, who also included the Randy Tobutts, Fred Zajonzes and the James Roberts, sang carols and enjoyed refreshments.

Next year's musicale may herald the Snyder quartet, as Marcus begins his piano lessons this year.

HAVING A December birthday didn't shortchange 7-year-old Carolyn Christopher, 1117 E. Plate. Her parents, Hal and Al Christopher (he's Hal, she's Al) gave her a birthday party with all the trimmings. The guest list included her sister, Jamie, Terry Grace, Kim Hefty and the Fitzmaurice triplets, Beth, Brian and Blake. The Christophers also had Bob and Sandy Jackisch of Cincinnati drop in for a holiday visit this month.

A swingin' time was had by all 11 couples participating in a progressive dinner held Dec. 30 on Sayles and Plate Drives. The evening began with cocktails and hors d'oeuvres at the William Ritters', 1111 Sayles, and then moved for the main course to the Robert Alexanders', 1108 Plate Drive, and to the John McKenricks', 1058 Plate, for dessert and coffee. Contributing to the feast were Arlyn and Jack Pricer, Milly and Bob Mueller, and the McKenricks' daughter and son-in-law, Jennifer and Jim Kline, here on a visit from Dallas. Also included were the Tom Seitzes, the Dave Kings, Bob Greenhills, Tom McGrals and the Al Stauners.

Al and Margaret Stauner live at 1104 Sayles, having moved here from Minneapolis in October. Al is with the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Chicago.

THE FRED DENNIS family is at home at 135 N. Rohlwing Road, after a month's vacation in the south. Pat, Fred and the children, Vicki and Brett, first visited Pat's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Williams in Copperhill, Tenn., and then, after a visit with friends in Atlanta, Ga., went on to spend some time with Fred's father, D. R. Dennis in Lakeland, Fla.

315 Lytle was jumping the day after Christmas, when Mary Lou and Joe Dougherty had a cocktail party for their neighbors and friends. Included in the festivities were the Dan Smearmans, Bill Browns, John Benhams, Jim Rythers, Jim Cramms and the Donald Thompsons. The senior Gallahans, visiting from Washington, attended with the junior Gallahans and the John Millers.

Holiday guests of Shirley and Ed Tehle, 321 Lytle, were Shirley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Bartleson, and her grandmother, Mrs. Jack Harrison, all of Wisconsin. The Tehles and their company also attended the Dougherty party.

DEBBIE AND Donna, daughters of Don and Sonia Spangler, 652 Williams, had a special treat for Christmas when their grandmother, Mrs. Connie Noz, came to visit from Berwyck, Pa. Mrs. Noz, Sonia's mother, stayed with the family until New Year's Day.

Guests at Jackie and Roy Ullrich's, 1444 Dorothy Drive, were treated to some original "parlor" games on Dec. 28. One involved the identification of TV commercials from certain cut outs and captions; another used cut out portions of maps that had to be geographically located. Afterward the guests enjoyed a midnight snack. Barbara and John Carroll, Gloria and Royce Martin, Hal and Al Christopher, Marge and Barlow Cross, and Carol and John Wrend joined in the fun. (P

MOMENTS AFTER she heard herself announced as Illinois' Junior Miss of 1967, Susan Courtney, 17, of Mount Prospect, receives an affectionate hug from her brother, Guy, 13. Susan was named "first lady of youth" in the state pageant held last week at Mill Run Theatre, Niles. At the microphone is Jack Hilton, chairman of the state pageant, who was master of ceremonies.

Prospect's Susan Courtney Named Illinois' Junior Miss

Susan Courtney, 17, a senior at Prospect High School, won the title of Illinois' Junior Miss in the state pageant held last week at Mill Run Theatre, Niles.

Susan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy B. Courtney, 606 S. Pine St., was crowned "first lady of youth" following a week of competition among 28 high school senior girls.

The blue-eyed blonde will now represent Illinois in the America's Junior Miss Pageant at Mobile, Ala., next March.

Besides her title and the right to compete in the national Junior Miss Pageant, Susan received a $2,500 scholarship.

THE MOUNT Prospect Junior Miss was one of four winners in the local pageant sponsored this fall by Paddock Publications. The other Paddock-sponsored girls who competed in the Illinois Pageant were Elizabeth Hughes, Arlington Heights; Kathy Molbeck, Hoffman Estates, and Linda Marshalla, Bloomingdale.

Elizabeth was among the 10 finalists from whom the winner and four runners-up were selected. She also was picked by her fellow contestants as "most popular."

Susan's victory was the second in a row for a Paddock Publications' Junior Miss. Last year Kathy Benysh of Roselle, now a freshman at Northwestern University, was crowned Illinois' Junior Miss of 1966 and finished fourth runner-up in the competition at Mobile last March.

JUDGING IN the Junior Miss competition was on the basis of academic achievement, a judges' interview, poise and appearance, physical fitness and creative talent. Susan's talent performance was an original musical skit about the wives of pioneer heroes Daniel Boone, Paul Bunyan and Davy Crockett.

Active in music and drama at Prospect, Susan has appeared in school talent shows and musicals and is a member of the National Honor Society, Modern Music Masters and National Thespian Society. She has a 4.9 grade average out of a possible 5.

She has been in Girl Scouts, taught swimming at the Northwest Suburban YMCA and helped with the "Y's" swim program for handicapped. (A15

Modern Etiquette

Q. How does a guest know when to begin eating at a dinner?

A. It is generally considered the courteous thing to wait until all the others have been served, either at the beginning of a meal or at the beginning of a new course, before starting to eat. Usually the hostess is the first to begin eating, which gives the others the signal to "dig in."

Q. Since becoming engaged, recently, I have received a number of gifts, of money from my relatives. Am I supposed to share this with my fiance, or does it rightfully belong to me to spend as I wish?

A. Since this money was given in token of your coming marriage, put it into a special account to be spent by both of you for your home.

'Drop-Out Story' Is Next

"The Drop-Out Story" in School District 214, which includes Arlington Heights, will be told by Mrs. H. Louis Schultz at the January Circle meetings of Our Saviour's Lutheran Church Women. What type of young people drop out of school, what causes them to drop out, what happens to them afterwards, and what is being done to help the situation here will be studied.

Meeting times are the following:

CIRCLE I—Monday, Jan. 9, at 8 p.m. Mrs. Neville Quam, 259-0464, is hostess, assisted by Mrs. Adolph Johnson and Mrs. Robert Morgan.

Circle II—Thursday, Jan. 12, at 8 p.m. Mrs. Robert Lane, CL 5-5181, is hostess.

Circle III, Wednesday, Jan. 11, at the church, 9:30 a.m. Mrs. John Truelsen, 259-2333, is hostess, assisted by Mrs. Charles Macaluso.

Circle IV, Wednesday, Jan. 11, at 1 p.m. Mrs. Richard Ekstrand, CL 3-7825, is hostess.

All women of the church and their guests are invited.

Mrs. Cubley Is DAR Hostess

"While Brave Men Die" will be the program topic presented Thursday, Jan. 5, when Mrs. A. G. Cubley speaks to the Eli Skinner Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Hostess for the 1 p.m. meeting will be Mrs. Cubley, 3903 Emersen, Rolling Meadows, defense chairman, who will be speaking on a subject recommended by the DAR National Defense Committee.

"Where the Sports Section?"

Feminine Idiosyncrasies

It takes a lot of sections to cover the news in a growing area like that served by Paddock Publications.

We, too, find it hard to find the sports section now and then, but usually ask the wife, who always seems to enjoy wrapping something in it as soon as the paper arrives.

For the benefit of you suburbanites, look at the index on the front page. You'll discover Part B is always the sports section — B stands for "Best Sports Section Around."

Then, enjoy all of the sections in your local newspaper. Cost of a subscription is surprisingly small.

Notes from Arlington Acres

The Andy Lucases, 419 S. Phelps, are in line for congratulations. They were awarded third place honors in the "Operation Sparkle" Christmas Decorating contest sponsored by the Arlington Heights Garden Club. The prize is a merchandise certificate at a local nursery and will be used to purchase either petunias or fertilizer next spring, depending on whether Fran or Andy does the shopping.

Holiday guests of the Robert Robinsons, 504 S. Prindle, were Gail's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Glendenning of Mexico, N. Y., and her brothers, David of that city, Andy of Toronto, Ont., and sister, Alison, a student at Queens University, Kingston, Ont. Although Gail's mother and a brother had been here before, it was the first visit for the others and they found the lights and Christmas decorations in the Loop well worth the trip to Chicago. A hockey game and finding a genuine Fish and Chip Shop in the city added to their holiday pleasures

The Leonard Travoseks, 533 S. Phelps, enjoy entertaining during the holiday season so much that this year they divided their guest list, which usually numbers about 50, into two groups and hosted buffet suppers on Dec. 22 and 29.

THE JOHN von Bergs, who are new residents of Arlington Acres, were settled in their new home at 428 S. Forrest in time to celebrate Christmas and to welcome as house guest John's mother, who had been in Plattsburgh, N. Y., and stopped to spend a few days before going on to her home in St. Paul.

Charlotte von Berg was introduced to some of her new neighbors Wednesday of last week at an afternoon coffee given for her by Marie Marshall. Guests who enjoyed meeting the newcomer and visiting over coffee were Marj Ashbrook, Isabelle Curtin, Gert Niebuhr, Mary Ellen Evanger, Peggy Yowell, Charlotte Hermanson, Joan Briscoe, Helen Longrie, Norma Cerva, Esther Farina, Vicki Schmidt, Grandma Novy, Margaret Marshall and Susan Marshall Koy.

The Marshalls welcomed 1967 quietly at home baby sitting their 6-month-old granddaughter Margaret Saturday and Sunday while her parents enjoyed two days of skiing at Alpine Lodge near Elkhorn, Wis.

On Monday they drove their younger daughter Margaret back to Madison to resume classes at the graduate school of the University of Wisconsin after the Christmas vacation.

MR. AND MRS. L. Q. Yowell, 441 S. Forrest, were among the area residents who hosted New Year's Eve parties. Almost two dozen of their friends joined L. Q. and Peggy to see the old year out and the new one in.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kremer and their son Gary, 417 S. Prindle, drove to Somerville, N. J., the Wednesday before Christmas to spend the holiday with Bob's mother, Mrs. Lulu Kremer. and to visit with his two brothers. When they returned the middle of last week they brought Grandma Kremer back with them and hope to persuade her to stay awhile.

One of the reasons that Christmas was very merry for Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Munson, daughter Susan and son Mark, 421 S. Prindle, was that the children's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Munson and their great-grandmother, Mrs. Elsie Monroe, were visiting from their home in Manchester, N. H. Between the Christmas and New Year holidays, the Munsons had a more personal event to celebrate—the Dec. 27 anniversary of their wedding. In honor of that event, they and their out-of-town guests dined at Pheasant Run and attended the holiday show there featuring Rosemary Prinz and Jimmy Nelson.

Before the visitors left Tuesday they were shown around the Chicago area, specifically State Street and Michigan Avenue decorated for the holidays.

THE KEN SCHARF family, 528 S. Prindle, enjoyed Christmas more because Ken's mother, Mrs. Lorna Scharf, was able to come from her home in Lake Geneva, Wis., to spend a week with them.

Penny Scharf, who is in her freshman year at Illinois State at Normal, was home during her grandmother's visit but returned to the campus last Monday.

Congratulations go to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shawhan, 532 S. Prindle, who celebrated their silver wedding anniversary Dec. 27.

Kitty Thorstad, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Thorstad, 412 S. Phelps, never lets Christmas interfere with the celebration of her Dec. 27 birthday. This year the 9-year-old invited friends Diane Riley, Virginia White and Meg Butterbaugh for dinner on her big day.

The Thorstad family played happy hosts over the New Year weekend to a favorite aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Starr of Charlevoix, Mich., who stopped over on their way to California.

Michael Roy, son of the David Roys, 425 S. Prindle, was four Dec. 27 and still too snowed by Christmas to give proper consideration to a party for his friends, so the celebration was confined to dinner with his parents and sisters Diane and Denise.

The Roys saw the New Year in by inviting five couples with whom they play bridge to be their guests at a party to welcome 1967.

CATHY CAIN'S eighth birthday Dec. 29 was the occasion for a cake and ice-cream party for her friends Kathy Gotschall, Beth Cushing, Nancy Callard, Rosemarie Irwin, Sandy Burke, Kim Halverson, Patty Glaser and Laurie and Steven Cain.

Happy birthday wishes go to Dale Dassonville, 428 S. Phelps, on his 17th birthday Dec. 27.

Dec. 31 was Dennis Jenko's 17th birthday and to mark the event his girl friend was invited to have dinner with the family at the Jenko home, 440 S. Prindle. After dinner the young people attended a New Year's Eve party at the home of friends, and Dennis was the only surprised guest there when the celebrants added "Happy birthday, dear Dennis" to "Auld Lang Syne."

Dennis's parents, Frank and Betty, were happy to have as a dinner guest on New Year's Day, Mel London of Minneapolis, a long time friend of Frank's.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stoehr, 441 S. Prindle, and former Arlington Acres residents, the Al Mays of Hawthorn Woods, saw the old year out and the new in at the Country Club Theatre where they attended a performance of "Odd Man In" and enjoyed an early morning champagne breakfast.

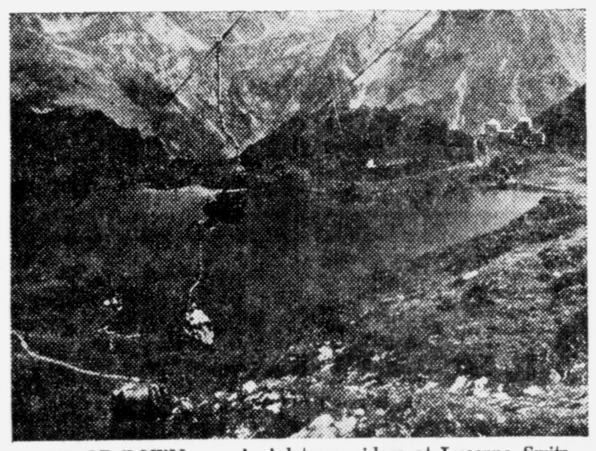

Dick Stoehr with three friends, Mike Dombrow, Tom Marshall and Scott Palette, left after Christmas for Bessemer, Mich., and a week devoted to skiing.

THE CHARLES Miners, 421 S. Gibbons, with their daughter Jan and son Robert, had Christmas dinner in Chicago as guests of their daughter and son-in-law, the William Golsons, and left from there for Miller, Ind., to spend Monday with Arlyn's parents, the Charles Lustgartens and other members of the family.

Other area college students home for the holiday were: Dennis O'Donnell, 405 S. Gibbons, from Purdue, who cut his vacation at home short to fly to Pasadena for the Rose Bowl game; Gary Cook, 525 S. Forrest, University of Wisconsin, who spent part of his vacation on a skiing trip in Wisconsin; Max Brittain Jr., 409 S. Gibbons, who arrived home from Bradley in time to celebrate his Dec. 22 birthday with his family; Elizabeth Retzlaff, 2116 E. Gregory, from Valparaiso University; Sue Oravetz, 533 S. Prindle, Pillsbury Bible College at Owatonna, Minn., who with her parents entertained her pinmate, Jim Peterson of Melvin, Mich., early in the Christmas vacation; Rip Van Sky, 1915 E. Grove, from Western Illinois at Macomb and who has transferred to Judson College, Elgin.

Edward and George Schneider, 424 S. Prindle, came home from Western Illinois; Maureen Beem, 412 S. Waterman, St. Dominick's at St. Charles; Mike Williams, 424 S. Waterman, from Carroll College at Waukesha, Wis.; Jack Christiansen, 428 S. Waterman, and Robert Christiansen, 2123 E. Park, from Northern Illinois, and Dick Rasmussen, 432 S. Waterman, from the University of Illinois at Champaign. (A

SELF ANALYSIS QUIZ

How Is Your Sense Of Humor?

by Jane Sherrod Singer

Psychological studies show little relationship between a person's intelligence and his sense of humor. However, the ability to laugh is a salve for many bumps in life. Laughter leads to a better adjusted person. Get a pencil — and smile while you take this quiz!

1. Make a doodle. Don't think — just doodle.
2. In ten seconds, draw a man.
3. In ten seconds, draw a creature who lives on Mars.
4. If you were going to a masquerade party, which costume would you pick?
   a. Romeo or Juliet costume.
   b. Attire of a child.
   c. Clown's suit.
5. When you tell a story, do you give each detail carefully?
6. Which animal do you think is the most amusing?
   a. kangaroo
   b. monkey
   c. giraffe
7. Do some works of the arts (pictures, ballet, music) make you smile? Even laugh?
8. If you dropped a coin into a water-filled gutter, would you fish it out?
9. Can you laugh when you make an unimportant mistake?
10. Do you often laugh at jokes — even if you don't get the point?

ANSWERS:

1. According to psychologists, angular or straight lines suggest a tense, exacting person. Wavy or circular lines are more likely to be drawn by a person with a sense of humor. Outward spirals indicate an outgoing character while inward spirals tend to be drawn by introspective people.
2. If your man has a smile on his face, you are looking for the humorous side of life. Did you add a hat or buttons? Good, if you did, for you see people as not a threat.
3. Give yourself a good point if your creature from Mars is more or less human. The chief basis of humor is the human being himself. However, your fears are showing if your creature has long teeth, talons or other symbols of aggression.
4. Give yourself a good score if you selected a clown suit. A Romeo or Juliet costume indicates a romantic nature — a child's attire, an unwillingness to grow up.
5. Too much concern for details shows you to be a serious person, rather than fun-loving.
6. People who think monkeys are funny relate to human beings and their predicaments. This would indicate a higher level of humor than if you chose other animals.
7. Many artists have purposely tried to make you laugh in their forms of art.
8. If you would fish out the money, you probably know you would look funny to someone else and can laugh at yourself while doing it.
9. "The only thing worth having in earthly existence is a sense of humor." (Lincoln Steffens)
10. If you too often don't get the point, obviously, your sense of humor is not very sharp.

River Trails Schools Look Ahead

"Nothing sensational" is in the offing in 1967 for the River Trails School District 26, according to Supt. W. L. Harwood.

"We're looking forward to a slow, steady, constructive year as we have had in the past years."

Strengthening of curriculum, increased cooperation between the school district and the River Trails Park District and the probability of a bond referendum are among the things Harwood expects the new year to bring.

"I'd like to keep the elementary reading program moving ahead," Harwood continued. The program in effect for 2½ years, eventually will reduce the need for remedial reading classes," he hopes. "Although we will probably always have some reading problems, we hope to decrease them considerably."

UNDER A JOINT use agreement with the River Trails Park District, Harwood expects further cooperation between the two municipal corporations.

The park district is expected to take over maintenance of the school grounds on March 1, although the school will purchase trees and shrubbery for their property.

School buildings are now being used by the park district for a variety of community programs.

Harwood also expects 1967 to bring further progress in the Special Education program. The district is a member of the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization (NSSEO), which provides classrooms, teachers and facilities for handicapped children in the area.

OF SPECIAL concern, the superintendent noted, will be the implementation of H.B. 1407 due to become effective in September, 1969.

The legislation requires all districts in the state to provide for the needs of all its handicapped children. This, Harwood said, will encourage the banding together of school districts in organizations such as NSSEO in order to better educate the educable mentally handicapped, the perceptually handicapped, those children with visual problems, the deaf, and youngsters with other handicaps.

The River Trails school district, Harwood pointed out, currently has one class for deaf children although there are no deaf youngsters in the district. Harwood said further cooperation of this type among neighboring districts will provide for the needs of all the area handicapped youngsters as demanded under the new statute.

A THOROUGH study of the district's facilities and needs also will be undertaken this year, the superintendent said. In all probability a bond referendum will be presented to the voters in the fall. After next year, "we will be out of housing," Harwood said.

The amount of the referendum, the date, and the proposed sites for new structures have yet to be determined.

The school board has considered additions to the River Trails Junior High School and the Feehanville School as well as putting up a K-6 structure on property bought from the gas company on Wolf between Foundry and Central Roads.

ALSO IN THE works is negotiation for a six acre site next to the driving range at Wolf Road and Euclid Avenue. This site also will be considered for building if the purchase is completed.

A $1.4 million dollar bond referendum, passed in December of 1963, failed to provide the needed facilities. Harwood explained that rising costs of labor and materials prevented the district from doing all they had planned with the authorized funds.

However, the superintendent hopes that the district can maintain the present tax rate and pointed out that the district has been "running in the black" for the past few years. A $2.08 tax per $100 assessed valuation was levied for School District 26 last year while, Harwood said, the rate was $2.15 in 1963.

AN ESTIMATED 2,500 children are expected to be enrolled in the district's schools next year. This is 300 to 400 youngsters over the present school population.

The River Trails district includes the Park View, Euclid, Indian Grove and Feehanville elementary schools and the River Trails Junior High School.

Parts Reported Stolen From Car

Edgar Waldo of 1601 Cottonwood Lane, Mount Prospect, found thieves had made off with his car's battery, alternator, gas and radiator caps—and even the anti-freeze—after trying to start the car over the weekend.

The car was parked behind the apartment building where Waldo lives, police reported.

A battery was stolen from a car driven by Sandra Martin of Libertyville last Saturday. She had parked her car in the Randhurst Center lot, police said.

GREGORIO Gomez, 1024 W. Culierton Ave., Chicago, reported his car stolen from the Bruning Co. lot on W. Central Road last Wednesday afternoon. He had parked the car in the lot when he came to work shortly after 6 a.m.

Doris Miller of 312 N. Windsor Ave., Arlington Heights, inadvertently left her wallet on a sink in a women's restroom at Randhurst Center last Wednesday, but when she returned the wallet, containing credit cards and approximately $20, was gone.

Thieves broke a vent window to steal a car blanket and toy from a car in Randhurst Center lot. The car was owned by Erwin Herz, 319 N. Stratford Lane, Arlington Heights. Herz reported the headliner of the auto was slashed in several places.

Thirty-three bulbs were stolen from an outdoor display at the Edward Beck home, 603 S. School St. (M

What Your Hat Tell About You

By Jane Sherrod Singer

British milliners have evolved a kind of formula that relates the type of hat a woman buys with her personality. This has been compiled over a period of years by reliable observers of human nature. See if you can correctly match the letter of the hats with the number given to the characteristic. Then survey your own choice in hats and perhaps you will have some hints about yourself. (Caution: decide what type of hat you would LIKE to wear if money and/or your own facial features were no issue.)

HAT	PERSONALITY
A. wide brim	1. frivolous, gay
B. flower-petals	2. generous, curious

NO ROSY VIEW by Pinson

"It's hard to see," said Rosie Daisy,
"This streaky view will drive me crazy!"
(She needs a new blade;
For her wiper, first aid—
And a vision that's clear and not hazy!)

YOU MUST SEE CLEARLY TO DRIVE SAFELY

The Safe Winter Driving League presents the following tip for safer winter driving from the National Safety Council: "Don't be a 'peep-hole' driver—clear snow, frost and road-muck off the entire windshield and side and rear windows as well. Replace dead, streaking wiper blades with live, new ones. Make sure headlights, taillights and directional signals are working properly. You must see danger to avoid it."

Motor Club Tests Your Driving IQ

What you don't know can hurt you, especially if it's in the area of driving safety.

The following quiz prepared by the Chicago Motor Club can point up "gaps" in your driving knowledge which you can fill in by studying the correct answers. Score 20 point for each right answer. A score of 100 is excellent; 80, good; 60, fair; 40 or below, poor.

1. If you suddenly find your car on an icy patch, what should you do?
   a. accelerate
   b. slow down quickly
   c. avoid braking
   d. turn wheel back and forth
2. What is the primary advantage of "pumping" your brakes?
   a. it shortens stopping distance
   b. it reduces strain on brake linings
   c. it creates more heat in brake cylinders
   d. it helps prevent skidding
3. When is an icy road likely to be most dangerous?
   a. when the ice is melting
   b. when the temperature is close to zero
   c. when you're the first to drive on it
   d. when the ice is frozen solid
4. If your rear wheels start skidding to the right, which way should you turn your front wheels?
   a. either way, but quickly
   b. right
   c. either way, but slowly
   d. left
5. If steam forms on the inside of your windshield, what's the best thing to do?
   a. stop car and wipe outside of glass with glycerine
   b. open one vent window slightly and turn on defroster
   c. decrease speed until you're going slow enough for steam to disappear
   d. wipe steam off as often as you can as you drive along

ANSWERS: 1-c. Any sudden motion may throw you into a skid. Do not brake, but slow down gradually and be alert for more patches. 2-d. "Pumping" minimizes chances of skidding and locking of wheels, but does not shorten stopping distance. 3-a. Ice is always most slippery at or near freezing point. 4-b Turn wheel in direction of skid to bring car under control, avoid "oversteering," and slow down gradually. 5-b. If this doesn't work or if steam is bad enough, pull well off roadway and clear it away.

Q. Is it proper to send greeting cards, such as anniversary or birthday cards, to friends who are in mourning?

A. If the sentiment is appropriate yes. If the words, express a thought of friendly sympathy or good wishes, it would be all right, but not if the message is gay or humorous.

Auto Use Continues To Grow

Automobile traffic is overwhelmingly the major kind of ground travel generated by airports, shopping centers and industrial plants in some 15 American cities.

A recent study of the urban travel patterns in these representative cities shows that mass transit and taxi cabs account for less than 10 per cent of resident trips to airports, less than 3 per cent of trips to shopping centers, and about 23 per cent of the trips to industrial plants.

THE TREND in recent years has been toward more and more people driving to these three sites—usually located on the outskirts of urban areas. Car pools are unpopular. And, as the number of two and three-car families increases, the trend of one car carrying only one person also grows.

Even though the total volume of traffic may not be large, all three sites generate heavy concentrations of traffic at given times of the day and given seasons of the year. Implications of these travel patterns are obvious. Highways will have to be designed with sufficient capacity to carry travelers safely to and from major traffic-generating locations.

These findings are reported in a new report, "Urban Travel Patterns for Airports, Shopping Centers, and Industrial Plants," NCHRP Report No. 24 published by the Highway Research Board-administered National Cooperative Highway Research Program (NCHRP). (CR

Cold Starts Need Thought

How many times do you jump into your car and hit the ignition with harly a thought as to the exact procedure for starting your car?

If you are the average person, says the Chicago Motor Club-AAA, you never really think about starting your car, you just do it. And this is one of the major causes on zero mornings for not getting started.

TWO THINGS are recommended by the motor club to reduce your no-start mornings—proper starting technique and a little extra battery care.

To start your car on cold mornings, push the gas pedal all the way to the floor and release it half way. Don't grind the starter more than 30 seconds. Make repeated attempts, allowing 30 to 45 seconds between tries.

If the engine floods, shut off the ignition, push the pedal to the floor again and hold it there a minute. Then, with the pedal still on the floor, turn the starter.

This procedure allows any excess gasoline to drain through the manifold. Enough fuel usually remains to give you a proper start.

WARM YOUR engine at an idle. Never race a cold engine because rapid action of internal parts before lubricants are flowing freely will wear parts severely.

For maximum battery efficiency, the motor club suggests a check list:

—Water and electrolyte should cover battery plates at all times. (Your battery must be charged to avoid freezing in cold weather.)

—Have your battery hydrometer-tested every 1,000 miles or every month. A hydrometer will measure the strength of the battery acid, an indicator of the battery's condition.

—Corrosion around battery terminals is a common cause of resistance to the flow of electricity. Use sandpaper to clean battery terminal posts at least three times a year.

—Check the voltage regulator. An overcharged battery will buckle its cover and the sides will bulge. Your battery probably is overcharging if you have to add more than two ounces of water a month.

—WHEN YOU take your car for lubrication, have the service man clean the battery case. Dirt and corrosion around the battery hamper its efficiency. Make sure breather holes in battery cell caps are kept clear.

—Slow city driving can weaken a battery. When stopped in traffic, put the car in neutral and speed up the engine to keep the battery from discharging. This is particularly important in cold months because much of a motorist's driving is done with lights, windshield wipers, defrosters, radio and heater working. (CR

Scholars Drive Best, State Farm Reveals

Better grades and a better driving record go hand in hand—and the nation's largest auto insurer has figures to prove it.

State Farm Mutual, which over the past four years has given better than average young male students—and their families—a 20 per cent discount on their auto insurance, today presented statistics which show a dramatically better accident record by young men who attain better grades.

SOME 68,000 young men compiled the records upon which the statistics are based. They're all full-time students in high schools, colleges or universities and have either a grade average of 3.0 or above (on a 4-point scale); a "B" grade average or better; rank in the upper 20 per cent of their class or are on the dean's list, honor roll or similar scholastic achievement listing.

Here's how they stacked up, compared with other young men in that 16 to 25 age group who did not qualify.

—The "good student" driver averaged 348 car damage claims per year per 1,000 policies in force; the rest of the under-25 age group averaged 498. "Good student" drivers' claims had an average cost of $183; the rest of the group $196.

—In accidents involving injuries, "good student" drivers were involved an average of 23.5 times annually per 1,000 policies in force. Their counterparts had 29.7 such mishaps per 1,000. Average loss on the "good student" drivers was $958; the other drivers in the age group averaged $1,109.

—Combining the two—frequency and cost of accidents—the "good student" driver has a record that is clearly 25 to 30 per cent better than the young men who do not qualify.

STATE FARM Pres. Edward B. Rust said the company was delighted that its theory—advanced four years ago when it first introduced the "Good Student Discount" program—had proven valid. At that time, the company said it was offering the discount not because brighter students were better drivers, but because of studies it had seen which related use of car to performance in the classroom.

State Farm theorized that, in order to get good grades, a student had to spend more time behind the books and less behind the wheel of a car. Less driving meant less exposure to chance of accidents and loss—and thus suggested a lower rate.

President Rust said that because the "performance of these young male 'good student' drivers has been so much better than others in their age group, we are boosting the discount from 20 to 25 per cent wherever possible." (CR

Group To Inspect Traffic Research

A critical eye will be cast upon recent research in traffic surveillance, communication and control under a new project sponsored by the Highway Research Board-administered National Cooperative Highway Research Program (NCHRP).

THE PROJECT WILL BE CONDUCTED by Roy Jorgenson and Associates, a Gaithersburg, Md., highway consulting firm. It calls for analysis of the "state of the art" in research related to some of the techniques for easing traffic flow, as well as the pinpointing of needs for further study of these techniques.

Working under a one-year, $25,000 NCHRP contract, the research team will focus on three other nearly-completed NCHRP projects, evaluating the findings of all research related to the projects. The three topics to be studied are:

—Surveillance methods and ways and means of communicating with drivers,

—Communications between vehicles, and —Means of locating disabled or stopped vehicles and methods of communication with a central location. (CR

Motor Club Joiners Top 10 Million

Membership in motor clubs affiliated with the American Automobile Association has passed the 10-million-member mark, Gerald W. Cavanagh, president of the Chicago Motor Club, the AAA affiliate in this area, announced today.

"The curve of AAA membership has been increasing at an accelerating rate since World War II, when the total was at less than 1½ million," Cavanagh said.

The Chicago Motor Club, on the local level, and the AAA, on the national level, are the only motorists' organizations actively campaigning for better roads, highway safety, fair enforcement methods, sound motoring legislation, proper use of motorists' tax money and improvement of motoring conditions, Cavanagh said. Motor Club Fights Diverting of Tax

As part of its legislative recommendations for 1967, the Chicago Motor Club is urging a constitutional amendment in Illinois to prohibit future diversion of motorists' tax money.

Gerald W. Cavanagh, president of the Chicago Motor Club, said that preventing future use of motorists' taxes for non-highway purposes will require action by Illinois voters at a general election, after the state legislature determines to submit the question to the people.

Before such an amendment can be submitted to Illinois voters for adoption, it will be necessary for both houses of the Illinois legislature to approve the proposal.

IN URGING passage of an anti-diversion amendment, Cavanagh pointed out that the majority of states (28) currently have such constitutional amendments limiting the use of motorists' tax revenue to the costs of collection and administration; construction, reconstruction, repair, maintenance and operation of highways; and control of traffic. He added:

"The revenue derived from taxes paid by motorists—license fees, gasoline taxes, driver licenses and certificates of title—is tremendous. It has been a longstanding policy of the Chicago Motor Club that such special revenue should be used for special services beneficial to persons who pay it.

"It is unfair to tax motorists to raise money for projects or purposes unconnected with their use of automobiles, just as it would be unfair to tax any other special class of the public for the benefit of motorists.

"TODAY, MORE so than ever before, it is essential that motorists' tax money be used exclusively for highway related purposes. Transportation experts predict that there will be 100 million passenger cars by 1980.

That means if we are to keep pace with difficult demands, plans must be made now for more superhighways, parking areas and increased safety measures. Every cent of motorists' tax money will be vitally needed to accomplish these goals." (CR

Revocation Rescinded

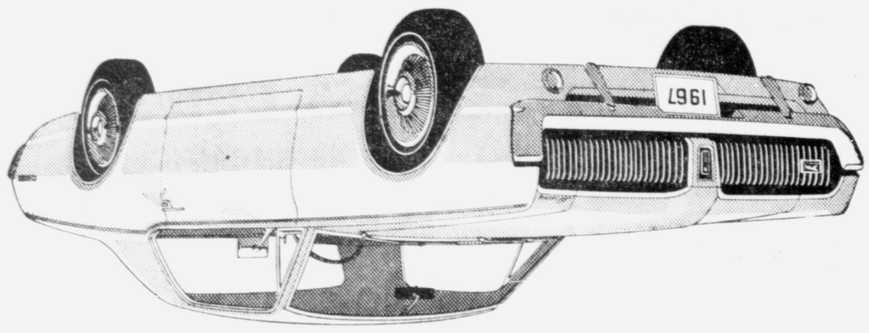

The driver's license division of the office of Illinois Secy. of State Paul Powell recently rescinded revocation of the license of Kenneth E. Glade, 7 N. Wille St., Mount Prospect.

The release from Springfield said action was taken following receipt of information from the Circuit Court, Third Municipal District of Cook County, that a previous report of bond forfeiture on a charge of driving while intoxicated was in error.

The case has been set for trial at a future date. (A15

Tells Teens' Role In March of Dimes

(The following editorial was written by the 1967 March of Dimes teen chairman, Stephanie Simone, 285 Maywood Lane, Hoffman Estates. Stephanie is a senior at Conant High School where she is a member of the National Thespian Society, President of the Russian Club, and a member of the a cappella choir. She is the daughter of the V.P. Simones.)

All too often we teenagers get the wrong kind of publicity. But it must be remembered that it is only the small majority of our age group that brings upon all of us a disrespectful, rowdy reputation. The vast majority of us in our teenage years are striving to improve ourselves . . . to grow into responsible community members.

Many of us here in the Metropolitan Chicago area have been given a wonderful outlet for our energies . . . a useful way to learn to develop our talents. By serving as teen volunteers for the March of Dimes, we are not only helping ourselves to become better human beings, but we are also able to help those birth defect victims who are unable to help themselves.

This year, on Saturday, Jan. 7, we will hold a Blue Crutch Day in every suburban community in Cook, DuPage and Lake counties. To do our part in March of Dimes' fight against birth defects, we will sell miniature blue crutch lapel pins on street corners, at shopping centers, at railroad stations. Regardless of the weather, we will be out to do what we can to build a healthy tomorrow for the children born defective today.

The money that we collect on Blue Crutch Day helps to support the March of Dimes Birth Defects Center at Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital. This March of Dimes Center, like 77 others across the nation, is a real source of hope and health for babies afflicted with more than 1,000 different defects. As we raise more money and learn more about birth defects, children who 10 years ago were given little hope for the future, are leading fulfilling lives.

It is my most sincere hope that we teenagers will be greeted warmly by our communities on Saturday, Jan. 7. Your Blue Crutch Day contribution can do so much good for the child born less than perfect.

Asks Merit System In Auditor Office

Michael J. Howlett, state auditor of public accounts, Monday disclosed he has initiated discussions with Gov. Kerner preliminary to bringing the auditor's office under the personnel code.

He believes introduction of the merit code into the office would help him attract talent of higher quality and protect the professionals already in the office against possible future upheavals of partisan politics.

Five of the employes of the auditor's office have been in state service for 30 years or more. The oldest in seniority is Harold DeSilva, an accountant in the vouchering section, who has been employed 41 years in the office.

THREE employes have been in state service for 33 years — Ruth Wright, a clerk in the accounting division; Catherine O'Connell, a clerk-stenographer in the municipal audit division, and Stella Corcoran, a bookkeeping machine operator.

The auditor's personal secretary, Molly O'Day has been in state government for 30 years.

"The major personnel reduction of the office has been in data processing operations," said Howlett. "Most of the career employes of the office are in those operations, and I think that would be the best place to convert to the personnel code first.

"About 30 positions in the machine division seem suitable for merit service regulation at the start, plus about six in the accounting division, six more in the payroll section and another six in the vouchering section.

"From there, we could gradually spread out until virtually the entire office would be covered by the personnel code.

"WE ARE making studies, compiling lists of job occupations to be classified, and will prepare our plans in close consultation with the governor's office and the department of personnel.

"The auditor's office has been a patronage office for 148 years, with all employes serving at the pleasure of the elected auditor. By the time I leave it, I hope most of the employes, perhaps all of them, will have tenure under the personnel code."

2nd District Fines Told For 1966

Six northwest villages of the second Municipal District of the Circuit Court collected $95,711 in fines from January through November, 1966.

Leader in fines collecged was Arlington Heights with $41,704.-50. Second was Palatine with $18,742.50.

The other four communities were Wheeling, $15,851.50; Rolling Meadows, $6,935; Buffalo Grove, $2,453; and Inverness, $1,092.

The Second Municipal District includes 19 municipalities and two parks and extends from the lake shore as far west a sPalatine Township.

Leader in the entire district for the 11-month period was Skokie with $92,442.50; second was Evanston with $77,637.

Total fine collections for all municipalities was $407,272.

Sherman Hospital Installs Generator

Sherman Hospital in Elgin recently installed a new emergency generator which, when used in conjunction with existing units, can provide the hospital with 75 per cent of its normal power needs if commercial lines should fail.

The new 25,000-watt unit brings the hospital's power to a total of 37,000 watts. This is equivalent to power supplied to 25 homes, said William Stahnke, Sherman's chief building engineer.

Previously, only 40 per cent of the hospital's electrical needs could have been generated. This would have provided power for an elevator, surgical spotlights, hallway lights, exit lights, and some select areas.

ALTHOUGH the hospital area has been increased, the new unit is capable of greatly expanding the distribution of power.

Stahnke said the new unit is smaller in size than those existing at the hospital, but is capable of produicng twice the power. The new generator is diesel powered, and is supercharged with an afterburner. It starts automatically within four seconds after outside power fails.

The unit was installed in a newly constructed addition to the present emergency generator room near the hospital's power house.

Cost of the generator, additional construction, and switching equipment is $93,000, Stahnke said. (B10

Highway Numbers Are Creatures of Logic

Honest, there is a logical order to numbering the nation's Interstate System of highways.

It's a system that requires some study, however, according to the Chicago Motor Club-AAA.

Interstate System numbers generally follow the same pattern as that of the U.S. highways—odd-numbered routes run north and south; even-numbered routes run east and west.

MAJOR ROUTES have one-digit or two-digit numbers with numbers for the longest roads ending in 5 or 0.

The lowest odd numbers are in the West, the highest in the East. I-5, for example, runs north and south along the West Coast from San Diego, Calif., to Bellingham, Wash. I-95 runs along the East Coast from Miami, Fla., to Houlton, Maine.

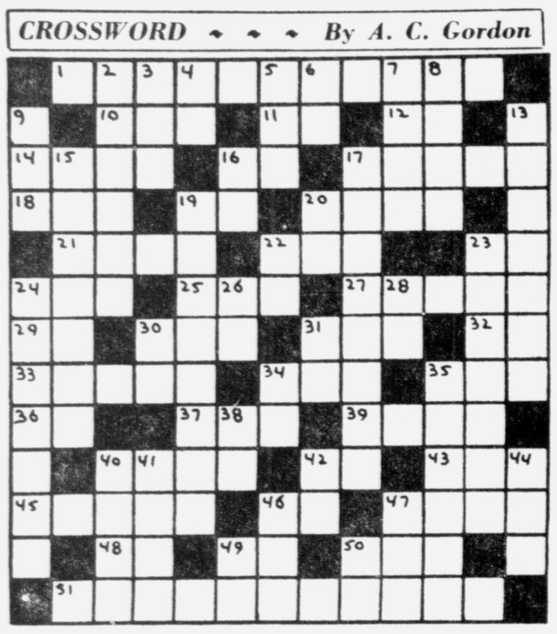

The lowest even numbered routes are in the South and the highest in the North. I-10 extends from Santa Monica, Calif., to Jacksonville, Fla.; I-90 from Seattle, Wash., to Boston, Mass.

INTERSTATE routes numbered in the hundreds are interstate belt (circumfrential) routes around or loops through cities if the first figure is even. For instance, a belt section of I-94 (Illinois Toll Road) would be I-294.

If the main route has belt routes in several different cities within the state, the designation in those cities would be I-294, I-494, I-694 etc. However, two cities on I-94 in different states may have belt routes numbered I-294.

Interstate routes numbered in the hundreds that begin with an odd number are spur routes. The spur routes of I-94 would have an odd number preceding the main route designation, such as I-194 or I-394. These signs will be green rather than the normal red, white and blue markings of the Interstate System, and they will carry the words "Business Loop" or "Business Spur" on them. (CR

Surgeons Museum Opens Door to 1873 Apothecary

FROM HOSTETTERS stomach bitters to Swamp Root, the patent medicines of 1873 are part of the charm of an early American apothecary now open in the Hall of Fame Museum of the International College of Surgeons, 1524 N. Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

All of the nostalgic charm of an early American apothecary has been created with the opening of an 1873 drugstore in the Hall of Fame Museum of the International College of Surgeons, 1524 North Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

It is authentic in every detail—even to the pungent aroma of an old-time pharmacy.

The entire pharmacy, from authentic fixtures and original merchandise to apothecary equipment and prescription records, is from an actual apothecary that served its community in the 1873 era. Fixtures, equipment and merchandise from it were transported practically intact from New York to Chicago.

Lining the shelves of the apothecary are antique apothecary jars and patent-medicines in aromatic splendor. There are such items as Hostetters Stomach Bitters, Belladona plasters, Mrs. Winslow's Syrup, Swamp Root, veterinary drugs, and a line of Lydia Pinkham's—all in original packages containing original ingredients.

PRESAGING today's enlightened era is a unique counter display of "Dr. Calvin Crane's Quaker Remedies," a regular "do-it-yourself" medical kit. Still stocked with original remedies, it lists 36 different illnesses by number, from colds and rheumatism to the "opium and liquor habit." Customers seeking a guaranteed "cure" could simply request the appropriate numbered remedy.

Also presented in antique glass display cases are doctors' needs including medical bags and surgical instruments, some with wooden handles pre-dating the age of sterilization.

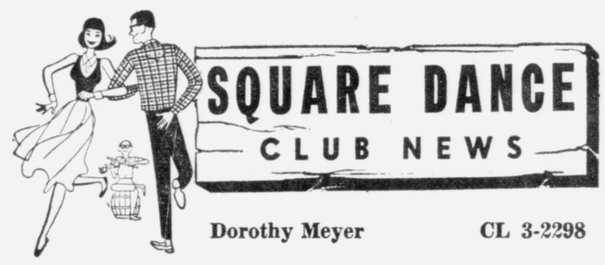

Back in the prescription laboratory stands a "pharmacist" in clothes of the era, studying his record book which bulges with prescriptions filled long ago. Clustered around him are hundreds of pharmaceuticals on shelves and in a myriad of drawers labeled from Althea and Absinth to Indigo and G. Tragac.

The drugs, some almost 100 years old, are still identifiable with their pungent odor contributing to the pharmacy's atmosphere.

In addition, the pharmacy carries other merchandise of the day—children's toys and schoolbooks, stationery, violin strings, and Eastman Kodak products, including an early box camera and film.

Resplendent along one shelf is a display of early decorative oil lamps, which are now collectors' treasures.

The early American apothecary is open to the public at the Hall of Fame Huseum 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., daily except Sunday. (A15

PALATINE SQUARES

A new dance location in the new year is the big item in the Palatiners' first report of 1967. Beginning Jan. 14 the club will meet in the Square Dance Center in Arlington Heights, 1622 N. Rand Road (Route 12).

Other features on the Palatine Squares' program are the same — dancing will continue to be scheduled the second and fourth Saturday nights of each month with callers Jim Stewart and Bob Poyner alternating at the mike, and round dance leaders, Jerry and Dot Daniels, will be part of every session. Square-'em-up time is 8:30, dancing is over at 11:30 and refreshments are served.

Poyner will initiate the 1967 schedule Jan. 14, and a guest caller, Francis Zeller of McCracken, Kan., will share the mike with Jim Stewart at the Jan. 28 session.

Further information about Palatine Squares is available via a call to 824-1238 or 545-9530.

ARLINGTON CENTER

From the Square Dance Center in Arlington Heights comes the information that classes in modern square dancing will begin there tomorrow, Jan. 6 at 8 p.m. and continue weekly for 12 sessions. Arvid Olson, owner of the center, will instruct the classes, and registration will be open for two weeks after Jan. 6. Phone number at the center is 255-4060.

ROUND HOUSE SQUARES

News from the young and growing Bensenville club sounds as enthusiastic as its members are known to be. Even the newest addition, Kevin, Koch, is said to sound like a potential caller and has the vigor of a dedicated do-ci-doer. Born Dec. 21 to club presidents (engineers, in club jargon) Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Koch, Kevin timed his arrival to allow Mom maximum recuperation between dances.

First dance of the new year will be Saturday night, Jan. 7, with Bob Kim squarin' 'em up at 8:30 in Bensenville's Fenton High School. Everyone is welcome to sashay over to the school for a sample of Round House fun any time the club meets. Schedule for the new year continues to be the first and third Saturday nights of every month.

Special events in the coming months include plans for a "Night in the Orient," April 29, and tickets are now available. A sukiyaki dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m., followed by entertainment at 8 o'clock and then, of course, a full evening of square dancing.

Tickets may be ordered by phone from Mrs. Myra Ore, 766-0748, and Mrs. Sylvia Koch, 766-3139, or write Mrs. Ore, 228 Tioga St., Bensenville, Ill., 60106. Tickets are limited, time does fly, and now is not too soon to make April 29 plans.

Modern Etiquette

Q. When a business girl spend a weekend in the home of a good friend, whom she has known for years, is it still absolutely necessary for her to write a bread-and-butter letter?

A. Yes. This is one of the most important indications of good breeding, and no matter how often you visit him or her, that bread-and-butter letter is a "must" each time.

Q. Someone told me that a bride properly has about six months in which to write thank-you notes for wedding gifts received. Is this correct?

A. Indeed not! Good taste and good breeding dictate her acknowledgment of all gifts as soon as possible. Six months is more than five months too long!

Mount Prospect

Over 84 Mount Prospect Blue Birds, Camp Fire Girls, Junior Hi and Horizon Club girls went to McCormick Place Saturday to see a performance of the Nutcracker Suite. Mrs. Stanley Korecky, the guardian of the WO-WI-DO-KA-KI Fire Maker group took care of all the arrangements for the trip.

The Friendly Little Women Fly Up group girls were kept hopping last month with a "Sing-Along" on Dec. 12, a caroling party on Dec. 17, and a Christmas party on Dec. 19 at which they entertained their mothers and exchanged grab-bag gifts. Mrs. Donald Hecht is guardian of the group of 10 girls. The Friendly Little Women are Vickie Busse, Wendy Hecht, Mary Lessner, Carol Mueller, Jean Peterson, Mara Rautenberg, Linda Schlomann, Kathy Stearns, Laura Stehmeier and Susan Stevens.

Mrs. Klein's Busy Bees Blue Birds have decided to get an early start on plans for their Birthday Dinner in March. The girls plan to devote much of their Jan. 9 meeting to discussion of their skit. According to Mrs. James Heaver, a group chairman for the birthday dinner, the dinner will be held at Old Orchard Country Club on March 7. Each of the eight groups in area 1 will interpret the theme "I Enjoy Being a Girl" through a song, dance or skit.

Girls working on the skit in Mrs. Heaver's group included Barbara Baylis, Michele Bitta, Kim Casciaro, Tracy Gattis, Theresa Green, Judilee Heaver, Kathleen Kay, Kimberly Klein, Cheryl Smith, and Gretchen Teutsch.

THE ACCEPTED INFLUENCE IN THE NORTHWEST SUBURBS

Christmas Trees Serve Birds Well

If you're like many families, the Christmas tree comes down right after New Year's day . . . and that means a disposal problem, said Richard DeLano, Cook County Assistant Farm Adviser.

Many people solve it by making the tree into a feeding station for the birds.

Chunks of suet, crusts of bread and hanging feed bells should make a welcome snack for the flocks of winter visitors, he said.

There's a responsibility though, in starting such a project. Once started, the birds learn to depend on such feeding stations. If such sources of food are allowed to run out because of temporary absence of the bird lover, the results can be unfortunate for the birds.

MANY PEOPLE become so interested in bird watching after setting out a Christmas tree feeder, that they go to a year around bird attracting program, DeLano continued. One of the best ways to start such a program is to follow nature's plan. Plant shrubs that attract the birds.

There are many shrubs that are noteworthy for their ability to draw birds into the area. With some shrubs the attraction is their dense protective branching . . . such as hawthornes. With others it is the attractive fruit or buds that provide winter food, he said.

Among the more inviting trees and shrubs to birds are hawthornes, junipers, apples, mountain ash, snowberry, bush honeysuckle, and vines such as Virginia creeper. Not only do these plants provide food during fall and winter months they also provide excellent nesting sites and cover during the rest of the year.

This winter is a good time to study the garden books and nursery catalogs and become familiar with trees and shrubs that invite birds near the home. Then next spring plant these materials where they will give the most pleasure, added DeLano.

In the meantime, make use of that old Christmas tree to introduce yourself and the children to the satisfaction of becoming acquainted with the variety of birds that live in our suburbs. (RE

Row Houses: Zoning Shenanigans or Boon?

THE WORLD ... of Real Estate

Q—I live in a nice suburb and I want to keep it that way. Now suddenly the town did some sort of shenanigans with the zoning laws and a bunch of row houses are going to go up not far away. That spells slums, as far as I'm concerned, and I want to know how such a thing can happen in this day and age. Look what's happened whatever there are row houses. How can I fight this dreary kind of house going up near me? — M. McM.

A—Row houses are as old as Pompeii and they have not always had a good reputation. During our industrial revolution in this country hundreds of thousands of row houses went up in dull look-alike progression, and most of them still stand. Millions of us live in them and are used to the idea of no side windows and common walls.

ROW HOUSE does not spell slums and never did. Many are quite sumptuous and expensive, and you'd better change your attitude because the row house is coming back with a flourish. The thing is, however, you probably won't recognize them as row houses they'll be so splendidly designed.

It was bound to come—the trend back to the row house. Land is simply vanishing at a rate that makes it more and more difficult to satisfy the wish of every man for a house with land on all four sides of it. Lots have become narrower, and the idea of a window that looks out on a neighbor's wall six feet away becomes slightly ridiculous. Many architects believe that more privacy is to be gained by going right back to the row house concept and starting over. And the ideas they've come up with! Fabulous!

The National Housing Center in Washington, D. C. recently had an exhibition of designs for the Row House Revival" by architects from all over the country. No one in his right mind could imagine these buildings ever becoming slums. Their excitement in color, texture, fresh uses of recesses and projections make them tremendously inviting.

THEY ARE unmistakably row houses, but it comes as a shock when that name is used to describe them, as if they deserve some new term to set them apart as special. I suggest that when your row houses go up you'll feel resentment fall away, and be proud of them as a wonderful new part of your community. Watch them come during these next decades, spilling over cliffs and hills where single houses couldn't go, and around lakes as second homes. They'll sprout up as condominiums too, and make such imaginative use of land that many a home owner will look enviously at them from his four-sided lot.

Q—An aunt died and left me a house in another state. I've never seen it, but I have the deed and it refers to "riparian rights." What does this mean? —Ada G.

A—This gives the owner of the deed the right to use water from a stream, pond, etc. Perhaps the house is on a stream or lake and the riparian rights permit you to fish or draw water for drinking and washing. In some cases, however, riparian rights are given for the use of water nearby, and the house is not actually on the water at all. Certain house owners near Long Island Sound, for example, have riparian rights to use a beach for swimming and boating, even though their property is some blocks away.

Q—MY HUSBAND and I were separated for 20 years and I learned that he died recently. He owned a house I know of, and my sister says it's mine. Is it? We were never divorced or anything. A man in my office where I work says I have a dower right to the house but what's that and what do I do? —Lil G.

A—Dower is the right which a wife has in her husband's estate at his death. It's a right a wife has only if she survives her husband. It's personal to the wife alone and can only be asserted by her. If you want to assert this right, see a lawyer.

Q—I used to sell real estate sort of on my own in Arizona and I never had any trouble. I never had a license and nobody bothered me. Recently I moved to Arkansas and I was going to do it again, in my spare time, but somebody said I better be careful because they're very strict here. I wonder what she meant by that because I don't see anything wrong. Do you think it's all right if I just go ahead?—Alicia U.

A—The penalty for selling real estate without a license in Arizona is simply that you can't sue for your commission. It's only a misdemeanor in Arizona, but if you're caught in Arkansas it's quite a different thing. Not only can't you sue for your commission, but you can be fined from $250 to $1,000 and imprisoned for six months. In New York it's considered a misdemeanor too, but watch out wherever you go. There are very good reasons for licensing real estate brokers and the laws are getting stricter all the time. Why don't you get a license? Tests too tough for you?

Readers are welcome to pose questions concerning real estate to Howard Shonting, Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 277, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60096.)

Illinois Bell Warns On Fake Repairmen

"All Illinois Bell personnel are required to carry proper identification—including a card with their picture on it—and we ask our customers to request to see this before allowing anyone representing the telephone company into their homes," D. R. Legner, Elgin manager, said.

He was citing how best to avoid incidents such as happened recently when a robber posing as a telephone repairman gained entrance to a suburban home and took family valuables.

Legner noted that information about the official identification card is available in the front of the local telephone directory.

He added that in addition to the Illinois Bell identification card—which is laminated in plastic and bears the person's photo—most company personnel also are required to drive the familiar green Illinois Bell vehicles while on the job. So if there is any doubt, he pointed out, just check to see what the person is driving. (RE

IRS Lists Questions, Answers on Taxes

These questions and answers on federal tax matters are provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and published as a public service to taxpayers.

Q. Will the IRS issue state sales tax tables this year?

A. Yes, state sales tax tables will be part of the 1040 instruction booklet. They may be used as a guide for taxpayers who itemize deductions.

The instructions will also have a table on gasoline tax deductions to make it easier for taxpayers to arrive at a proper deduction for this tax. This is the first time such a table has been prepared on gasoline taxes.

Q. I just sold some stock I inherited from my father. How do I determine my profit or loss and whether it was long-term or short-term?

A. Use the fair market value of the stock at the date of the decedent's death as the basis for determining whether you had a gain or loss. If you received more for the stock than its value when you acquired it, for example, then you have a capital gain to report.

If you sold the stock more than six months after your father's death then the gain or loss will be considered long term. Six months or less, will make the transaction a short-term one for tax purposes.

Q. I recently made a payment on back taxes and now I get another bill for the same tax. What's the reason for this?

A. Payments frequently come into our offices that cannot be identified. For this reason all checks for tax payments should have Social Security numbers on them. This will identify the payment with your account.

It also is helpful if you include the notice of payment due when paying such a bill.

Q. I'm just starting a business What should I know about federal taxes?

A. The Revenue Service has a "Mr. Businessman's Kit" which can be obtained from local IRS offices. The IRS also has a publication called "Tax Guide for Small Business," which should be extremely helpful to you. It may be obtained at a cost of 50 cents by writing to your IRS district office or the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington.

Q. Are the tax rates in 1966 the same as they were for 1965?

A. Yes. But Social Security tax rate on self-employment income is higher.

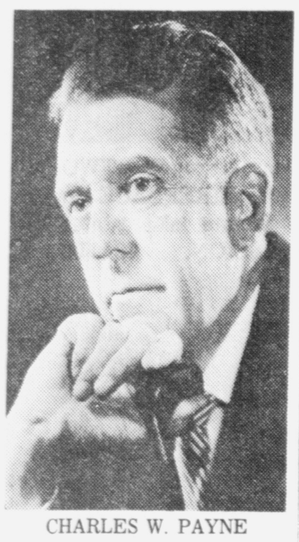

Q. I'm taking a job overseas in January. What do I do about my 1966 return?

A. For taxpayers who are traveling or living abroad on April 15 there is an automatic filing extension until June 15. Interest at the rate of 6 per cent a year is charged, however, on taxes unpaid during the two-month period after April 15.

Before you leave to go overseas, be sure to pick up a copy of IRS publication No. 54, "Tax Guide for U. S. Citizens Abroad." Send a post card to your district director asking for this free booklet. (BB

NIGas Year-End Report Optimistic

Northern Illinois Gas Co. — and its fast-growing service territory — proved to be two of the leading pacemakers of Illinois' rapidly expanding economy in 1966.

The utility brought first-time natural gas service to 53 western Illinois communities, generally located along the Mississippi River, and to an additional 22 communities in the northern quarter of the state. During the year, nearly 36,000 new NI-Gas customers were added, spiraling the company's customer total to 944,000.

But it was in the industrial area that NI-Gas and its territory experienced the most dramatic gains. Although the company's 1966 gross revenues from the sale of gas increased by more than eight per cent over 1965, those derived from sales to industry rose by more than 30 per cent.

MARVIN Chandler, NI-Gas chairman and president, in an address to members of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce in May, referred to a "new spirit of receptivity toward industry that is pervading the state."

Chandler also stated that in 1966 within the utility's territory the use of natural gas air conditioning and natural gas total energy both received big boosts. Air conditioning sales more than doubled those of 1965. The number of total energy systems, which produce all electrical, heating, cooling, lighting and processing requirements from a single source of energy, natural gas, increased substantially. These energy plants are now being used, Chandler said, in schools, hotels, colleges, apartments, shopping centers, office buildings and factories.

As for 1967, Chandler said that NI-Gas expects another banner year because of the continuing economic growth taking place in Illinois.

"We are fortunate to be operating in a thriving state," he said, "and especially in such an economically vibrant area; and as a company, we plan to continue in the vanguard of the new spirit movement in Illinois." (BB

Northwest Symphony Orchestra will play its second concert of the 1966-67 season Sunday Jan. 15, at 3:30 p.m. at Maine Township South High School, 1111 S. Dee Road, Park Ridge.

At this concert Perry Crafton, founder and conductor of the orchestra for the past 15 years, will combine his talent with Alice Faye Downs, piano soloist, in a performance of the Concerto for Piano No. 4 by Ludwig van Beethoven.

Mrs. Downs, originally from the South, moved to the Chicago area three years ago. She has been a featured soloist with many orchestras in the South and Midwest and has appeared in recitals in Washington, D.C., Philadelphia, Chicago and throughout the South.

ALSO ON THE program will be performances of Mendelssohn's overture, "The Fairy Tale of the Beautiful Melusina," and Tschaikowsky's Symphony No. 6 in B Minor ("Pathetique").

Individual tickets may be purchased at the box office or from Mrs. A. G. Denk, 2556 Ballard Road, Des Plaines. Children under 12 will be admitted free.

"Odd Man In," a comedy by Claude Magnier, is playing now at the Country Club Theatre in Old Orchard Country Club, Mount Prospect.

Directed by Norman Rice, the play stars Pat Heider as Jane Maxwell, the wife; Felix Shuman as George Maxwell, the husband, and Ray Belanger as Mervyn Browne, the stranger.

The action begins when Browne wanders into the Maxwell home seeking assistance for himself and his brokendown car and also looking for something to quench his thirst.

BY MISTAKE HE drinks a sleeping potion and drugs himself, falling asleep on the bed in the Maxwell cottage. When Jane Maxwell, also doped, falls onto the bed beside him, her husband finds them both sleeping peacefully and believes the worst.

The play will run through Jan. 29, followed by "Ready When You Are, C.B." which opens Feb. 1.

KICKIN' IT AROUND

BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

Lundstedt, Allen Eye 1,000 Club . .

Membership to an exclusive club awaits two Paddock area basketball standouts.

To be accepted for membership a young man doesn't need a good credit rating or a lengthy list of references. There is no money involved either.

But this club is mighty exclusive. It's so exclusive that there's only one member right now.

However, barring any unforseen developments, they'll open the door for two more members some time in the very near future. Prospect's Tom Lundstedt and Arlington's Steve Allen seem very interested in joining.

You might call it the "1,000 club." To join you must score more than 1,000 points in your varsity basketball career.

The Paddock area has featured some talented performers through the years, but only one boy has ever topped the magic 1,000 mark in his career.

Palatine's Ron Kozlicki, now a starter on the high-scoring Northwestern University outfit, is the all-time scoring leader for the Paddock circulation area that even reaches into DuPage County.

Kozlicki, a 6-7 center as a prep, fired through 1,562 points at Palatine, serving three seasons as a full-time regular with the Pirate varsity.

Ron played in three varsity games as a freshman and scored 13 points. He hit for 334 as a soph, 617 as a junior, and 598 as a senior.

That junior year contribution of 617 points, achieved for a club that advanced into the sectional tourney, still ranks as the finest single season effort in Paddock area history.

A distant second to Kozlicki in the career list is St. Viator grad Chuck Grandt with 939 career markers set over three seasons of varsity scuffling.

Although Grandt currently holds second place in the all-time list and Palatine's John Seehausen is third with 934, Lundstedt should move into the No. 2 spot this weekend as he needs only 12 points to climb past the former St. Viator standout.

Allen stands seventh right now but could go all the way up to No. 5 with a decent night Friday against Maine West, moving ahead of Chuck Close of Arlington and Pat Dunnigan of Forest View.

Both Lundstedt and Allen should have little trouble joining the exclusive 1,000 club.

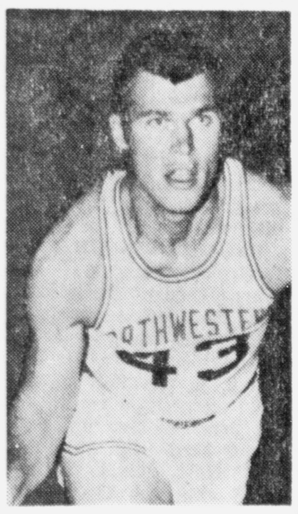

Lundstedt is only a few games away, maybe three at the most, and Allen, who goes after the school career mark Friday evening, should make his bid around the first weekend in February.

The top eight boys on the all-time Paddock area scoring list had the benefit of playing three seasons of varsity competition, something that two of the most famous area performers missed.

George Pomey, a Prospect All-Stater, had 799 in two seasons of varsity play for Dick Kinneman. He didn't arrive at the Foundry Road establishment until his junior year.

Pomey was a starter for two seasons at Grant High before transferring and although it's doubtful if he would have been elevated to varsity status as a plebe at Prospect, he probably would have made the jump as a sophomore.

Bork authored 783 varsity points at Arlington High, also playing only two varsity campaigns under Frank Bohac. He just wasn't ready for a varsity position as a soph, but the slender shooting artist made his presence known over those final two campaigns.

RON KOZLICKI
All-Time Leader

Two Paddock area products earned major letters on the Air Force Academy football team. Fullback Ralph Kaspari, a junior who prepped at Forest View, and end Jim Hogarty, a senior who attended Prospect High, were two of eight Illinois boys gaining Falcon letters. The Air Force finished 4-6 for the season.

Busy Week for Sports Phone . . .

Not since the Arlington Heights American Legion baseball team marched into the World Series has Paddock's special sports telephone (392-2100) been as busy as it was last week.

As the "voice" of the sports phone throughout the holiday tourney week, we had a chance to observe just how popular this special service is for area fans.

The peak periods were between 9:30 and midnight Wednesday evening when the upsets of Arlington and Prospect were first reported, and between 10:00 and midnight on Thursday. The phones never stopped ringing.

There also were hundreds of calls on Friday during the day as fans followed the progress of Prospect in consolation play at Pontiac, and the lines started to light up again at 9:30 Friday night when both the Prospect and St. Viator scores were put on.

The idea for the sports phone service actually began back in the spring of 1965 when St. Viator's unheralded Lions streaked to second place in the state baseball tournament.

At first, we had the calls handled by a girl at the switchboard, but, as you can imagine, this was an arduous task. The installation of the special recorder followed.

When Arlington Heights made its move that summer in American Legion competition, the phone service really took hold with thousands of calls handled for regional play at East Chicago, Ind., and for the World Series in Aberdeen, S. D.

Today, we use the phone for all Paddock area football and basketball games and for other sports events of significance. The acceptance has been gratifying.

There are the problem areas at times — such as unfortunate delays in receiving scores — but we're learning with experience, and we welcome any suggestions on how we could improve this service.

Ten Years Ago This Week . . .

Arlington finished last in the Waukegan Holiday wrestling tournament with three boys gaining third place awards . . . The thirds were picked up by Jerry Bonn at 103 pounds, Ralph Carlino, at 112, and Dean Schneck at heavyweight . . . Pat Harris was fourth at 127. . . The Paddock men's bowling tournament was set for Gunnell's Lanes.

Co-Champions Clash Friday

Knight, Falcon Outfits Unbeaten in Loop Play

by Keith Reinhard

What happens when two basketball squads with unblemished league slates clash in conference competition?

First, one of them emerges no longer in possession of a perfect mark. Secondly, the team remaining unbeaten will have a little more breathing room at the top of the circuit rankings.

One such pairing this weekend has two front runners in the Mid-Suburban league putting their unscathed loop records on the line. But other than the fact that one is destined to tarnish it, little more can be ascertained until the outing has gone in the scorebook.

The host team is Prospect, fresh from a hot finish at the Pontiac holiday tourney. The visitors are Forest View, rising to their greatest heights in conference combat.

THEIR OVERALL marks this year are in stark contrast to one another and historically, one team holds a decisive edge in interschool competition. Even this, however, affords no pregame incite of the eventual outcome.

Last season the Knights and Falcons finished in a dead heat for first in the MSL standings and this Friday they'll revive that dead lock from the very same position it ground to a halt in February of 1966.

The hosts, 2-0 in conference frays, are in the midst of a three-game winning streak after dropping their opening contest at Pontiac by a wide margin.

HIGHLIGHTING the Knight attack is a potent forward line spearheaded by 6-4 Tom Lunstedt, who has progressed to the point in his career at Prospect where nearly every match finds him adding something new to his long list of honors.

An average night for him Friday (22.8 points) will see him vault into second place in the lineup of alltime Paddock area scorers.

For support, Lundstedt has lanky Dave Kingman and quick Mike Mueller, both capable of 20-point outbursts. Although Kingman is still looking for his first 20-plus night, he has averaged 18 during the last three outings and in conference has combined with Lundstedt for a 41-point medium.

MUELLER HAS come back strong after an ankle injury earlier in the season and since the opening game at Pontiac has been pouring them in at a better than 17-point clip.

To feed this deadly threesome, Knight coach Dick Kinneman will go with a couple of juniors who have come a long way since the offset of the season and are now beginning to reap the rewards of varsity experience.

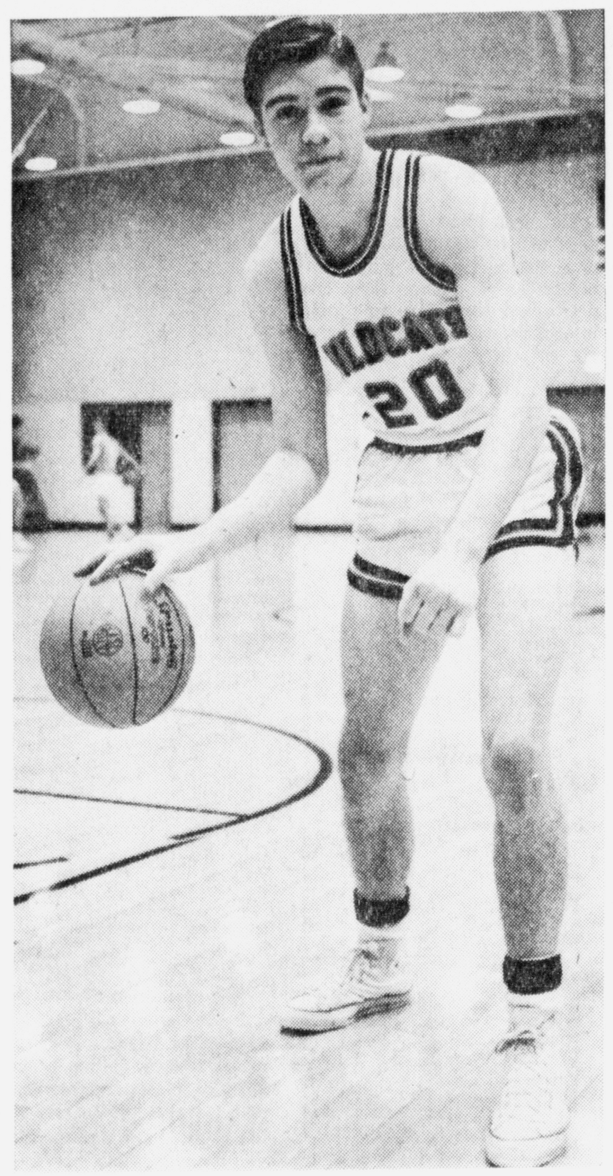

Gary Andrews is the capable Knight signal caller and a potential outside scoring threat as well. Mike Anderson has moved into a starting role handily and against Granite

Cards to Host Warrior Five

Allen Needs Nine Points To Break School Record

by Bob Frisk

There can't be a tie this time.

Arlington and Maine West, the two schools that shared the Mid-Suburban League football crown last fall and tied 14-14 in an October showdown, will square off in basketball Friday evening.

And there has to be a winner in this one, no matter how long it takes, as conference action resumes.

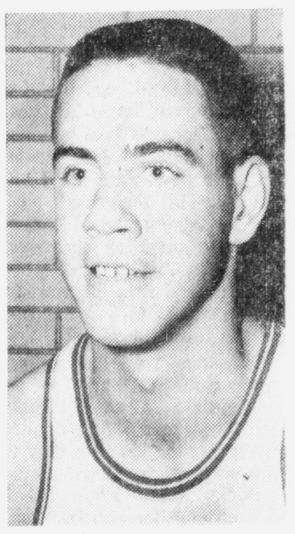

Arlington's once-beaten Cardinals, still riding on top of the league pack with a 3-0 mark, are hoping for a return to the form they flashed before the holiday break.

The Cards took two of three games in the Kankakee tournament, but head man Ted Wissen wasn't satisfied with the overall performance.

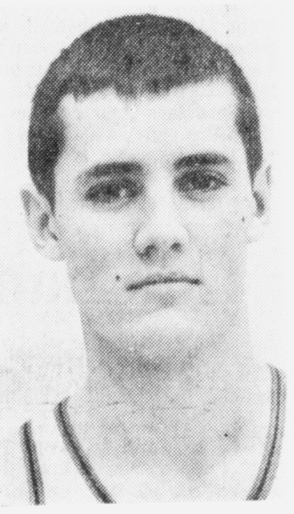

MAINE WEST'S Warriors, looking for that first league victory, are hoping for some consistent play over four quarters, not the hot-and-cold pattern that existed in the first two months of the campaign.

"We're not that bad a club," Warrior coach Gaston Freeman emphasizes, "despite our record (2-5). We've played some good ball at times but just haven't had any luck."

While the battle for team supremacy Friday in the Arlington gymnasium promises to be extremely interesting, there also will be an individual effort to watch.

Arlington's Steve Allen, who took apart the school record book in football with his passing wizardry, goes after an important basketball standard against Maine West.

ALLEN, A 6-3 forward-guard who has played three seasons of varsity basketball, needs only nine points against the Warriors to become the greatest career scorer in Arlington cage annals.

The career mark currently belongs to Chuck Close who popped through 856 points as a varsity performer from 1959 through 1963. Allen owns 848 today following his contribution of 50 points in the Kankakee meet.

The senior marksman hasn't been held below 11 points this season so is a good bet to crack Close's career standard before the home folks Friday.

If Allen scores 15 points against Maine West, he'll climb into the No. 45 position on the all-time Paddock area scoring list, passing Forest View grad Pat Dunnigan who had 862 career markers.

ALTHOUGH Arlington bagged two victories and the third place trophy at Kankakee last week, head man Wissen saw room for improvement in the overall play of the Cardinals.

"We just weren't sharp there," Ted pointed out. "Actually, we seemed to be struggling for the most part until that final half of the third place game.

"I don't know what was wrong, but I hope they're ready Friday. In that loss to Kankakee Westview we just had an exceptionally poor effort. It wasn't so much of what they did to beat us as what we did to beat ourselves."

THE CARDS NOW sport four starters in double figures with Allen still the leader at a 20.2 clip. Terry Townley the clever 5-11 guard, is running second at 12.6 with center Jim Donchess, who had 20 points in the Kankakee finale, third at 10.8.

St. Viator to Battle Two Tourney Champs

by BOB FRISK

Just how tough were the holiday basketball tournaments at Quigley South and Manteno high schools?

St. Viator will find out this weekend. The Lions catch the two tourney champs.

St. Ignatius, an impressive winner over DeLaSalle in the title tussle at Quigley South, will come to town Friday evening, and Marian Catholic of Chicago Heights, the Manteno tourney winner, will host the Lions Saturday.

It's a double dose of Chicagoland Prep League competition for coach Larry Nomellini's outfit, and the assignments are formidable.

ST. IGNATIUS isn't off to a fast start in league scuffling this winter, losing its first two games, but that 55-51 conquest of DeLaSalle opened a few eyes.

Bill Barrett, a 6-4 195-pound senior center, was the big bomber against the Meteors with a 28-point effort, hitting 13 baskets and two free throws.

Barrett had 57 points in three tourney outings with 19 as the Wolves coasted past Stagg in the opener, 93-47; ten in a 57-50 victory over Little Flower; and then his big night against DeLaSalle.

ALTHOUGH Jim Enright lost a brilliant performer by graduation in high-scoring Dennis Stankiewicz, the St. Ignatius coach still was greeted by three returning regulars in Barrett, 6-1 forward Tom Rice, and 5-10 guard Cas Bacinskas.

Rice averaged in double figures in Chicagoland Prep play as a junior and has 28 in two loop outings this winter. Bacinskas, who hit Little Flower with a 24-point explosion in holiday action, has a 17.5 average in Chicagoland firing.

Rounding out the Wolve alignment Friday will be forward Ken Wayte, a 6-3, 190-pound junior, and guard

Former Local Star Moehling in Best Professional Meet

Ed Moehling Jr., former Arlington High School golf star and now pro at Midlothian (Ill.) Country Club, shot a 67 Sunday at Desert Forest Country Club to break the competitive record of the course.

The hot round was good for the $16,000 first prize in the third annual Carefree Match Play Tournament.

Moehling and his partner, Brian Goldsworthy of Phoenix, defeated Chick Evans, professional at Twin Orchard Country Club near Chicago, and Mike Morley of Minot, N.D., 2-up, in the final of the best ball pro-am meet.

Moehling birdied the last two holes of the par 36-36-72 course and finished with five for the day to produce his best round ever and highest payday as a professional golfer. Two strokes were cut off the previous record of the four-year-old course by Moehling's five-under-par score.

Before Moehling's last two birds, entering the final two holes, the match was even. But Ed stroked a six-iron tee shot just 10 inches from the cup and got a deuce on the 172-yard 17th hole. He then slapped in a 25-foot uphill put for a birdie 3 on the 420-yard 18th, assuring the title in field of 32 pro-amateur pairs.

Moehling's other birdies came on the fourth hole, when he sank a 40-foot chip shot, on the eighth, when he holed out on a sand trap shot, and on the 12th when he put a four-iron shot three inches from the cup.

Two Straight Losses

Sad Holiday Season For Falcons' Cagers

The holiday season is a busy time and for many area basketball teams the holidays mean tournament time.

One school that knows this to be true is Forest View and once again the days following Christmas found coach Ken Arneson and his crew busy in the Danville Tourney.

But the fortunes of the Falcons were not as rich as those of last year and in the 1966 competition the Birds failed to win even a single game and were nowhere near their second place finish of '65.

BUCKY JONES
Falcon Leader

The Danville meeting features some of the outstanding schoolboy quintets in the state and Forest View met a strong host Danville team in the opening game. The Falcons played good ball and had only 12 turnovers in the entire game but still came out on the short end of things 71-60.

THE FALCON shooting from the floor was good and even though Danville held an eight point edge at the half the Forest View boys were far from through. In the third period Forest View matched Danville point for point as each squad netted 19. But the effort was too little and Danville picked up an additional three point bulge in the final stanza.

Bob Arnold, the Falcons' sixth man, came in early in the game and did an outstanding job for Arneson. Arnold hit for ten points but his floor play was the outstanding contribution.

Bucky Jones again led the Falcon shooting attack as he tossed in 18 points. Frank Calvello hit for 12 with four points coming on charity efforts.

One point that may have had more significance than it appeared was an early game injury to Howie Brasch. Brasch left the game with an ankle injury and then returned later to the action but was not up to par for the remainder of the contest.

IN THE consolation bracket the Falcons faced Rantoul and this time the injury to Brasch was clearly evident as he was unable to play at all. The loss of the big man under the boards was sorely felt and the Falcons lost a 68-52 decision to the Eagles.

Again Jones led the scoring with 15 but the Falcons as a team were far off their game. They had 26 turnovers against Rantoul and hit only 27 per cent of their shots from the floor. Calvello again netted 12 points and Ted Lambert was the only other Falcon in double figures with 11.

The Falcons were just not as sharp in the second game as they had been in the opener and that second loss put them out of competition.

The next action for the Falcons will be against conference rival Prospect, this Friday night at the Knights home floor. To date the Falcons are unbeaten in conference play but still have not won in non-loop play.

'Cats Host Pirates After Long Layoff

by Ken Knox

One thing that might be put to the test in this Friday's Palatine-Wheeling basketball game is this: What does it profit a team to play in a holiday tournament?

The game will match the Pirates, recently returned from a three-game stint in the DeKalb holiday gathering, and the Wildcats, a team that for this winter at least forsook the tradition of a tournament detour.

It'll also match Palatine's 3-6 mark with Wheeling's of 4-3, and—more to the point—Palatine's standard of 1-1 in the Mid-Suburban League and Wheeling's of 0-3. The Pirates will be out to go ahead of .500 in the MSL, while the 'Cats—after suffering narrow disappointments to the unbeaten Arlington, Forest View and Prospect MSL fives—will try to start the new year with their first success in the league.

AND TO THAT extent, there'll be more than passing curiosity to see whether the Wheeling layoff will be any handicap. The Wildcats haven't played since Dec. 16 when they fell to Prospect, while Palatine was in action last Friday morning, falling 55-36 to Rochelle in the consolation semi-finals at DeKalb.

"I don't think the layoff hurt us," said Wheeling headman Mike Owens. "We've been practicing, and except for a few strained ankles should be at full strength for Palatine."

"This is a big one for us," said Palatine's Norm Jones. "If we win it, we can be in very good position in the league."

The Pirates dropped two of their three starts at DeKalb, but did benefit by being able to run new play patterns against competition And Jones used the sojourn in the tourney to experiment with new lineups. One product of that will be a new alignment against the Wildcats.

ONE CHANGE WILL be at forward, where 6-1 senior Wayne Render—who missed almost all of last season and part of this with injuries—will get a starting berth.

And, in an effort to get a little more punch into the lineup, Jones is installing six-foot senior Fred Bahn at a guard spot. He'll probably alternate there with John Ekeberg, considered stronger defensively. But Bahn has shown definite ability as a scorer, hitting about 50 per cent from the floor, with 21 points in reserve in the last two games at DeKalb.

Otherwise, Jones will go with the lineup that's started the rest of the games for Palatine: Dick Smith at a forward, 6-4 Doug Spruance at center and Mike Ferguson at a guard.

Smith has taken over as the team's leading scorer, but he's hitting at a pace just under 10 points, typifying the one Palatine problem.

THE PIRATES, though they've been showing good defense and good ball-handling in their recent outings, have not been able to score. They're been getting more shots off their new patterns, but except for the Kaneland game—where they hit 52 per cent and scored 78 points—not enough have gone in.

Wheeling has had better success in the offensive column, with three players averaging in double figures. The leader continues to be Tom Bastable, the Michigan product whose contributions on the court have rivaled those on the gridiron. The 6-0 forward is averaging around 16 points a game.

Center Scott Bischoff, another six-footer, has been scoring at a 12.4 rate and 5-11 forward Rex Peterson at 10.6. They'll start against Palatine.

AT THE GUARDS, Owens is planning on 6-0 Jeff Winterburg and 5-10 sophomore Jack Bastable, Tom's brother and owner of an eight-points-a-game average.

Wheeling's only serious offensive lapse has been at the free throw line, where the 'Cats have been hitting only about half their efforts. But otherwise, they can score and they have balance, and since they've lost only to the league's unbeaten, they command respect.

Palatine, though not a tall team itself by basketball standards, will have a definite height advantage on Wheeling. To overcome that, the 'Cats will doubtless dip into their favored game technique of aggressive, quick basketball.

They'll have the home court edge, and if they haven't lost any rhythm through their layoff, it should be a good test all around.

Co-Champs Meet

City in the tourney windup pumped in 13 while exhibiting an ample display of hustle.

THE FALCONS have won only three of nine outings this season but all successes have been in conference action, establishing them as somewhat of a surprise contender for the league crown.

Although Forest View did not have Prospect's success in a tourney at Danville over the holidays, their ability to get up for conference games and their fast playing tempo present a threat the Knights are not inclined to easily shrug off.

Smaller, faster teams have inflicted the greatest damage upon the Prospect war machine and the Falcons are fully aware of this fact.

Forest View also offers a well-balanced frontal assault paced by aggressive Bucky Jones, a six-foot guard sporting a 13.7 conference point average.

TO AID HIS bombardment of the enemy bucket are forwards Ted Lambert and Rich Gillespie, with average loop outputs of 11 and 10 points respectively. Other starters Howie Brasch at center and Frank Calvello at the other guard slot dump in an average of better than eight points per conference game.

The only question mark in Forest View's lineup is Brasch. The hard luck 6-3 post man got off to a late start after suffering a separated shoulder during the football season and now is healing a turned ankle picked up in the tourney.

In action between these two schools during the past four years, the Knights own a healthy 8-1 won-loss ratio. That one loss, however, was a 57-54 squeaker absorbed the last time the two quintets faced off and dropped the Knights into a first place tie for conference laurels with Forest View at nine wins and one defeat apiece.

They've been in that tie for first place ever since.

Third Place Honors

Cards Bounce Back After First Setback

Coming back after a heartbreaking loss is never easy, particularly when that loss was your first of the season.

Arlington High School, shocked by Kankakee Westview on Thursday evening, bounced off the floor Friday to annex third place honors in the Kankakee Holiday Basketball Tournament.

Coach Ted Wissen's Cards, determined to make up for their so-so showing in semi-final action, took out after Kankakee Eastridge early, building up a 15-8 advantage after one period and holding on for a 65-42 victory.

ALTHOUGH THE third place triumph didn't completely heal the wounds incurred in that loss to Westview, the ability to rebound was encouraging for the Arlington coaching staff.

It's never easy to play in a third place game after losing a tough semi-final encounter. But the Cards wanted that third place prize after letting the big one slip away.

Jim Donchess, Arlington's 6-6 senior center who averaged 13.7 points per game at Kankakee, paced the first period assault on Friday evening with eight points and the Cards were on their way.

THERE WAS some reason for concern in the second stanza when Arlington was checked with only one field goal and five Steve Allen free throws, but the Cards put the decision out of reach with a 23-point third quarter explosion.

Donchess and Allen were the ring-leaders in that third period as Jim chipped in seven more points and Allen nine. Arlington took a 46-26 lead into the concluding stanza, and Wissen cleared his bench in the windup.

Donchess had 20 for the winners and Allen was right behind with 18 as he continued to close in on the career scoring record at Arlington. Townley also reached double figures with 11, seven coming from the free throw line in the final stanza.

A FRUSTRATING cold streak in the concluding period the previous night cost Arlington a shot at the Kankakee championship and handed the Cards their first loss of the season.

Arlington held a 48-40 lead after three periods and appeared to have the necessary momentum going. After a slow start they had put together two 19-point quarters.

But Westview wasn't to be denied despite the odds. The Illini Eight school of 700 students came roaring back in the final period with Otis Ward and Johnny Cleeland leading the charge in the 59-57 shocker.

WARD, WHO finished with 23 points, had six in the final quarter and Cleeland five, but it was Ward who personally kept Westview in the game in that second half when Arlington threatened to blow things wide open.

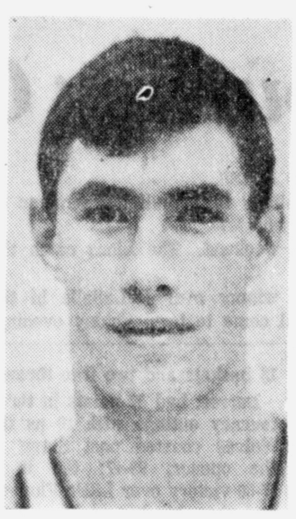

Ward had six baskets in the third period for 12 of Westview's 16 points, and he was the main reason the Cardinals couldn't stretch their advantage to more than eight markers heading into the final stanza.

The winners shut off high-scoring Allen with only one basket in the final half after Steve had tossed through nine points over the first 16 minutes of action.

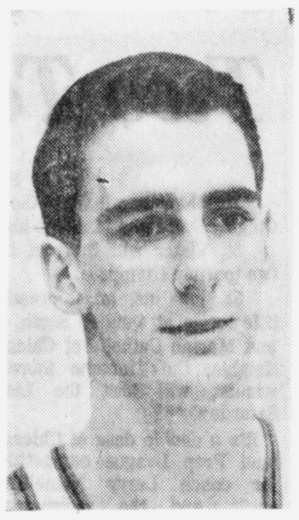

TOWNLEY, WHO had 38 points in three tourney outings, contributed 15 against Westview, 10 in the first half. Dave Lockwood had 12 with a nine-point explosion in the third period as the Cards moved into an eight-point lead.

Allen was Arlington's top point-producer at Kankakee with 50 points and a 16.7 per game average. Donchess had 41, Townley 38, Lockwood 29, and Steve Conley 23.

Glenbard East won the tourney with ease, brushing aside Bishop McNamara (67-55), Kankakee Eastridge (60-34), and Westview in the title contest (64-40).

Lion Twin-Bill

Bill Dunne, a 5-11, 170-pound junior. Nick Zimmer, a 6-3 senior, is the top reserve.

ONE OF THE smallest starters in the Chicago area will pose the big problem Saturday evening for St. Viator when the Lions journey to Marian Catholic High School (666 Ashland Avenue) in Chicago Heights.

Marian Capt. Frank Sylvester, a 5-6 scoring sensation, has been worth better than 20 points per outing on an average in leading the Spartans to a snappy 8-1 standard.

Sylvester, who has 66 points in three Chicagoland outings, had his finest hour early in the campaign when he fired in 40 points in Marian's stunning 89-81 conquest of touted Bloom. Frank had 28 in the first half that time.

COACH DON BERG'S Spartans got by Herscher (64-50), Wilmington (89-74) and Dwight (66-48) to win the Manteno holiday title, and although Sylvester had a good tourney, teammate Jim Jabrosky, a 6-4 senior forward, was the big surprise with 69 points in the three games.

Marian's only loss this season was a 79-65 setback to DeLaSalle when they fell behind by 16 points at halftime and could never catch up.

Probable starters this weekend for the Spartans will be 6-4 Jabrosky and 6-3 Joe Zarantenello at the forwards, 6-5 Phil Reed at center, and 5-6 Sylvester and either 5-8 Mike Malito or 6-1 Rich Morris at the guards.

Marian travels to St. George Friday evening before returning home to entertain St. Viator.

ST. VIATOR'S Nomellini, disturbed with his club's inability to hold on to a big lead Friday evening in the third place battle of the Notre Dame Christmas Classic, may do some juggling with his lineup for the weekend doubleheader.

"We just beat ourselves Friday," the head man pointed out in looking back on the stunning 70-64 loss to Foreman. "We had them beat and then just let down."

The Lions carried a 14-point lead in the third quarter and were up by 10 early in the final stanza before wilting under a furious Foreman rush.

ST. VIATOR did land two victories in four games at Notre Dame, including a record-setting romp past Von Steuben, but that collapse Friday kept the Lions from climbing past the .500 mark. They'll take a 5-6 mark into the weekend play.

Nomellino cited the steady play of forward Dan Collins and the contribution of guard Tom Epperly in the finale as two bright spots in the holiday action.

Collins continues to amaze with his fantastic shooting. The 6-1 senior, who rarely takes a bad shot, connected 27 times in 47 attempts at Notre Dame.

Dan isn't a flashy player and may get overlooked by the fans, but he's dependable and can be counted on for that steady effort.

Lion guard Frank Hogan, who blitzed Von Steuben with 31 points in one consolation game, earned all-tourney honors at guard. Frank had 78 markers in his four outings and now shows a 20.2 per game average

Elk Grove Ready for Twin Bill

After a two-week holiday layoff, the Elk Grove cagers are again ready for competition. A double weekend bill will get things under way once more for the Grenadiers.

On Friday night the Grenadiers will battle Fremd on the Vikings floor and Saturday morning the Grovers will again travel, this time to Niles North. Just prior to the beginning of the holiday vacation the Grenadiers beat the Glenbrook North Spartans and would like nothing better than to continue on the winning path.

The Grovers will use basically the same lineup as they have for most of the season but Elk Grove coach Bob Rees has moved Jim Oplt back in as the starter in the center spot. Rees will have John Knopf and Rick Radtke at the forwards and Tom Pomey and Gary Pleickhardt at the guards as the Grenadiers begin play again.

Cards, Warriors

who with Townley showed some capable defensive work at Kankakee, is the fourth Cardinal starter in double figures with a 10.2 standard. Forward Steve Conley is a shade under at 8.1.

Although Maine West's Freeman has high regard for the Arlington entry, he's still hopeful his Warriors can come up with that big effort Friday.

"We've lost some close ones about the last two months of the season because these boys are capable of bouncing back."

The Warriors, whose only wins this winter were over Barrington and Niles West, dropped two close games in the Proviso West tourney, falling before the host school in overtime (63-60) and Morton East (55-51).

IN MID-SUBURBAN play the Maine quintet gave Prospect an interesting tussle before falling 58-55 and also took Forest View to the wire in a 59-56 outing.

Al Fritz, a 6-2 senior center who figured prominently on the Warriors' rugged football eleven in the fall, is the squad's top scorer in MSL action with a 16.5 average. Harry Tistle, a 6-0 forward, and Dick Manny, a 5-10 guard, are next in line with averages of 12.0 and 11.0 respectively.

Freeman also has been pleased with the improving play of forward Ken Mack showing to advantage in the holiday action.

When Arlington and Maine line up for the tip-off Friday evening at Arlington, there will be seven football players on the floor, seven boys who were a part of that 14-14 tie and conference title share in the fall.

But there can't be a tie this time.

Falcon Frosh Split

The Forest View freshman "A" basketball squad split decisions in holiday tournament play as they took part in the Hinsdale South Tourney. The Falcons won in the first round but lost in the second game.

The Falcon's first opponent in the tourney was the Carl Sandburg High School quintet and the game was not decided until the last 30 seconds of the battle when Ed Johnson and Dave Long combined for three free throws to give Forest View a one-point edge.

That one point was the total of difference as the Falcons held on to win 44-43 and move up to next round play. During the first game, Wayne Meier was the Forest View high scorer as he tossed through 18 points. Meier hit for four field goals and ten free throws for his 18.

Argo, the Falcons' second opponent proved to have an extremely rough defense and held the Birds to a total of 28 points while running up 46

Lions' Jayvees Dumped by Dons

Notre Dame's consistent offensive display overwhelmed St. Viator, 77-61, in junior-varsity basketball competition.

The Dons tallied between 18 and 21 points over the four periods as they walked off with the victory.

Dan Miksta was high for the Lions with 18 points. Kevin O'Connell flipped in ten.

St. Viator's Tankers Head Relays Field, Rout Marist

For Charley Mondi, St. Viator's swimming coach, it was a very enjoyable holiday season.

The powerful Lions added a relays triumph to their sparkling season mark and disposed of Marist with ease in a dual to conclude a successful holiday schedule.

Mondi's outfit will now swim against neighboring Forest View today (Thursday) at 3:45 and will go to St. George next Wednesday.

The Lions piled up 106 points but still had some trouble landing the big prize in the Fourth Annual St. Ignatius Relays held at Harrison Park in Chicago.

HOST ST. IGNATIUS showed some team strength in collecting 94 points for runnerup honors, and Holy Cross was third with 72.

Rounding out the six-team alignment were St. George with 62, St. Joseph with 34, and Notre Dame with 26.

Mondi's charges racked up five firsts and set records in two events.

Randy Bocian, Al Kanabay, Marty Wendell, and Bill McCaffrey teamed up for a swift 1:43.7 clocking in the soph freestyle relay, taking eight-tenths of a second off the old school mark.

IN THE BUTTERFLY relay Fred Schmidt, Mike Kaminski, Harry Frossard, and Lou Hibbs covered the distance in 1:53.3 as they eclipsed the meet mark of 1:56 set last winter.

The Lions also claimed a first in the frosh medley with Steve Salerno, Mike Campana, George Halas, and Rich Lynch clipping off a 2:00.0 effort, and Salerno, Lynch, Gene O'Hara, and Jim Fitzsimmons showed a 1:46.0 in the frosh freestyle for another victory.

In the soph medley McCaffrey, Kanabay, Hibbs, and Ed Leadley came through with a 1:56.8.

The Lions were second in the open medley (1:53.8) and backstroke relay (1:58.4), third in the 400 freestyle (3:50.4) and fourths in the open freestyle (1:42.0) and breaststroke relay (2:14.8).

ST. VIATOR rocked Marist in their latest dual, 77-17, on a varsity level, yielding first place honors in only one event, the 100 free.

Individual winners for the Lion varsity were Bill McCaffrey in the 200 free (2:07.2), Lou Hibbs in the 50 free (24.9), Murray in the 200 individual medley (2:30.4), Dave Chantry in diving (68.30), Harry Frossard in the 100 fly (1:06.5), Mark Abate (1:10.2), Bill Richardson in the 400 free (4:59.5), and Rick Kalinowski in the 100 breaststroke (1:09.1).

The Lions also topped both relays with a 1:56.4 in the 200 medley, (McMahon, Kalinowski, Frossard, and Albers) and 4:05.5 in the 400 freestyle.

St. Viator won the frosh-soph meet, 57-38, as O'Hara, Klein, Carnevale, Lynch, Campana, and Tully claimed the individual victories.

SOME ICE FISHERMEN MIGHT THINK that any day spent on a frozen lake is a special day, but if there's any day a little more special than others for the ice anglers, it's this Sunday.

Sunday will bring the latest renewal of the Ice Fishing Derby, a project of the Northern Illinois Conservation Club staged especially for those men—and women and children—sometimes regarded as bizarre by sedentary types who prefer their winters indoors.

Though it's being held for only the sixth time this year, the derby has just about iced the claim that it's "the biggest and most exciting ice fishing soiree in the state." Certainly, it has become the big event of the winter for Northern Illinois ice fishermen.

A year ago, some 2,600 fishermen turned out on the gathering ground for the derby, the ice at the south end of Channel Lake near Antioch.

And that was despite weather conditions that threatened to wreck the entire carnival. A huge snow had fallen just before the derby, so weighting the ice that each hole bored through produced a little gusher of chilly water spreading at the fishermen's feet. But the 2,600 still turned out, and more are expected this year.

Conditions were reported good at Channel Lake at the week's beginning, with more than eight inches of ice underfoot, and more forming with each freezing day. The lake—rated the deepest and clearest in the Chain-O-Lakes—also has a good population of the fish designated contest species: bass, bluegill, sunfish, crappie and perch.

THE ICE FISHERMAN
A Special Day Sunday

The derby site is off Illinois Route 173 three miles west of Antioch in Lake County, and the action officially begins at 9 a.m. The NICC is asking $1 from each derby entrant, and considering the prize list, it could be a good investment.

More than 100 prizes—valued at more than $1,500—will be offered up, including most everything from a color television to a camper trailer to electric socks. Food and snowmobile rides will also be available.

Awards won't be given out just for fishing, though there will be prizes each hour for the best of a species, and grand prizes for the best fish of the day. There'll also be special contests including hole-making, guessing the weight of a block of ice, and even for the guy who shows up with the most fishing rods. Last year, the derby promoters went so far as to set up a special prize pot for those who didn't catch any fish.

The day shapes up to be one that may prove better than anything else that ice fishing can be fun.

No better luck was had in the recent Illinois shotgun deer season than that enjoyed by four area men. The quartet—including LeRoy Pomplun, Don Wente and John Schmalcs of Palatine and Wallace Deeke of Roselle—had a perfect rating in the field. Each bagged a deer in Southern Illinois, the bag including a 170-pound, nine-point buck; a 169-pound, six-point buck; a spike buck; and one doe. They also went goose hunting, and in three hours, each had the limit of two Canadian honkers each. That is what you call hunting.

Cards Keep Winning

The measure of a wrestling team's success is its won-lost record and if that is the case, Arlington wrestling fans really have something to talk about.

The Cardinals have yet to taste defeat and in their latest outing Willie Myers' charges were very impressive as they captured top honors in the Lake Park Quad. The Cards totaled 102 points to completely outdistance second place Maine West who had 85.

Host Lake Park finished third with a 65 point total and Glenbard East wound up at the bottom of the pile with 57 points.

ARLINGTON WON fully one half of the first places as they took six of the top positions and add to this the two second place finishes and the record is indeed impressive.

Arlington's Gary Prochaska found the going a little rough at 95 pounds but after losing his first bout he came back and took the third place by a 5-0 score. Prochaska now sports a 6-3 record for the season.

Jay McDonnell, wrestling for the Cardinals at 103, scored an impressive win over Don Grutzius of Maine West in the final bout. Grutzius was last year's 95 pound district champion but McDonnell handled him 6-1 for the title.

CARDINAL JIM Whitnell lost a close 5-4 bout in the finals and so had to settle for second, but 120 pounder Mike Mills scored two impressive wins to take the crown at his weight and run his season record to 7-2.

The 127 pound class proved to be a rough one for Arlington but Tom MacCarthy held on for a 7-6 win and took the third place prize. The same situation faced Arlington's Paul Douglas at 133 and after dropping his first bout Douglas came back to win third place with a 6-5 win over his Maine West opponent.

Brad Philo is now showing an 8-1 record for the season thanks to two clear cut wins in the Lake Park quad. Phile won his first bout 4-0 and pinned his opponent in the finals in 2:53.

KELLY REID ALSO added two more wins to his record and added a quad crown to his list of achievements as he decisioned both his opponents. He won his first bout 5-2 and put on a convincing show in the finals winning 8-1.

154 pounder Clark Sims worked his way into the finals but then lost a tough 5-4 decision to his Maine West opponent. Sims is now 7-2 for the season.

Arlington's undefeated Brad Somers continued to be just that, undefeated, as he downed both his opponents to take the quad crown. His first win was a 2-0 decision and his second bout was also decided by a decision, this time 10-4.

THE CARDINALS winning ways continued in the 180 pound class when Mike Jones worked through the field with two pins. Jones nailed his first opponent in 2:52 and took his man in the finals in 4:34.

Vern Gongel finished things up for the Cardinals by taking the third place in the heavyweight class. Gongel lost his first bout to the eventual champion but came back to win the consolation bout with a pin.

The Cardinals will put their unbeaten record on the line this weekend as they face Maine West Friday night and then meet Elk Grove on Saturday.

Top Wrestling

Midlands Has Class

by BOB NORDIN

It might be called a "Little Olympic Tryouts" because some of the most outstanding wrestlers in the nation, and indeed the world, take part in it.

But whatever you call the Midlands Wrestling Tournament held last week at Lyons Township High School, it is one of the finest tournaments of its type held anywhere.

For serious students of wrestling and for the fan who enjoys excellent wrestling, this one tournament presents an opportunity to see the young men who represent us in Olympic and world competition as well as those who compete on the college level.

This year the meet was again excellent and the competition was the best anywhere.

In one of the finest exhibitions of wrestling of the tournament Iowa State freshman Dan Cable decisioned Masaaki Hatta of the Michigan Wrestling Club 8-2 in the finals. Cable has never lost a match and was three time Iowa State Champ at West Waterloo. But Hatta had been one of the pre-meet favorites as he had been named outstanding wrestler in the Midlands for the past two meets.

CABLE BEAT former Illinois State High School Champ Don Behm of Michigan State, formerly of New Trier East, in the semi-finals 9-5. Behm has been Big Ten Champ and last year was second in the Big Ten and third in the Nationals.

Norm Parker, now of Highland Park and representing Mayor Daley's Youth foundation worked into the finals before losing to Don Anderson of Michigan State 9-0. Anderson is the defending Big Ten champ and Parker is a former Big Ten champ.

Palatine grad and Illinois State Champion Mike Gluck survived the first day of competition and moved into the semi-finals. Gluck, representing the University of Wisconsin, lost his semi-final bout to the man who was ultimately to win the title but in the consolation action Gluck was again dumped by Carr of Michigan State. Gluck finished in the runner up spot in the Big Ten last season.

AN INDICATION of the quality of the competition might be seen in the fact that Werner Holzer, a two time Big Ten champ, a national AAU champ, and fourth in the World Games last year, finished third at the Midlands.

Holzer, a Des Plaines resident, lost in the semi-finals to Reg Wicks of Iowa State and then Wicks went on to win the crown at 160 pounds.

The 167 pound class also had a former Illinois High School champion in the running and Vic Marcucci, formerly of Reavis High School, worked all the way to the finals before falling to George Redmen of Michigan State.

PAT KELLY, who prepped at Waukegan high and later went on to win the Big Ten while at Illinois, put on an excellent demonstration of wrestling at 177 as he took the field to win the crown for Mayor Daley's Youth Foundation. The Foundation had an extremely strong team entry in the meet and did a fine job of representation.

The heavyweight field was one of the most loaded in the meet and a sure sign of this is the fact that Dave Potter of Michigan, National and Big Ten champ last year, was seeded third.

Ahead of him was 1964 National champ Joe James and Larry Kristoff Olympic contestant and third and second in the world the past two years. As things turned out, these men finished exactly as they were seeded with Kristoff taking the medal from James 5-2 in an overtime bout. Both Kristoff and James were repesenting Mayor Daley's Youth Foundation.

Grove Lands Two Crowns

Two first places and plenty of depth was all the Elk Grove wrestlers needed to work for a second place finish in the Ridgewood Quad held recently.

The Grenadiers had four second place finishers and four third places to give strong scoring punch to the Grover effort.

The Grenadier 120 pounder, George Taylor, was the first to capture a first place crown for Elk Grove but as competition progressed 180 pounder Mike McFarland joined that elite crowd by decisioning both his opponents.

Elk Grove's 95 pounder Jerry Ancona finished in third place for the Grenadiers after dropping his initial bout, and at 103 Bob Walther's crew suffered a disappointment when Tom Mann's opponent escaped with just seven seconds left in the bout and won the first place spot by a single point.

MARK BEATTY was third at 112 while Taylor took the top spot at 120. Taylor won both his bouts and is developing into a solid, dependable wrestler from whom good things should be expected in the future. At 127 Dave Wheeler came in third for the Grovers while at 133 Elk Grove failed to crack the top three.

The Grenadiers took another third at 138 when Steve Stolnack came back to win his consolation bout. At 145 Mike Ernst placed second as he lost his final bout. Again at 154 Chuck Raffaelle placed second but at 165 the Grenadiers failed to score.

McFarland recorded his win at 180 to give the Grenadiers their second first place titlist and big Harry Lundin at Heavyweight finished second to finish the Elk Grove scoring.

Addison Trail showed the most team strength as they scored five first places and ran up a total of 83 points. Elk Grove had 72 points for their second place and host Ridgewood was third with 69. St. Patrick finished fourth in the meet with 63 points.

Drop Two Meets

Lion Matmen Top Chargers

Things could have been better for the St. Viator wrestlers over the holidays but in three outings the Lions were able to salvage one win, a narrow 29-21 victory over St. Joseph.

The Lions came very close to being shut out against St. Patrick as only Bill Horrell was able to gain any points, working for two team markers in a tie bout. St. Patrick scored 47 points.

Against the St. Joseph chargers, the Lions fared better as they won seven bouts to rack up their 29 points. Mike Presin recorded a pin for St. Viator at 95 pounds and then Mike Cunningham scored a pin at 103 pounds in the first period.

Bill Horrell again won, this time by forfeit, but those were the last St. Viator points until Don Rich decisioned his opponent 5-0 at 138 pounds. John Kriebsbach worked a second period pin on his opponent and picked up another five team points for the Lions at 154 and then 165 pounder Bob Batchelor and 180 pounder Jim Wojcik worked decisions to finish the Lion scoring.

Against St. George the Lions lost by the same score that they had beaten St. Joseph, 29-21. 120-pounder Rod Ayres was the first winner for St. Viator as he took a decision at his weight. 127 pounder Jim Howard was a winner on a forfeit but the Lions had to wait until 154 pounds for their next team points and at that weight Tom McDonald won on a pin in the first period.

At 165 pounds John Krebsbach matched McDonald's effort and fashioned a fall of his own in the first round. The final points of the meet for the Lions were recorded by Wojcik at 180 pounds as he won a close decision 5-4.

May Cancel Mat Tourney

The Palatine Holiday Wrestling Tournament, originally scheduled for December 27 and 28, was postponed and possibly cancelled last week when inclement weather made travel for outlying teams hazardous.

J. Earl Stutzman, co-ordinator of athletics for District 211, has been working in an effort to reschedule the meet, one of the oldest in the state. But finding a date without a conflict for eight teams has proved to be very difficult.

There is nothing planned at this time, but notification will be made if a date can be found that is acceptable to all teams involved.

Prospect's Third Top Area Slot in Soph Mat Tourney

Five area sophomore wrestling teams were busy over the holidays, all doing their best to bring home the top honor from the Maine East Sophomore Tournament. But no one was able to match the 81 points posted by Maine South and the best a Paddock area team could do was third.

But considering the company, third was not that bad at all and the Prospect Knights ran up a total of 66 points to earn their respectable slot. The rugged Deerfield squad finished second to Maine South just one point back and Arlington was fourth with 55 points.

Host Maine East finished in fifth with 45 points with Forest View sixth with 44, Palatine seventh with 10, and Wheeling eighth with seven. Boys from area schools captured four first places and nine seconds in doing their scoring.

PROSPECT'S Randy Cordova won the 95 pound title by decisioning his Deerfield opponent in the finals. No other Paddock area entry survived the first round and Cordova proved the class of the field.

In the 103 pound competition Forest View's Tom Moore went all the way to the final bout before he was stopped by a boy from Maine East. Palatine's Don Speer finished fourth after wrestling in the consolation bracket.

The Prospect Knights captured the top prize at 112 as Dave Phillips went all the way and won his final bout 8-2. In his first bout Phillips pinned Forest View's Bob Sydow in 2:35 and then decisioned his next opponent to earn his way to the finals.

BILL SUNDBLOM of Forest View finished second at 120 for the highest finish for an area boy at that weight. Prospect's Bruce Busse finished fourth behind the Maine East entry.

The 127 pound class was ruled by Maine South but not before Prospect's Joe Baker had had his say. However, his efforts were not enough and he took the number two spot. Wheeling's Greg Ritter finished fourth Maine South owned the 133 pound class as well but Arlington's Noel Bauler worked into the final bout to lay his claim to the title. But once more the Maine South wrestler won the crown and Bauler had to settle for second.

FOREST VIEW'S Bob Bartels won the top prize in the 138 pound tussle in rather convincing fashion. He pinned his first opponent in 27 seconds and then won his next two bouts by decisions. Prospect's Ted Passarelli finished fourth in the class.

Prospect's Bob Kotowski was forced to default in the finals of the 145 pound weight and so was forced to settle for the second place spot. No other area wrestler was within the top four.

Pat McCoy is the name of the crown holder in the 154 pound weight and he was a representative of Arlington. But the final bout pitted two area boys against one another as Prospect's Tony Lazzaroni also wanted that first place. As things turned out McCoy pinned Lazzaroni in 3:33 to win top prize.

AT 165 Arlington's Denny Meacham finished second and Forest View's Steve Lohrman finished fourth but neither boy could beat his final opponent and both had to settle for runner up spots.

Dan Selleck, wrestling at 180 pounds came close but had to settle for second place as he was decisioned by his Deerfield opponent in the finals. Selleck had been impressive in his opening bout as he pinned his opponent in 1:52. Palatine's Rick Howes took the fourth place spot.

The heavyweight battle again was a barn-burner but Maine South again won the championship. Arlington's Wally Bednarz was in the battle until the last but was bested by the Maine South heavyweight and came in second.

Arlington Soph Matmen Finish Sixth

Arlington's frosh-soph grapplers finished sixth in the annual Waukegan Sophomore Wrestling Tournament

The Cardinal sophomores were one point behind fifth-place West Leyden at the finish and nine points out of third place. Dennis Meacham was Arlington's only individual first-place winner, copping the 165-pound trophy with three straight wins.

Others who placed for Arlington were Jerry Brask, who was fourth in the 95 pound class, Jack Dabbert, fourth at 120, Rich Hernandez, fourth at 127, Noel Bavler, third at 133, Dan Selleck, third at 180, and Wally Bednarz, third in the Heavyweight division.

Entry Deadline Near

120 Top Teams Ready For Paddock Tourney

One hundred leagues signed up, two hundred to go.

That's the status of the Paddock bowling tournaments where deadline for entries in the men's event is this Saturday, Jan. 7.

Leading squads of all local men's loops as of Christmas Eve are eligible for the Paddock Publications Inter-League Handicap bowling tournament Jan. 21-22 at Elk Grove Bowl.

Top squads of about 120 men's leagues are expected to compete. Competition times are scheduled for 12:30, 2:55, 5:20 and 7:45 Sunday, Jan. 22, and 1:30 Saturday, Jan. 21.

Team captains are advised to call Marian Phillips immediately to make reservation, then turn in the entry by Saturday.

DEADLINE for entries in the women's event is Jan. 14. First place squads of the women's league will compete for prizes at Beverly Lanes Jan. 28-29.

Team captains of the ladies' loops have been calling in their time reservations in rapid order with one of the squads almost filled. Competition times are 12:30, 3:10, 5:50 and 8:30 Sunday, Jan. 29, plus 3:00 Saturday, Jan. 28.

Almost $1,800 in prizes are expected to be given out to the winners.

MIXED LEAGUES have not been neglected. Second annual Paddock tournament for leading teams of mixed leagues as of New Years Eve will compete for trophies and prize money Jan. 28 at Beverly Lanes.

Twenty-seven leagues sent representatives to Striking Lanes last year to bowl in the first Paddock event for mixed leagues.

At least 40 loops are expected to sign up this time, possibly 60. Squad times are 5:40 and 8:20 Saturday, Jan. 28.

One difficulty faced by many mixed loops, however, is lack of sanctioning. Bowlers of many such leagues fail to sanction their loops on the basis their competition is not serious, merely 'fun'.

Paddock tourney promoters insist on sanctioning, however, believing such action is the only sure way of developing standard procedures and regulations for the bowling industry. Secretaries of unsanctioned mixed leagues are urged to sanction in the future so competition in the Paddock tournaments

Position Matches Slated for Sunday

Sports Chalet already has the first half crown tucked away, but seven other teams are still hopeful of bettering their status in the standings.

That's the way things stand in the Paddock Classic Traveling League as the loop readies for the position round, to be held at 2 p.m. Sunday afternoon at River Rand Bowl. The position matches will be the final ones in the first half of the 1966-67 season.

This final round is little more than a formality as the important verdict, first place, has already been settled. Only pride is at stake for the rest of the loop.

Sports Chalet, even if it fails to cop the second half championship, has clinched at least a shot at the league title for the '66-'67 campaign if a roll-off is necessary next spring.

Regular league action will commence a week from Saturday night, Jan. 14.

Jake's Pizza rolled a team series of 3105, with all five members bowling a 600-or-over series. This team, in the last six weeks of the first half, averaged over 1020 per game . . . The Haven Motel team also bowled a series of 3047, led by Dave Hoffman, who chalked up a 714. Giovanellers Pro Shop bowled a series of 3000.

In the Striking Ladies Classic League, Lu Schoenberger, bowling for the Doll House, fired a 211-171-190-184 for a sparkling 756 series . . . Joan Angelo of Striking Lanes had a 737 series on games of 168, 198, 201, and 170, while Judy Helfer of Giovannelli's rolled an even 700.

At Elk Grove Bowl

In the Elkettes League, Charlotte Teslik achieved a 229 game by chalking up six strikes in a row. This topped her 505 series . . . Jeanne's Jalopies holds first place with a 36½-23½ record, but Jane's Jeeps and Betty's Bugetts are each just one game behind . . . High series were recorded by Nancy Pitts (527), Clare Skittone (509), Jane Carroll (508), and Charlotte Teslik (505). Lions Handle Carmel In Consolation Tilt

by LARRY EVERHART

St. Viator's varsity cagers continued to display some fine basketball in the Notre Dame Christmas Classic Thursday night, following up a record team scoring performance two nights before with a crisp 71-60 conquering of Carmel of Mundelein.

The Lions, who entered the meet with a mediocre 3-4 record and dropped the tourney opener to Foreman in a 64-62 nail-biter, came alive in the following two clashes to gain a shot at the consolation title Friday and a rematch against Foreman.

Thursday night's hero for Larry Nomellini's five was Dan Collins, a 6-2 senior forward. Collins led all scorers with 21 points, rebounded like a demon, and was a leech on defense in leading the locals to victory. Frank Hogan, the Lions' brilliant guard, added 16 markers to the winning cause.

The game matched two teams similar in nature — both relatively small but quick, fast, and sharpshooting. St. Viator again used a full-court press for much of the contest, forcing turnovers that made the difference.

Another big factor in the outcome was the free-throw percentages. In a foul-ridden game in which officials tooted 50 infractions, St. Viator was charged with four more fouls than was Carmel. However, the Corsairs connected on only 16 of 39 charity tries, a .410 percentage, while Nomellini's crew cashed in on 19 of 31 free tosses, a .612 standard.

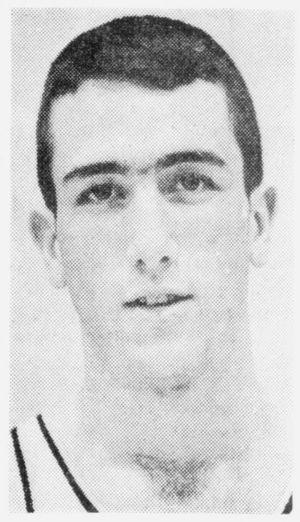

St. Viator applied the press from the start, but it was not effective in the first quarter as Carmel was able for a time to break it. It was in the initial frame that Carmel's free throw ineptness was clearest, as they missed their first seven chances from the line.

Those missed attempts and Collins' six points were the difference as the Arlington Heights based school rallied from an early 6-2 deficit to carry a 14-2 advantage into the second stanza.

The teams battled on even terms through the second quarter, although the press began to pay off for St. Viator. Down 25-20 with 2:30 remaining in the half, the Lions suddenly stole the ball twice for five quick points and a deadlock. Collins' fielder then gave them a lead they never again relinquished.

The second quarter continued to be Tom Epperly's favorite. He collected six of his eight points in that session, including a goal with 30 seconds left that gave the Lions a 31-29 lead at the break.

The third quarter saw the Viator boys gradually begin to pull away. Scoring slowed down, and a drought of nearly two minutes occurred midway through the quarter in which neither team could put the ball through the hoop.

DAN COLLINS

Kevin O'Connell and Epperly counted goals at the outset of the quarter to temporarily open St. Viator's lead. Carmel closed it to 36-33 with 5:27 left but baskets by John Brawley and Collins and five quick points by Hogan gave the Lions a 45-37 cushion after three segments.

The scoring tempo was stepped up again in the fourth quarter as the teams traded baskets with regularity. Eighteen fouls were whistled and both units took advantage of the increased roughness by warming up from the charity stripe.

Greg Polich led the Lions' 26-point charge in the closing stanza, collecting eight of his ten markers. St. Viator's lead fluctuated between eight and 14 points throughout the quarter, as they protected their margin with supreme free-throw accuracy.

Position Night Set in PWCTL

It's all on the line Saturday night in the first half of the 1966-67 Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League season.

The current front-runners in the ladies' bowling loop, Lattof Chevrolet, will be called upon to preserve their tenacious two-point lead over the second-place team, Striking Lanes, in a position-night showdown match at Striking Lanes.

Making the contest especially interesting, despite Lattof's obvious advantage, is the fact that the Striking unit has considerable momentum from the past few weeks' action before the holiday break. Just three matches ago, the Chevrolet team's cushion was seven points before they began to lose ground.

With four points possible in each match, however, Striking Lanes would have to come up with a whitewash in order to win the title outright. A 3-1 victory for Striking would produce a deadlock in the standings and necessitate a roll-off for first-half laurels.

All Lattof needs Saturday night is a tie to clinch the crown and at least a shot at the league crown next spring.

Wheel Inn, in third place at present and three points behind Striking, can still finish second with a win over fourth-place Sylvia's Flowers and some assistance from Lattof. Fifth-place Morton Pontiac, now just two points behind Sylvia's, has a chance to move up a notch, too.

The league was idle last week because of the Christmas holidays.

Team standings:

Lattof Chevrolet	42
Striking Lanes	40
Wheel Inn	37
Sylvia's Flowers	24
Morton Pontiac	22
River Rand Bowl	15

Jr. High Cage Meet

The Miner Blue Devils, captained by Bob Klein, nosed out the South Hot Shots, managed by Tom Harris, 26-25 Friday for the championship of the eighth grade division of the Arlington Heights Park District Eighth Annual Holiday Basketball Tournament.

The seven-day meet was held at Miner Junior High School and included 52 teams in three different age divisions.

The Blue Devils and Hot Shots, until their tight title clash, had dominated the eighth grade division, breezing to easy victories in their first three contests.

Winner in the seventh grade division were the Red Devils from South Junior High. They gained the title with a 24-16 triumph over the St. James Hawks.

In the Sixth grade division, the Wayside Globetrotters rode to an easy tourney win, downing the Thomas Tom Cats in the championship game, 51-11.

As Knights Breeze

Lundstedt's Records Pile Up at Pontiac

by KEITH REINHARD

If cagers draped their record showings across their chest like soldiers display battle ribbons, Tom Lundstedt about now would begin to appear comparable to the Army Chief of Staff.

His hardcourt battles produced some new medals down Pontiac-way last week and helped his Prospect team to some of their own. The record log at Pontiac in fact, much like the Prospect standard book, looks more each passing week like a Lundstedt autobiography.

The rewrites stem from a 47-point display the easy-going 6-4 forward drummed up before a mostly empty stadium during the Pontiac Christmas tourney Dec. 29. After absorbing a scalping by the host Indians a day earlier in opening round action, the Knights were slated to play Taylorville to wind up the second-day eight-game card.

The tipoff time was 10 p.m., it was a consolation bracket game of seemingly little significance. Not many stuck around to watch it. Even Lundstedt's parents hadn't bothered to make the 100-mile trip down for the match.

What everybody missed was a 101-63 quelling of the Tornados. Here's what effect it had on the records:

Lundstedt's 47-point contribution wiped out a 44-point single-game Pontiac tournament scoring mark. It also surpassed his own one-game scoring production which happens to be the Prospect all-time school mark. By coincidence, the old mark of 39 was also set in the Pontiac tourney, against Granite City in 1965.

The four best showings in a Prospect uniform all belong to Lundstedt now with 47, 39 and 35 twice.

The man with many moves also notched a new tourney field goal standard by dumping in 20 that night. Gordon Stephens of Rushville once bucketed 19 and the mark held for 14 years.

This dazzling production of two-pointers also buries the old school mark of 15 which Lundstedt wrote in February of 1966 against Wheeling in the regional tourney. The five highest field-goal totals for a single game's work for Prospect are now Lundstedt-owned.

As a team, the Knight journey into the century league eclipsed a tournament single game mark of 99 enjoyed by Granite City against Bloomington in 1965. It also surpasses the Prospect top showing of 98 versus Maryville Academy in the 1961 regionals.

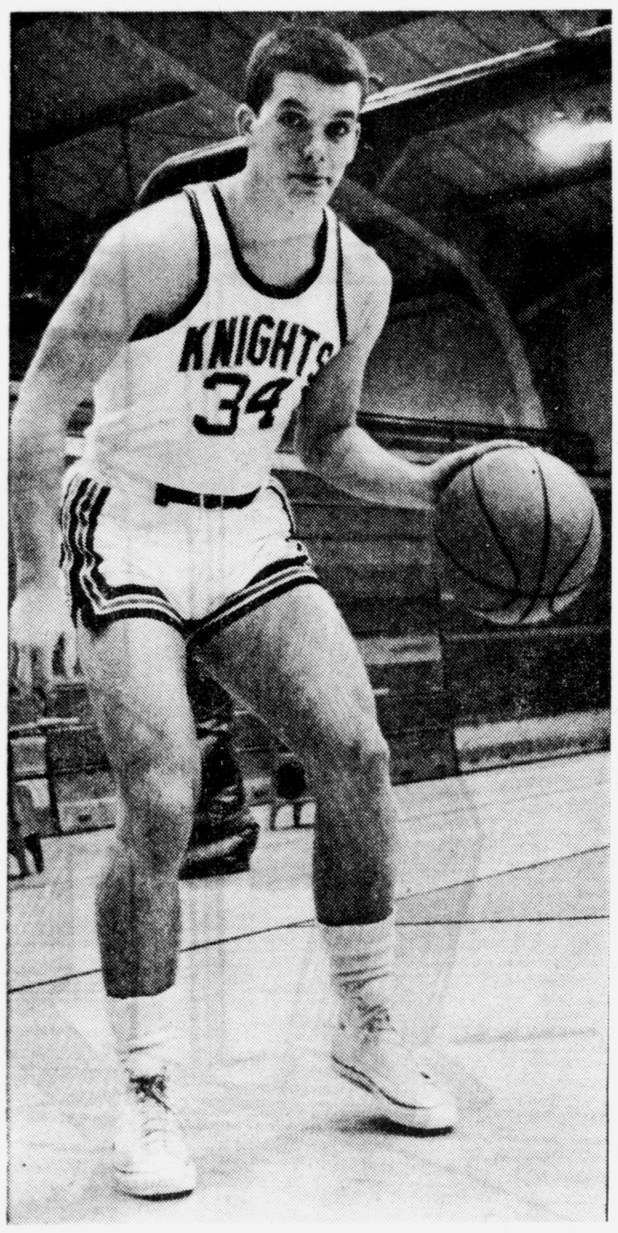

And combined with Taylorville's 63 points in a losing cause, the Knight scoring rampage jacked them into a new tourney mark for the highest combined total. By one the Knights and Tornados surpass a mark of 163 registered by Pontiac (83) and LaSalle-Peru (80) in an overtime contest during the 1964 meet.

Last year, Lundstedt etched in a tourney record for most points scored over-all with 113 in four games.

Other developments saw Prospect hike their holiday tournament win-loss record to a stellar 25-5. In the meantime Lundstedt's 104-point total for four games lifted him past three former Paddock area standouts into fourth place on the all-time scoring list.

He entered the tourney with 824 and emerged with 928, surpassing the lifetime marks of Chuck Close of Arlington (856), Pat Dunnigan of Forest View (862) and Paul Schrage of Palatine (922).

Ahead of him now looms the magic 1000-point circle with just two obstacles in front of it.

Foreman Decks Lions Again at Notre Dame

by BOB FRISK

It's a shame they won't play again this winter because St. Viator and Foreman staged a pair of crowd-pleasing exhibitions last week in the Notre Dame Christmas Classic.

Both clubs came up with stirring fourth quarter rallies. One got the job done and resulted in a victory. The other fell short.

Foreman took home the two triumphs, including the prize for third place Friday evening, but you'll have a hard time convincing the Lions of St. Viator that they don't have just as good a club.

IT WAS St. Viator that caught fire in the final period earlier in the week, outscoring the Hornets 18-5 over a stretch of four minutes, but the Lions still suffered a 64-62 loss.

It was Foreman's turn Friday evening to stage a stunning stretch run.

The Hornets had their problems for three periods. There was a time late in the third stanza when they trailed by 14 points. They were down by 10 at the outset of the concluding period.

BUT THEY came back fighting to steal a page out of the St. Viator book this winter.

They didn't catch the Lions until two minutes remained, but they weren't to be denied in the frenzy of the final seconds in pulling away to a shocking 70-64 victory.

The loss came hard for Larry Nomellini's Lions who appeared to have the third place prize in the Notre Dame Classic all wrapped up and ready to take back to Arlington Heights.

THE LIONS never trailed in the opening half, taking a 15-12 advantage after one period and then carrying a 34-31 lead at the break thanks to some hot-shooting by guard Tom Epperly.

Checked with one basket, a 15-footer, in the first quarter, Epperly canned 11 second period points, including a string of eight straight for the Lions.

Dan Collins and Frank Hogan moved into their familiar roles as the offensive leaders in the third quarter as St. Viator shot into what appeared to be a commanding advantage.

THE LION play was crisp, efficient. They worked for their shots, showing the over-all polish they lacked in the opening tourney loss to Foreman.

No one expected the disaster the fourth period was to bring.

It started routinely as Hogan shot a quick pass to Bill Yaeger who slipped home a layup to give the Lions a 56-46 lead.

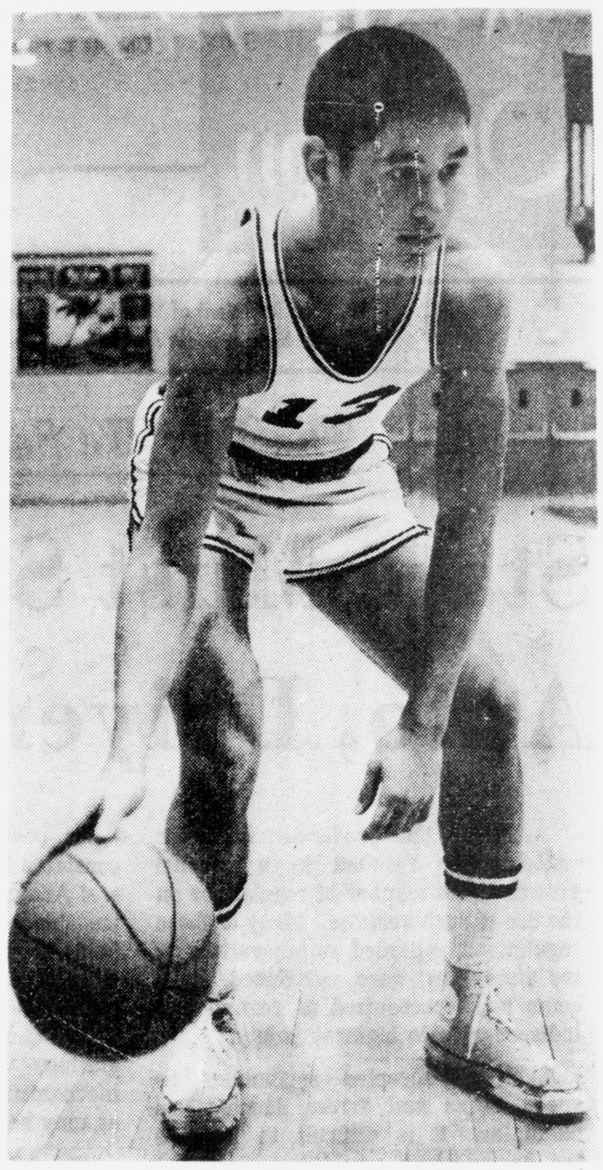

From then on, however, the fireworks belonged to Foreman.

THE HORNETS outscored the Lions 24-10 in that final quarter and took the lead for the first time on a free throw with 1:57 left.

Hogan sent the Lions back on top, 64-63, with an eight-footer that bounced high, hit the lip of the rim, and dropped through but Ron Czekaiski scored on a drive for Foreman.

A jump ball with 59 seconds left went to the Hornets who controlled until Dan Korrison got loose underneath for a layup with 25 seconds remaining.

The determined Foreman crew controlled the ball again after a missed Lion shot, and Bob Eckstein and Czekaiski hit on free throws in the closing seconds to set up the final six-point, 70-64 difference.

TOM EPPERLY, St. Viator's senior guard who missed a year of play because of an injury, enjoyed a 19-point evening Friday in the third place game of the Notre Dame Christmas Classic. Epperly, a key defensive performer for the Lions, has been giving the squad some capable scoring nights in recent outings. (Staff Photo)

Semi-Final Losses for Soph Units

Arlington and St. Viator were both semi-final round losers over the holidays in the Glenbrook North Frosh-Soph tournament.

The Cardinals got by Evanston, 58-48, in a first round contest as Jim Baumgartner dialed 25 points but dropped a 58-42 decision to Proviso East.

Arlington coach Tom Pitchford called Proviso East "the finest soph team I've ever seen." The Pirates sported a front line of boys 6-6, 6-4, and 6-2.

Dean Schmelzer was the leader for the Cards in the semi-final loss.

St. Viator bombed host Glenbrook North, 59-39, in a first round tussle as Don Reising scored 20 points and Greg Doyle 17, but the Lions bowed out with a 51-43 loss to Joliet West.

Reising had 13 and Doyle 12 against the Joliet quintet.

Area Frosh Fives Fall After Wins

St. Viator and Arlington suffered similar fates over the holiday break in the Glenbrook North frosh basketball tournament.

Both clubs opened with victories but suffered semi-final losses

The Lions slipped by Glenbrook North in the opener, 31-29, as Tom Renno paved the way with 12 points, but suffered a 54-45 loss to Joliet West.

Renno had 16 markers and Terry Cullen 10 against Joliet.

Arlington dumped Evanston, 58-49, as Dave Larson scored 18 points and Ken Malcolmson 15, but Proviso East eliminated the Cards with a 50-26 semi-final triumph.

Sam Wit had eight points against Proviso.

Knight Sophs in One Tourney Win

Prospect's sophomore cagers rebounded once, but still finished up on a losing note in the St. Charles invitational tourney last week.

After suffering a 52-40 opening round defeat at the hands of St. Charles the Knights came back to dump Elmwood Park 60-50 but fell in their final consolation bracket outing to Barrington, 54-50.

Bob Anderson was high point man for Prospect in both the Tiger and Bronco games, bucketing 23 and 17 respectively.

Coach Henry Szymanski's squad now possesses an overall mark of 3-7.

After Opening Loss

Knight Unit Rebounds

by KEITH REINHARD

If Pontiac were to host an invitational basketball tournament again this week, it's a certainty the scramble would finish altogether differently than the one just wrapped up down there before the new year commenced.

That's one of the great things about prep basketball. The unexpected occurs regularly. Any team on any given day can upset any other team around.

Prospect found this out the hard way. In less than two hours any Knight hopes or fond wishes of a second straight tournament championship were abruptly shattered. The Knights spent the last two days of the meet successfully weaving their way to the top of the other bracket—the consolation side—and wondering how they would have fared in the championship competition.

At any other time Dick Kinneman's charges probably would have dumped the local quintet they faced off with in their opening tournament game Wednesday night. The Indians sported a 2-3 record at the time, had little in the way of height, and were going against the odds versus the defending champs of a tournament they had never won in 33 years.

Wednesday evening, however, was Pontiac's night. They outclassed the Knights from the opening jump and took advantage of every Prospect blunder. Dick Kinneman and his crew spent a glum subsequent 24 hours trying to rationalize the reasoning behind the 71-55 defeat they absorbed from the red-hot Indian tribe.

The loss perhaps did the Knights more good than a resounding victory because it jolted them into the best form they've demonstrated all season. Rebounding with a class all their own, the Prospect camp strung together pronounced triumphs over Taylorville, Streator and Granite City to win the consolation prize going away.

The only question left unanswered was how would they have done if allowed to remain in the championship bracket of play. Waukegan finally sauntered off with the top prize, slipping around Lockport by three in the finale. Pontiac went on to a fourth-place finish, something they've done half a dozen times in the past. The host gang was issued their first defeat by the Bulldogs and lost to Springfield — tourney favorites at the offset of meet — in a bid for third.

Unquestionably, using the any-given-time theory, Prospect could have knocked off any of the top four squads. Waukegan however, was definitely deserving of the Century Bowl trophy resting the past 12 months in the Prospect showcase, and the Bullodgs are quite possibly state championship material this season.

Lockport also has the size, speed and depth to go a long way this spring. Springfield could run out of gas without their 6-9 center Dave Robisch. Pontiac goes a great distance on heart but in championship play this sometimes isn't enough.

Prospect's first-place showing in consolation action was also fitting. Tom Lundstedt's record-breaking showing against Taylorville (see separate story) snapped the Knights out of the doldrums and onto the winning groove and Granite City's loss by nine in the consolation wrap-up was the closest anyone could come to the surging Knights.

The score of the final match was 69-90 and a balanced scoring attack took some of the pressure off of a tiring Lundstedt. The Warriors stayed on top until the end of the first quarter, 18-17 but couldn't muster up another field goal until the third quarter was well under way and were down by a dozen points by then.

Lundstedt picked up 18 points before fouling out—the first time he's done this all season—and shared scoring honors with Dave Kingman. Also going into double digits were Mike Mueller with 15 and Mike Anderson with 13.

To get into the fray with Granite City, the Knights dumped Streator 69-56 behind Mueller's 20-point performance. The Bulldogs also took a slim lead into the second stanza of play 17-15 but emerged down at the intermission and never recovered.

The score was knotted eight times up until halftime but shots by Mueller and Lundstedt to open period three gave the Knights a 37-31 advantage and Streator never got closer than a deficit of six after that.

Aided by a 9-for-11 free throw spree, Kingman took runnerup scoring laurels for the Knights with 17 and Lundstedt added 14 to the cause.

Prospect's record - breaking runaway over Taylorville, 101-63, had Lundstedt capturing the individual tourney scoring mark on a 1-1 situation. With 43 pointers under his belt as he stepped to the line, the big forward bucketed both tries to tie and then surpass the 44-point standard established by Roger Angel of Princeton back in 1960.

Lundstedt didn't quit until he had padded the mark with a jumper from 15 feet out but Kinneman took him out after that with less than two minutes to play and left the honor of putting Prospect over the century mark to Butch Leonard.

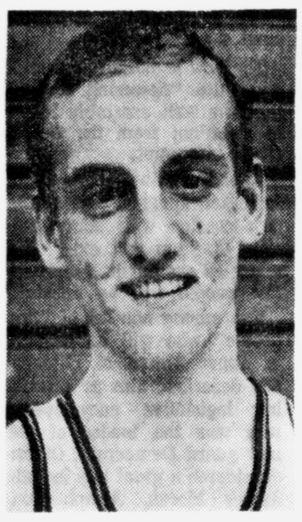

The line score of Lundstedt's record - shattering performance went 9-13-12-13. His 20 field goals also established a new tourney mark. Al Vitali of the Tornados was a long way off in second place on the scoring ladder with 28. Other chief Prospect point contributors were Kingman with 19 and Mueller with 17.

Lion Frosh Fall

Notre Dame pulled away from a tight game in the final period and pulled out a 45-39 frosh basketball victory over St. Viator.

The Lions led 33-29 after three quarters.

Tom Rennd was high for the losers with 12 points.

In their opening contest with Pontiac, the Knights saw a quick 4-3 advantage dissolve into a 17-7 losing margin by the end of the quarter. The gap widened as far as 61-38 at one point shortly after the fourth quarter had commenced and the biggest Knight spurt of the second half saw them no better than 11 down.

Lundstedt tried to offset a 23-6 turnover ratio with a 25-point scoring stand but had little help from his mates. Kingman had only 10, among his poorest productions of the season, and three other starters tallied only seven between them.

Pontiac, in the meantime, scored at will, mostly from way outside, with Kevin Pierce heading the Indian bucket brigade with 26.

Mt. Prospect Skaters Strong in Big Meet

Mid-Western speed skating enjoyed two of its most successful open meets as the Northbrook and Mount Prospect skating clubs hosted skaters from all parts of the nation.

Represented in the roll call of states was California, Iowa, Michigan, Ohio, New York, Missouri and Wisconsin.

Despite the quality of the competition Prospect skaters again established themselves as top performers.

The North Shore open skated on very fast ice and ideal weather conditions Friday night gave Bill Grady his first opportunity to meet head on with his Juvenile competitors and he made his first start a winning one by taking a first place medal in the one sixth mile event. In the same race John Griffin took a third but added a fourth in the 440-yard final to complete his skating effort. But Bob Haenisch added a first place in the 440 to make the Juvenile boys class the most productive point producing class in the club.

In the Junior boys Bob Knight took a second and a fourth in his two events and led this group in scoring for the night, Gary Jonland was able to grab a third in the 880 after taking a spill in the shorter race.

The Senior Men's class was studded with former Olympic and National Champions and proved the mettle of Jim Zuckermandel who took a third in the half mile and showed very strong in the other races.

Tim Jilek, Prospect's lone Intermediate boy, came ouf of his cocoon to score in two of his three events. Tim placed third in the half mile final in a photo finish and then later in the evening finished fourth in the mile race where a record five seconds under the previous standard was set. Todd Jonland, a Prospect Midget, finished the evening's scoring for the club by taking a fourth in the one-sixth mile event.

Neighboring Des Plaines will hold its second meet of its short history next Saturday, and Sunday the Prospect club will compete for the state championships at Lake Ellyn in Glen Ellyn, Ill. The Prospect club practices each evening from five to seven at the Lions Park rink and interested youngsters are invited to attend. A parent must accompany the child to the first session.

Rich Wurster, 1966 National Speed Skating Champion and Olympic candidate, announced his intention of defending all of his 1966 speed skating accomplishments by taking the feature Paddock Mile from a star studded field.

After five laps of maneuvering and strategic skating Rich had the field positioned as he wanted, then took off with one to go, held off the determined effort of Neil Blatchford of Northbrook and crossed the finish line without question the King of this country's milers. And so the Paddock trophy becomes a national symbol of one mile speed skating superiority by moving to the Winners New York home.

The Winter Carnival achieved its highest out of state attendance in its history. It also proved the high quality of Prospect talent when as a team it finished a strong fourth in the team standings.

Leading the charge and winning the Juvenile boys Championship was Bob Vehe, who won his 220 yard event from this select field. Bob was the Prospect's "Dark Horse" this being his first win.

Doing it on home ice and before the home folks must have given Bob his big thrill. John Griffin and Bill Grady, took second and fourth and almost made it a complete Prospect finish.

Jim Zuckermandel finished with a strong burst of speed to take a third in the Senior Men's 220 yard sprint. Gary Jonland skated a strong 880 yard race in the Junior boys final but was unable to hold off the flying Jeff Edwards of Champaign who copped the race leaving Gary in the second spot.

Tom Tangney grabbed spots in the other two Junior boys races to give the Prospect club points in each Junior Boys race. Bob Haenisch Juvenile Boy, salvaged a second for the local club in his half mile race.

In Todd Jonland, Prospect had its only midget scorer. He took a third in the quarter mile. Zack Wallerstadt took a third in the Pony Boy's 220 while Tom Grunnah managed two fourths. Mary Cunningham had one of her good days, while skating against her National competition. She finished in a third place position in a photo finish in the 220 with Debbie Fish and Diane Holum both National Champions.

In the one-third mile she managed a good fourth, making the day reasonably pleasant for Coach Herman Haenisch, who with limited teaching opportunities due to the weather, must credit the pre-season drilling of the Prospect Club in running and calesthenics for the good showing the club has made to date.

The Way We See It

State Must Stiffen Auto, Driver Laws

Assembly line production of motor vehicles has resulted in a parallel growth in the number of regulations on the use of such vehicles. Many of these regulations, regarded as innovations at the time they were introduced, have come to be recognized as normal and indispensable to highway safety.

Such long-accepted regulations as speed limits and driver licenses are examples. It is difficult to imagine the chaos which would have resulted had these measures not been adopted.

The improvement in design of passenger cars giving them faster acceleration and greater speed, the rapid increase in the number of cars since World War II, and, most important, the building of high speed freeways and super highways are beginning to be reflected in a series of new regulations. These regulations will not always be pleasant nor will they be accepted without controversy; to meet demands of today's driving conditions they will be aimed at getting bad drivers and bad cars off the road.

Inaction on the part of states in this area has led to federal action and to federal prodding. The National Highway Safety Agency, created during the safety controversy last summer, is an example of federal action for a uniform, national solution to the problem of safe motor vehicle design.

The federal prodding—for state adoption of minimum standards under statutes tailored to each state's needs—has begun. The first bill filed for consideration by the 75th Illinois General Assembly is an attempt to guarantee Illinois' share of federal highway funds is not jeopardized. The bill provides for annual inspection of passenger cars including brakes, tires, lights, signal devices, horn, exhaust system, glazing, windshield wipers, steering mechanism, suspension and other items as may be considered necessary.

The bill would become effective on Jan. 1, 1969. It would authorize the secretary of state to designate garages, dealers and similar organizations as inspection stations. It would require inspection of new cars and would permit sale of used cars only if they have been inspected in the preceding three months.

This measure, co-sponsored by Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman (D-Third), is supported by the Motor Vehicle Laws Commission, the Governor's official Traffic Safety Coordinating Committee and the National Safety Council.

Close on the heels of this measure we can expect to see federal pressure for better driver licensing procedures: driver reexamination every four years (every two years for those 65 and older), revocation of licenses of those receiving blind welfare payments and separate licensing for different classes of vehicles.

Justification—and reward—for these regulations will be a safer motoring record.

Viet Nam Assessment

A report issued this fall by the House Committee on Government Operations is a forceful reminder of the difficult position the United States still finds itself in Viet Nam. The report highlights many of the problems of our assistance programs cited by Rep. Donald Rumsfeld (R-13) when he visited Viet Nam as a member of the investigating subcommittee last summer.

The subcommittee found shocking examples of waste, of diversion of aid commodities to black markets, of pilferage, of spoilage and of U.S. goods falling into the hands of the Viet Cong.

They found infrequent and inferior audits of aid programs, they found organizations attempting to control the aid programs while struggling with problems of understaffing, employe turnover, inexperience, shortage of linguists, poor communications with Washington and seemingly indefensible procedures.

Disorganization was the keynote of our aid program as discussed by the subcommittee. Yet the group noted, "there are really three wars raging in Viet Nam. There is a military war, a political war and an economic war. Without victory in the last, success in the other two would be meaningless."

Rumsfeld and Rep. Robert J. Dole (R-Kan.) commented in an addition to the report:

"Twelve years have elapsed since we began contributing economic assistance and manpower to South Viet Nam. Yet that nation continues to face political instability, lack a sense of nationhood, and to suffer social, religious and regional factionalism and severe economic dislocations . . . Communist military activities in Viet Nam continue, land areas under dispute remain at a high and relatively constant level, acts of terrorism occur daily, even in supposedly secure areas."

While satisfied with the subcommittee recommendations as far as they went, Rumsfeld and Dole said the Viet Nam situation is symptomatic of a more general problem: "the United States and, indeed, the free world, have failed thus far to develop strategies, programs and techniques to meet the Communist pressures which exist in southeast Asia and elsewhere in the world . . ."

"No matter how efficiently the present policies are administered," Rumsfeld and Dole concluded, "the real problem is the development, by the United States, preferably working in cooperation with other free nations rather than alone or almost alone as at present, of programs and techniques and approaches more suitable to meeting the pressures as they exist in Viet Nam."

Perhaps in view of the heavy investment of lives, anguish and equipment we are making to prevent Communist government in South Viet Nam, and in view of the likelihood of similar conflicts in the future, it is time to make a thorough assessment not only of procedures cited by the subcommittee but of our total Viet Nam effort politically, militarily and economically.

Critic's Corner

Men of Year Awards Told

by ED MURNANE
Staff Writer

The old year almost came to an end without a clear-cut choice for recipient of the "most informed man of the year" award.

But luckily, during the dying hours of 1966, one of the prominent leaders of the Chicago civil rights movement made an intelligent statement that surely entitles him to the award.

He said that the United States was fighting in Viet Nam to get North Viet Nam's tin, silver and coconut oil.

Red China, he insisted, had nothing to do with the struggle. It wasn't a question of the U. S. resisting the spread of Peking Communism.

MURNANE

He based his information on a letter he received from his wife, who should probably win the award for the "most informed woman of the year."

HIS WIFE was on a tour of Hanoi, against the wishes of the U. S. State Department. She apparently wanted to decide for herself whether or not U. S. planes were bombing civilian areas.

Naturally, she said they were, and that it was a brutal and cruel sight to see those poor, helpless commies being pushed out of their homes, all because the United States wanted some coconut oil.

The runner-up spot for the award will have to be shared by nine people. They're the six senators, two congressmen and one former vice-president who also went to Viet Nam and returned with the brilliant statement, "The tide is changing, we have stopped losing the war."

SEVERAL OF the second place finishers also were honored at the end of 1965, when they made the same statement.

Third place will have to go to a leading Republican state senator who said there are too many patronage jobs in Illinois.

He doesn't get a plaque, but he will get a chance to meet one of the top Republicans in DuPage County who will inform him that there is no such thing as a Democratic Party and that there are not enough patronage jobs.

Fourth-place will be awarded to a Chicago police figure who made the statement, "We have our man," when Richard Speck was apprehended.

He won't get a plaque either, but a public defender will present him with a newspaper that did not carry the statement. That is, of course, if the public defender can find one.

THE FINAL award will be presented to the West Coast governor who thought he was signing a loyalty oath when actually he was being sworn in to office. His award will be a staff member who will hold cue cards for him, informing him what's going on.

There were several other candidates in the running for the award, including all the weathermen who forecast snow for three straight weeks before Christmas, all the players in the American Football League who have claimed they can beat the Green Bay Packers, all the local village officials who said that flooding is becoming a big problem, all the newspaper columnists who have hinted that maybe the scandal at the University of Illinois isn't limited to athletics in Champaign, and all the auto makers who insist their cars are safe, and then recall them for further inspections.

The new year is less than a week old, and already there are probably many candidates for the 1967 award.

Readers of this column are all eligible, if you can identify our 1966 winners. If you can, you probably know more about what's going on than some of them.

Behind the Headlines

The New Legislature

by DAN PRIBILSKI
Political Editor

The 75th Illinois General Assembly convened in Springfield at noon yesterday.

Senate: 39 Republicans and 19 Democrats. House: 99 Republicans and 78 Democrats.

"The GOP has the responsibility to leadership," states Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman (R-Arlington Heights).

The Republicans are able to pass all the legislation their party leadership desires. Local Republican legislators have expressed both the hope for a bright year and the worry that the party image could suffer if they fail.

PRIBILSKI

In view of this, William Redmond (D-Bensenville) comments, "It's always a horrible experience in a year when the mayor is to be elected in Chicago. They always do a lot of things to try to embarrass Daley and his administration."

While the GOP has the controlling majorities in both houses, certainly Gov. Kerner could be the proverbial "stumbling block" with his veto power.

But it is inconceivable the governor would descend to complete partisanship. State business could stop completely if compromise is not reached by the Democrats and Republicans.

KERNER AND Senate president pro tem W. Russell Arrington, the legislative GOP leader, have said they'd cooperate. The 1967 session will prove how responsible, or irresponsible, the two and their parties can be.

The new legislature does not have the "flowering bloom" that the 74th assembly had—at least not from the Democratic viewpoint.

Rep. Eugenia Chapman (D-Arlington Heights) enters the new session with some sadness. A "gap will exist" because as she put it, "so many fine people will be missing."

Top among her list of "fine people" who will be missing is Abner Mikva of Chicago. She described him as a walking legislative encyclopedia who was the leader of the new guard Democrats. Others considered a great loss include James Moran, Joseph Connelly, Marvin Lieberman and John Morris.

Also considered a loss is Bernard Peskin of Northbrook. A veteran legislator, he was "defeated" by Mrs. Chapman who out-polled him for the third seat in the 3rd House District.

Mrs. Chapman comments, "Those of us left will have to pool our resources and talents."

Much of the success of the 75th assembly, says Schlickman, will depend upon the leader of the House, Speaker Ralph Smith who was chosen over Rep. John C. Parkhurst of Peoria. Schlickman was an ardent supporter of Parkhurst.

Rep. Gene Hoffman (R-Elmhurst) also was a Parkhurst supporter but does not feel badly that Smith was chosen Speaker of the House. Hoffman said Smith's nomination was more political than philosophical.

"IT'S FUNNY," Hoffman comments, "Smith is pretty liberal yet his chief sponsor, (William E.) Pollack (of Chicago), is conservative."

Rep. David Regner (R-Mount Prospect) was a Smith supporter. Regner said he believes Smith of all candidates for speaker "probably would be best able to work with all factions."

The 3rd District GOP legislators — Sen. John A. Graham of Barrington, Schlickman and Regner — present a somewhat curious "Republican Team," a slogan they had before the November election.

Though not spoken too loudly, it is no secret that little love is lost between Schlickman on one hand and his conservative brothers Graham and Regner.

Discussion of and proposing bills points this up, especially concerning Schlickman and Regner. Bills originally identified with Schlickman have been adopted by Regner without Regner consulting Schlickman. A curious way for a "team" to operate and a curious way for a freshman legislator like Regner to act toward his veteran cohort Schlickman.

In the 1965 session, Democrats were accused of following an "idiot sheet" telling them how to vote.

Will this be the case for the GOP majorities, especially in the House where the GOP's effective majority is quite narrow?

SCHLICKMAN says the GOP minority in 1965 caucused only once in the House. He expects Speaker of the House Smith will allow many more caucuses this year.

One such issue which could split Republicans is open housing. In the 3rd District, for instance, Schlickman is much more likely to be for a particular bill and Regner and Graham much more against one.

Education and how to support it will hold a main spotlight in the 75th assembly. The big question is where will the money come from for primary, secondary and junior college support. The governor and Arrington will be the men principally responsible for finding the answers.

Mrs. Chapman hopes to be a major sponsor of a bill for ground rules for collective bargaining between school administrations and teachers. Hoffman also hopes to have a hand in such a bill. Both representatives have education backgrounds and close ties with the Illinois Education Assn., a "union" for teachers.

Local Republicans will support among several bills the following: automatic disannexation of township libraries into village libraries, automatic disannexation of rural fire districts into municipal ones, permit municipalities zoning controls 1½ miles from their borders, and extend voting hours to help suburban commuter communities.

A LEGISLATIVE logjam at the end of the session? This will be up to Republicans with their controlling majorities.

As Bensenville's Redmond put it, "There'll be no logjam on things they (the Republicans) want to go."

Something Nice to Say

Television's for Kids

By CLIFF ROWE
Associate Editor

Feeling benevolent, as I always do at the first of a new year, I would like to say something nice about television.

There were a lot of nasty things said about television last year — some of them true. For instance, it was pointed out that most of the people who were still watching it were thriving on the same type of fare they have been thriving on since the harvesting of the wasteland began.

The nasty aspect of this criticism, so far as the industry was concerned, was that the critics were pointing out, with some merriment, that there were fewer people indulging.

THERE WAS some speculation that it might get to the point where the only people watching were those whose television sets were hooked up to the rating systems.

That would be a fine kettle of Nielsens.

Another nasty thing said about television was that the commercials represented the greatest creativeness in an entire day's programing.

That was certainly true, as far as some days were concerned, and maybe pointed the way to the medium's appointed role in the scheme of communications — a showcase for clever commercials.

UNFORTUNATELY, there were enough soap, deodorant and anti-headache commercials with about as much creativeness as a hammer on the thumb to dilute even this possibility of a meaningful place in man's communication with man.

I believe all this criticism. After all, everyone takes comfort in knowing there is something bigger than he that is susceptible to ridicule.

And it is hard these days to find anything that's bigger and more susceptible than television — outside the realm of government, anyway.

HOWEVER, as with so many things, even these "truths" are not all inclusive and, in looking back over the last year I am able to recall many enjoyable hours of television.

And not all of them were sports events, no matter what my wife might claim.

As a matter of fact, I have found a greener oasis, even, than that in the barren wastes — children's programs.

I hasten to point out that many children's programs, too, are a waste of time. However, to give credit to the children I have the greatest opportunity to observe, they are more discerning in their choice of viewing fare than their parents. You will find them leaving the set to find something more interesting to do much more readily than we who are perhaps more in need of escapism — no matter how torturous the path of escape may be.

But many children's programs are among the brightest, freshest morsels in any entertainment pie these days, let alone in television.

The tube toilers outdid themselves during the holiday period, I think. From the Grinch stealing Christmas, which gave Dr. Seuss a new, and most satisfactory stage upon which to cavort, to the theater performance of that old gingerbread - encrusted favorite, "Hansel and Gretel," it was most enjoyable and entertaining viewing.

THE LATTER characteristic, I understand, is what television is striving for in its nobler moments.

Other programs I've seen in the last year in the company of my kids (it's nice to have that excuse for having these programs on when the neighbors drop in) also stand tall in my rank of things to remember.

They include the Leonard Bernstein children's concerts, many, many of the Walt Disney hour presentations, the portrayal of Smoky the Bear, and on and on, ad animation.

Sure, it's escapism. Pure and simple. But I can imbibe of it without danger of suffering from the mental hangover inherent in some of the cheaper, and so-called "stronger," stuff pouring from the magic box.

Anyway, I just wanted to say something nice, it's being a new year and all.

It was nice to have something nice to say something about.

One Enchanted Evening

It's all over but the memories and for 16 area girls, these memories of the first Cotillion Ball presented by Holy Family Hospital will be forever cherished. The young debutantes, dressed in elegant white ball gowns, made their formal entrance into adult society the evening of Dec. 27 at the Pick-Congress Hotel, Chicago.

The affair was one of pomp and ceremony with the debs and their fathers performing the traditional cotillion figures before 300 guests, including the Princess of Thailand and the consuls of Bolivia, Germany, Costa Rica, the Netherlands, the Philippines, Spain, Turkey and Lebanon.

James Slattery, as master of ceremonies, endeared himself to the audience as he recited the poem, "What Are Little Girls Made Of?" The girls' entrance into the pink and red-decorated ball room was made through white Roman arches flanked by 9-foot tall red candelabra.

A grand march, dancing with their escorts and dining on exotic foods were other highlights of the once-in-a-lifetime evening.

Mary Kay Crnich, daughter of the Anthony B. Crnichs; Betty Chesney, daughter of the Chester A. Chesneys; Penelope Dunk, daughter of the Thomas Dunks; Marsha Georgen, daughter of the Richard Georgens; Kathy Leone, daughter of the Louis B. Leones; Madonna McMahon, daughter of the J. A. McMahons; Florine Preski, daughter of the Bruno Preskis; and Patricia and Ethel Stanton, daughters of the Robert Stantons, were the Mount Prospect debs.

Francine Schneller, daughter of the Joseph Schnellers, was the Arlington Heights deb.

Still others making their bow were Tara Dowd, Kathleen O'Brien and Bonnie Schmehil of Des Plaines, Catherine and Laura Vazquez of Chicago and Janice Drabant of Morton Grove.

Hello Hostess

Try an Oriental role for painless girth control—if you, like most of feminine America, are feeling decidedly overstuffed after the holidays.

Invite your friends to a Teahouse of the January Afternoon—for a delightful way to make almost-a-fast seem like nearly-a-feast. Write your invitations on fan-shapped paper, or letter them elegantly on precisely rolled scrolls.

HIP, HIP HIBACHI! Transform your living room into a teahouse with all the Oriental atmosphere you can manage. bright kites or paper fish. Use hibachis, fans, wind chimes, tatami mats, haiku, scrolls—anything you can find that carries a suggestion of the mysterious East.

If you are costume-conscious, wear a bright kimono or wear a sash of gay fabric wound around your waist and fastened at the shoulders in pillow-like mounds. Pin a flower in your hair and greet your guests with a low bow.

Floor your guests on colorful cushions and pillows. (Shoes, of course, remain at the door.) And do take a little time to make low teahouse-type tables for added authenticity. Just cut out knee room from ordinary grocery cartons. Add a quick coat of spray paint if you feel ambitious. Or cover your tables with any plain fabric or cloth.

YOU WON'T NEED an abacus to add up the calories in your no-to-low caloric menu. Concentrate on tea. Serve two or three different kinds, and with as much ceremony as possible. Use cups without handles and float a flower petal in each for glamour.

Add the indispensable fortune cookies and a little fruit—possibly mandarin oranges (dietetic pack). What else do you serve? As little as possible. If you must add something more toothsomely tempting, insist that it be eaten with chopsticks to cut the calorie count.

For a final fragrant touch, pass a basket of rolled fingertip towels, wrung out in hot water with a little scent added. Then send each Madame Butterfuly happily homeward, feeling honorably virtuous over sticking to her diet through your tea-rrific teahouse party!

PARTY LINE: Whether it's a tea party or a shower for a new mother, the Japanese art of paper folding (origami) offers a different way to entertain guests.

With a book from the library or directions accompanying packages of origami paper, you can teach your guests to make tissue paper swans or fish or birds—to take home as mobiles or table decorations.

GAME OF THE WEEK: "Camouflage"—Seeing is believing in this game of observation which intrigues players from seven to seventy and on. Before the party, hide about 15 objects in the room so that they are in plain sight but difficult to see.

You might hide a postage stamp on a wall picture, a nylon fitted over a table leg, a dollar bill folded around the end of a book, a needle with thread matching the curtain to which it is fastened, transparent tape on a windowpane and so on.

Give each guest a list of the hidden objects, with space for writing where each item was seen. You may wish to trick guests by asking them to hunt for "turkey." Some baffled players won't think of finding it on a world globe!

Carol Ehlen Becomes Bride Of Minnesotan Nov. 26th

It was while vacationing in Minnesota two years ago that Carol Barbara Ehlen, daughter of the Edward F. Ehlens, 437 S. Gibbons, Arlington Heights, first met John E. Predovich, son of the George Predovichs of Coleraine, Minn. And John's Minnesota relatives weren't about to miss the couple's Nov. 26 wedding in St. James Catholic Church, Arlington Heights. They traveled, 50 strong, to see Carol and John married at 11 that morning by Fr. Emmet Hayes.

The double ring service took place in a setting of white and gold mums. The attendants, too, were in gold satin coats over gold on white satin brocade gowns, and they carried bouquets of gold mums.

THE BRIDE'S delustered satin gown was fashioned with modified empire waist trimmed with Belgium lace, seed pearls and crystals. The lace also trimmed the hem of her gown. Her train, also of Belgium lace, fell from the shoulders, and her shoulder-length veil was held in place by a pill box headpiece of seed pearls and crystals. Her flowers were white mums.

For her "something old" the bride wore a pearl necklace given to her by a great-aunt. Her "something borrowed" was a hanky from her grandmother, Mrs. Clara B. Ehlen of Evanston.

Mr. Ehlens gave his daughter in marriage.

Attendants to the bride were Miss Linda Gier of Chicago as maid of honor and Mary Jo Fiore of Highland Park and the groom's sister, Nancy Predovich of Coleraine as bridesmaids. The bride's sister, Kathy Ehlen, served as junior bridesmaid.

The groom's brother, William Predovich, served as best man and ushers, both of Coleraine, were Del Matteson and a cousin, Bruce Adams. Another brother, Ronnie Predovich, served as junior usher. Other ushers were James Chappell of Arlington Heights and Larry Unger, a cousin of the groom from Coleraine.

THE RECEPTION for 250 guests was held in Ehlen's Green Tree Inn in Bensenville which is owned by the bride's parents. Mrs. Ehlen received in a moss green wool ensemble with white fox collar and Mrs. Predovich in a cranberry velvet ensemble. Both mothers wore orchid corsages.

The newlyweds honeymooned for a week in the Wisconsin Dells and are now residing in Sartell, Minn., a suburb of St. Cloud where the groom attends St. Cloud State College. He will be graduating in January '68.

The bride, a graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary High School, also attended Marquette University in Milwaukee. (SSD

Look What Happens to Mom When Dad's Not at Home

By BILLIE BACHHUBER

Why is it that everything happens when Dad's away from home?

If you have let the laundry pile up because you figured you would work extra hard to catch up while he's gone, the washer will break down or the iron burn out. A service call will cost at least $5, and Dad could have fixed it in five minutes.

For weeks your Cub Scout has looked forward to pack night when he will participate in a special program and Dad is to be his guest. How do you tell your Scout that a very important sales meeting is taking Dad to New York or work will keep him at the office late?

ARE THERE grade level meetings scheduled at your local elementary school? Do you have several children in school so that you and Dad must split up to attend the different classroom sessions? You can bet Dad will be out of town or working late that night, and you'll have to skip frantically from one room to the next.

At least when Dad works the late shift or travels, you and the children have television to keep you company. Have you ever settled down to an evening of relative calm and relaxation, feeling lonesome and maybe a bit scared? Well, there is TV. Then, a sudden pop! A bright flash and the screen goes blank. No use to turn on the second set; it's so full of snow and static, it's worse than none at all.

NO MATTER how healthy your children — or your pets —if they are going to be sick, it will be when Dad's away on a trip. Though he probably would sleep through the wails, the medicine giving and the high fevers, you'd feel more secure if he were there.

Should you get an odd telephone call — or at least you think it's odd because Dad's not home — do you hang up? Then learn the next day the caller was your best friend?

You've never had an automobile accident? Not even a flat tire? Well, if you do, be assured that Dad won't be around. If you get stuck in four feet of snow while driving the children to school, you may as well sit there and fume. Dad will be lolling in the sun at Miami Beach with a business client or playing golf with his boss at some swanky club in Texas.

EVEN THE weather sometimes seems to be against you when Dad's not around. Where was he the last time the basement flooded, the roof leaked or the driveway had to be shoveled?

Cheer up. After hot dogs for supper, you can tackle that stack of ironing after you've helped the children with their homework. Or do yours keep asking, "Mom, when's Dad coming home? He knows more about this than you do."

Is Dad away from home every time he's needed? You know he isn't. It just seems that way!

Furnishings Market At Mart Next Week

The International Home Furnishings Market which opens at the Merchandise Mart in Chicago this Sunday, will attract approximately 40,000 retailers, manufacturers, wholesale salesmen and distributors from throughout the United States and several foreign countries.

W. O. Ollman, general manager of The Mart, said new products in all categories of home furnishings will be introduced during the one-week market event.

FURNITURE, floor coverings, lamps and lighting fixtures, fabrics, wall coverings and decorative accessories are all shown at the same time in this one center, and the buying decisions made by those attending influence the entire market, according to Ollman. What's bought or ordered during the market will determine what is available in retail stores this spring.

The same products that will be previewed by retail buyers next week may be seen by homemakers on the 75-minute guided tours offered by The Merchandise Mart Monday through Friday. The 1967 tour program will begin Monday, Jan. 16. There is a small fee.

Wheeling Jrs. Give Aid To Holiday Fire Victims

Wheeling Junior Woman's Club, anticipating the spirit that will blanket Wheeling when "TORCH" is no longer in the planning stage, cooperated with other Wheeling organizations in their Christmas activities.

Two members, Mrs. Ruth Weider and Mrs. Evelyn Diens, cordinated the entire village efforts to provide food, shelter, clothes and Christmas gifts for the 18 families who lost their homes in the Wildwood apartment house fire. The Meadowbrook Woman's Club sent members to help sort, pack and wrap the clothes and food that had been collected by the police and fire department. The Buffalo Grove Woman's Club also offered help.

THE VILLAGE Board, spearheaded by Pres. Ted Scanlon, postponed its own Christmas celebrations until the families were cared for. Individual merchants and citizens donated clothes, food and offered their services and help.

At the Junior's December meeting the "Over 50 Club" members were invited as guests. Dr. Ian Taylor, as a representative of the Wheeling Historical Society, presented the program.

For the Girl Scouts' Christmas party, held for the residents of Addolorata Villa, the Wheeling Junior's provided refreshments and transportation. When the VFW entertained the hospitalized veterans the Juniors collected gift items, and two of the club members helped serve. (S

Expert care and handling of your household possessions is everything you can reasonably expect from the moving man. Neither can your Welcome Wagon Hostess work miracles. But she can and will provide directions to the community facilities you need, and bring with her a galaxy of gifts from its leading merchants. New Year–New Figures For 'Y' Ladies' Class

If you have made a New Year's resolution to lose weight, don't take it so hard; as it isn't as bad as it seems, according to Miss Gerry Moynahan, diet consultant for the 300 E. Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines.

The reducing classes will begin meeting at the "Y" on Monday and Wednesday, Jan. 9 and 11. There will be morning and evening classes.

The classes are fun and entertaining as well as educational, report women who have joined previous classes. They are planned for women who want to lose weight but feel they need a sound program, professional help and the company of others in which to do it.

THE EIGHT-WEEK program teaches the ladies how to lose weight and stay at their ideal weight.

To date more than 20,000 women have taken the course with a total weight loss of over 42 tons. New members can expect to lose up to 24 pounds during the eight week program, said Miss Moynahan.

A complete charm course is included in the course to help compliment the ladies new figures.

Membership enrollment and further information about the course can be obtained by phoning the "Y" at CY 6-3376. Baby sitting service will be offered in the Wednesday morning class. (S

MEASURING IN for weight reducing charm course at Northwest Suburban YMCA is Mrs. Paul Pare of Arlington Heights. Class instructor Mrs. Marge Clough holds the tape as she explains the program of exercise, diet and charm which will begin Monday evening, Jan. 9 and Wednesday morning, Jan. 11. The 7-week course is open to all area women.

Bride, Groom Make Home on SIU Campus

Newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley M. Stephens are now making their home in Carbondale where the groom is continuing his education at Southern Illinois University. The bride, the former Janice C. Nelson, daughter of the Walter T. Nelsons, 519 N. Russell, Mount Prospect, met her bridegroom at SIU where she also studied following her graduation from Prospect High School.

The couple's wedding took place Nov. 26 in St. Paul Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, and because of the groom's studies the couple postponed a honeymoon. Until her marriage the bride was employed by United Air Lines in Mount Prospect.

Rev. R. Redder officiated at the 7 o'clock double ring service in a candlelight setting. Altar and side vases contained white flowers for the ceremony and candles marked the aisle.

A GOWN OF white peau de soie was the bride's choice in wedding gown. Fashioned with empire waist falling to a modified A-line and three-quarter sleeves, the gown featured a shoulder train with alencon lace inserts. Her fingertip veil was held in place with a tiny Swedish crown of pearls, and she carried a cascade of white carnations and orchids.

Mr. Nelson gave his daughter in marriage.

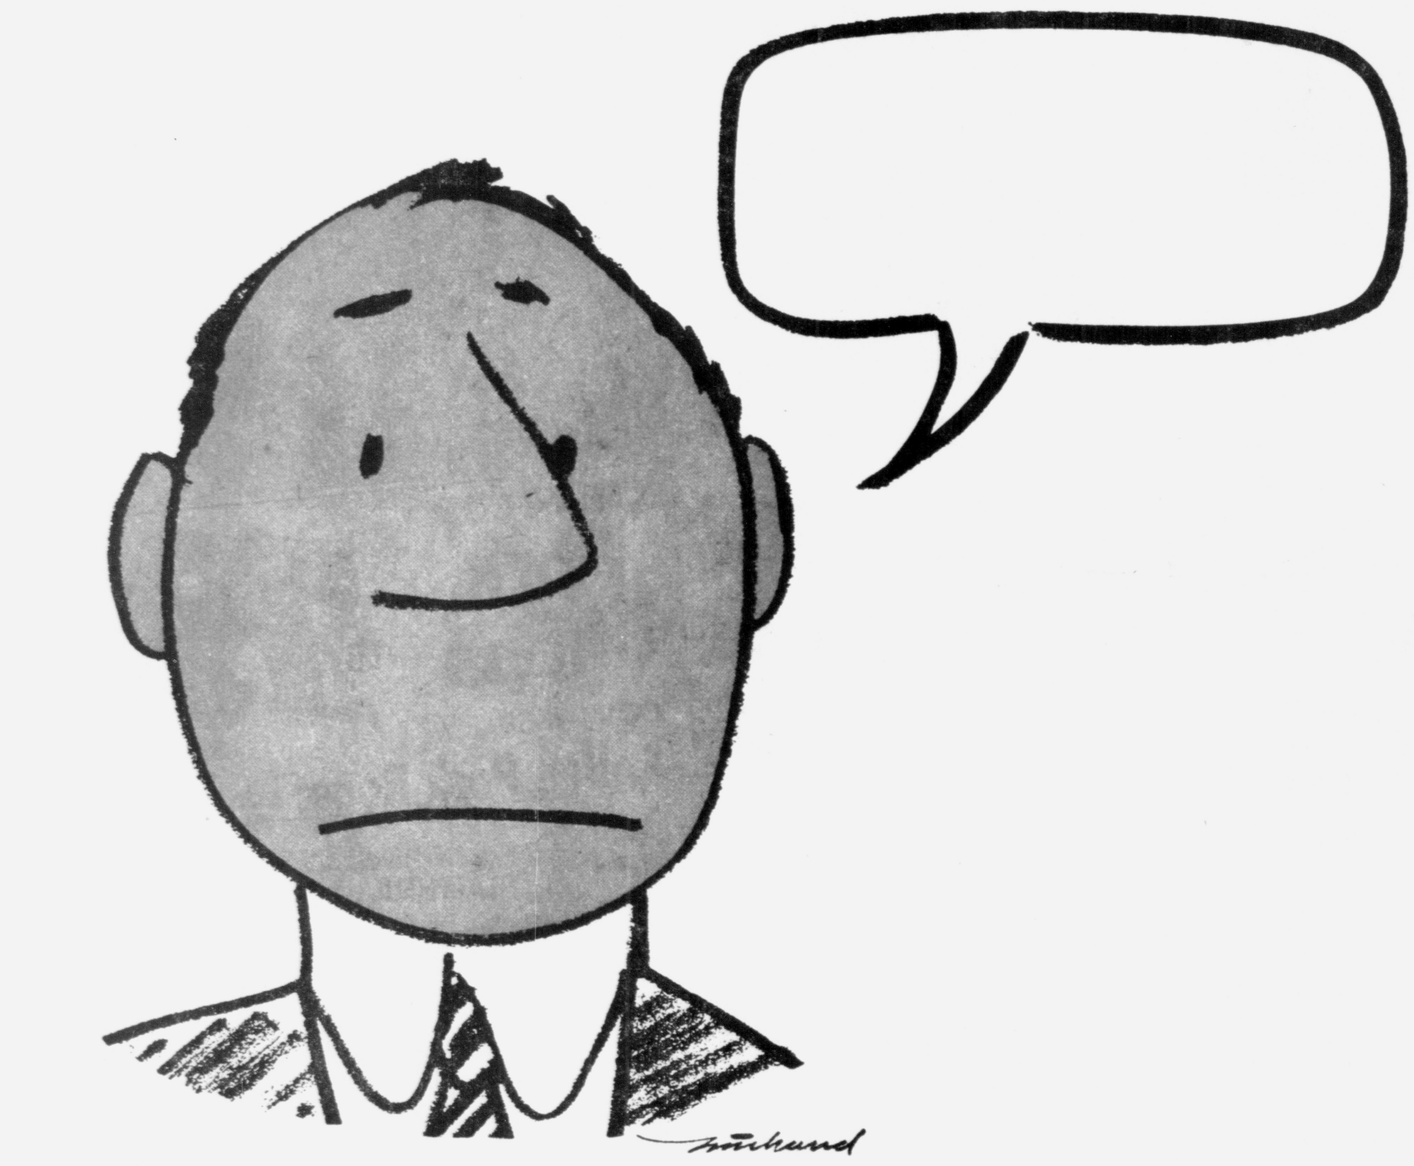

Miss Pamela Nelson of Melrose Park was her cousin's maid of honor and bridesmaids were Linda Kruse of Des Plaines, Marilyn Mutsch, a cousin from Chicago, and Phyllis Herman of Phoenix, Ariz. Their floor-length gowns were in willow green. Fashioned sheath style with empire waists, they were topped with matching coats falling in an A-line. Cascades of spider mums made up their bouquets; Miss Nelson's in yellow and rust and the others in yellow.

ANOTHER COUSIN of the bride, 5-year-old Kathleen Hagman of Chicago, served as flower girl, and the groom's nephew, 7-year-old Michael Stephens of Jackson, Ill., was ring bearer. Kathleen's gown was identical to the bridesmaids' gowns.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Nelson chose a shrimp colored lace street-length gown with A-line skirt. Mrs. Stephens chose a street-length cranberry crepe print and both mothers wore corsages of baby orchids tinged in green.

The groom's brother, Philip Stephens of Annapolis, was best man and ushers were the bride's brother, Russell Nelson, the bride's cousin, Douglas Nelson of Arlington Heights and Rex Knecht of Annapolis.

A buffet dinner was served to 160 guests at the Maitre d' in Elk Grove following the service. (S

'Yuletide Dessert' Is Good the Year 'Round

Hot Chicken Salad Bakes in Minutes

by LOIS SEILER

A luscious chocolate dessert that tastes as rich as it looks is one of Mrs. Kenneth H. Coughlin's culinary specialties.

"It is called a Yuletide Chocolate Dessert, but it is not necessarily Christmasy and can be made all year 'round," Mrs. Coughlin explained.

Assembled in three layers, the dessert has a vanilla wafer crumb crust which is spread with a rich butter cream. This is topped by chocolate-flavored whipped cream which has chopped walnuts, maraschino cherries and mashed bananas folded in.

Chilled for 24 hours, the dessert may be prepared well in advance and frozen, if desired.

The fruit and nuts in the whipped cream are a unique feature of this recipe, giving it an interesting texture as well as delicious flavor.

"BECAUSE IT is so rich, this is best served as a bridge dessert rather than a dinner dessert," recommended Mrs. Coughlin.

Another of this good cook's favorites is an elegant Hot Chicken Salad.

"I have served that to a mixed group for a Saturday night supper," LaVerne Coughlin remarked." and men seem to enjoy it as much as women."

Called a "salad" because it contains such salad ingredients as diced chicken, chopped celery, onion, mayonnaise and hard-cooked eggs, this hearty casserole recipe also calls for wild rice and white rice, cream of chicken soup, mushrooms, slivered almonds and potato chips. It is flavored with sherry wine.

THIS DISH IS popped into the oven for a mere 15 minutes, just long enough to heat it through but short enough to keep the onions and celery crisp.

LaVerne likes to accompany the hot chicken salad with rolls and a mandarin orange mold. Because this salad is rich and filling, she suggests serving "a simple dessert such as a lemon meringue or fruit pie."

A member of the Northwest Suburban Educational Secretary's Association, LaVerne has been a secretary at Kensington School for the past six years.

The Coughlins live at 507 S. Evanston in Arlington Heights. They have a daughter, Regina, 18, who is a freshman at Tarkio College, Tarkio, Mo.

YULETIDE CHOCOLATE DESSERT

2 cups fine vanilla wafer crumbs
1/3 cup melted butter

Mix ingredients together, reserving two tablespoons for top. Press remainder into a one-quart refrigerator try or a 6 by 8-inch or 8 by 8-inch pan.

½ cup butter
1½ cups sifted confectioner's sugar
2 eggs
¼ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cocoa
1 cup heavy cream
1 cup chopped walnuts or pecans
1 fully-ripe banana, mashed ¼ cup sliced maraschino cherries

Cream butter and confectioner's sugar. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Spread over crumbs.

Combine sugar, cocoa and cream. Whip until stiff. Fold in nuts, cherries and bananas. Spread over buttercream mixture. Sprinkle with remaining crumbs. Chill 24 hours or freeze, if desired. Serves 9.

HOT CHICKEN SALAD

2 cups diced cooked chicken
2 cans cream of chicken soup
½ cup slivered almonds
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup chopped celery
1 tablespoon chopped onion
¾ cup mayonnaise
¾ cup cooked wild rice, or more
¾ cup cooked white rice
1 large jar sliced mushrooms
Seasoned pepper
¼ cup sherry wine
4 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
1½ cups potato chips, broken up

Mix all ingredients together, folding in potato chips and hard boiled eggs last. Reserve a few chips for the top.

Bake 15 minutes at 400 degrees, just until the casserole is warmed through but the celery and onion stay crisp. Serves 10.

Try a Cheese Pie

Few natural foods truly fit into the menu scheme at any meal—and at any course thereof—or at any time, as suitably and appealingly as cheese does. But it's true that cheese finds favor from early morning until night . . . from toast spread with cream cheese and jelly or a cheese omelet at breakfast through grilled cheese lunch sandwiches right onto a late night snack of assorted cheese and fresh fruit.

In this Cheddar Cheese Pie, the tang of sharp cheddar permeates a mellow, smooth custard-like filling that's spiked with diced ham to create an unbeatable flavor blend. Serve Cheddar Cheese Pie fresh and hot from the oven, with a crisp green salad.

CHEDDAR CHEESE PIE

1½ cups milk
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 8-oz. wedge sharp natural cheddar cheese, shredded (2 cups)
¾ cup diced, cooked ham
1 9-inch unbaked pie shell

Combine first six ingredients; mix well. Pour into pie shell; bake at 350 degrees, 40 to 45 minutes. 6 servings. (SH

Chipped Beef Special

The main dish favorite, creamed chipped beef, takes on a new look and flavor accent with lightly sauteed strips of crisp green pepper. New, too, is the way of preparation—a quick and easy one—pot method of creaming. The sauce phase of this dish has double-rich evaporated milk for assured smoothness and creaminess. Its low cost makes this thrifty chipped beef special even more budget-minded.

Ladled over a baked potato hot from the oven, this special version of creamed chipped beef is a great dish for the main meal of the day. For brunch, lunch or a late supper, spoon the savory mixture over hot toast (or frozen waffles popped into the toaster) for service-ease.

CREAMED CHIPPED BEEF

1 small onion, chopped
1 package (3½ oz.) smoked sliced beef
¼ cup green pepper strips
1 pimiento, coarsely chopped
3 tablespoons flour
1 tall can evaporated milk (1-2/3 cups)
1/3 cup water

Melt butter in a large skillet over low heat. Add onion and cook until tender but not brown. Pull beef slices into pieces; add to onion along with green pepper and pimiento. Cook 2 to 3 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Sprinkle in flour a little at a time, blending smoothly. Gradually stir in evaporated milk, then water. Cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, until thickened, about 10 minutes. Serve hot over baked potatoes. Makes 4 servings. (SH

Week's Best Food Buys

Farm produce price index drops below a year ago. Production cutbacks are assured, and the result will be probable higher food costs for 1967.

The fryer reduction is already measured. Look for price advances by February. Meanwhile, stock up your home freezer.

The same situation holds for beef. The cattle inventory is down. Feeder cattle supplies guarantee continued low prices for the next few months.

HOG PRICE increase is moderate. Pork prices will continue favorable to producers. The citrus fruit output provides the better market value in produce lines.

Meats: blade cut chuck roasts, ground beef, round steak, stew beef, standing rib roasts; pork steaks, butt roasts, bacon, pork picnics, spareribs.

Produce: avocados, apples, grapefruit, Florida oranges; lettuce, carrots, cabbage, green beans, tomatoes. (SH
